R. A. FALCONER, M A , LL D., D.LITT., C.M.G
President of the University of Toronto

To the Graduates of 1913

THE annual appearance of TORONTONENSIS impresses one with the great variety of interests which are served in this University. From five Faculties, from four federated Arts colleges, from affiliated institutions preparing students for different professions, come at Commencement some six or seven hundred students who are to receive the Toronto degree. This commingling of students in a great institution is bound to broaden the stream of life, and though many an undergraduate may have missed the intimacies that he would have enjoyed in a small college, he has received the stimulus of intercourse and competition with many strong minds of varied character. I hope that in winning your degree you have received the education that the degree should indicate, that you have learned how to use well your powers of mind and to face the problems that your profession or life's work will present to you for solution; also that your character has been given a strong set towards the best things, for it is altogether probable that during your years in the University you have been thoroughly tested in the way that indicates where your strength lies. To one and all the University extends its best wishes for your future career.

R. A. FALCONER,
President.

NEW ORGAN, CONVOCATION HALL

THE UNDERGRADUATES PARLIAMENT

The Parliament of the Undergraduates

AS originally formed, the "Students' Parliament" was little more than a huge debating society. Problems of interest to the student body of the University were brought up at the meetings and discussed by those present. It was soon seen, however, that the size of the membership of the Parliament greatly hampered that body in doing any real business. As a result of this, the representation of the various faculties has been cut down to a good working basis.

Under its control the Parliament has "The 'Varsity," "TORONTONENSIS," the Union, the Glee Club, the Inter-University Debates, Theatre, cheering at football games, and the Musical Association, the last being an association formed for the furthering of educational influences pertaining to music. It will be readily seen that the management of these various organizations entails no little responsibility, there being finances of over $7,000 involved.

There is little doubt that to the average undergraduate the Parliament has been more or less of a mysterious body. This year's Parliament has tried to do away with this by having its meetings reported in "The 'Varsity." There has also been a feeling abroad that the name of the Parliament is undesirable, implying, as it does, the idea of a debating society. The function of the Parliament has become so purely executive that there is no room for oratorical practice at its meetings. Indeed, any attempt to limit the Parliament by constitutional rules of debate must be fatal to its success. In view of this, the present Parliament has in view the changing of the name to one more suitable, namely, the Council of the Undergraduates, to be known briefly as the Students' Council. Certain changes of the constitution have been drawn up with a view to eliminating "fuss" and "red tape," and doing business.

Eventually the present Parliament will develop into a strong central organization. When the new Hart Hall is built, the Parliament, or the Council as it will then be called, will begin to occupy its true position in undergraduate life. It is a foregone conclusion that at no very distant date a permanent secretary will be added to the Council. This will do away with the most grievous fault of the present system—that is, the lack of continuity.

It is superfluous to point out the success of the various undertakings of the Parliament this year. Theatre Night was enjoyed by all present and was "fairly quiet;" the Glee Club concert was not only enjoyable, but was also a financial success under the able management of Mr. Brooks; the attendance at the Inter-University Debate was beyond all hopes. "The 'Varsity"—well, everyone knows what "The 'Varsity" did this year. The Union, so Mr. Herb. Taylor says, has retained possession of all its belongings—thanks to Mr. Taylor. The football cheering under Mr. McPherson could not have been better. "TORONTONENSIS"—well, just look through this book. Finally, the new musical organization can be said to be in a flourishing condition, thanks to our musical genius, Mr. Ernest MacMillan.

The "Torontonensis"

THE TORONTONENSIS is the last achievement of our graduating year. It is just when with our hand on the latch, ready to open the door and leave our little undergraduate world, that this record of our undergraduate existence is placed in our hands. A month hence, one might say a moment hence, we open the door and depart forever. Only through the TORONTONENSIS can the old life be recalled, and the former familiar faces be visualized. All that the year has accomplished is put down in this book. Evil indeed, is it to that year, if its past be marred in the telling.

We have said that the TORONTONENSIS is the last creation of our graduating year—it is also the most ambitious. No other task to which the Class of Thirteen put its hand has involved so much labour and so much expense. Moreover, although an undergraduate production, the TORONTONENSIS is a permanent and an abiding work. It is a monument to the year, by which our year will be measured in the days to come.

The TORONTONENSIS contains the individual photograph, with the subject's signature beneath it, of every graduating student in all the Faculties and affiliated Colleges in the University—and Toronto is one of the largest Universities on the Continent. Alongside of every individual photograph is at least a seventy-five word-length biography. Besides this there is in it the pictures of all the societies, executives, clubs and athletic associations among the undergraduates, with names underneath, and the whole book is sprinkled with "features" and cartoons. The management and editing of this book lies wholly with the undergraduates; financially, the book must be self-supporting, it being aided by no University grant, while the students who produce it must fulfil precisely the same requirements in their academic work as does any other student who holds no office whatever. Yet we are informed on creditable authority the TORONTONENSIS is not only perhaps the largest, but in every respect the most complete and artistic of any Year-Book in America.

Whether the "TORONTONENSIS, 1913," measures up to its predecessors or no, is not for us to say. Suffice it to be remarked that the management not being appointed until the middle of October, there was left very little time to adopt innovations which could be practicable.

"'Varsity"

THE files of a newspaper are its best biographer. Its history is told in the way it tells the history of others; and, like many institutions and persons, the less it says of itself the better it is liked. So ephemeral are its interests and its pursuits, its periods of exultation and of despondency, that a summing-up at the end of a year must of necessity treat of dead things. Things die so soon. "When did it happen?" asks the editor. Yesterday? Put it on the inside forme with the other stale stuff. Day before yesterday? Kill it. The editor scowls darkly and we drop our contribution into the waste-basket.

Yet there may be a few events worthy of record; a few incidents of quite minor importance, which escaped notice in the tri-weekly columns. Incidents worthy of record only in so far as they are milestones on the road which The 'Varsity has been travelling now for years—the road which will find its goal on that day when the first issue of the Toronto Daily 'Varsity will come off the press.

To this end the cry for two years now has been "Organize!" and The 'Varsity has organized and organized until it is the most organized institution in the University. The visitor is inclined to scoff at the array of editors which graces the editorial page—editor-in-chief, managing editor, associate editors, news editor, sporting editors, local editors. "How do you keep them straight?" he asks. "How are the tasks of issuing a tri-weekly four-page, five-column sheet portioned out among so many?" The 'Varsity's apologist must needs answer that he and his fellows are building for to-morrow. "Better too many editors now than too few after we have taken the step."

But division of labour, as the political economist delights to say, works for greater business efficiency; and so The 'Varsity has printed more news this last year. More news and less literature. For the "Onlooker" and the "Highbrow" did not, as had been prophesied, come to life, and their successors, the "Tragedian" and the "Anthropoid Ape," were delicate plants, blooming only at long intervals. Plainly speaking, there was no room for them. Even to the very end of the newspaper year, when news becomes a rarity of rarities, one rarely found the local editor pleading for copy. Organization and the attendant decay of the race of litterateurs has its compensations.

Pasted on the office wall in yellow ugliness is a C.P.R. night letter from Kingston—The 'Varsity's first despatch. It arrived in Toronto on a Sunday afternoon, three hundred words of it, and Monday's paper exulted in the parenthesized announcement: "Special despatch to The 'Varsity by courtesy of the Queen's Journal," at the head of its leading article. Another step away from provincialism, rivalling in importance even the revolutionary abolition of the "Around the Halls" column.

Since, what with night letters, filed exchanges, an ever-open assignment book, and the clattering typewriter, the office became more and more a place of business, the staff banquets, of necessity, partook more of the nature of enjoyment. On these evenings, when the "Monte Carlo"—or the "Teapot Inn"—were chartered, and the brain, brawn and industry of academic newspaper-work met together, it was to feast, not to discuss. On two occasions the ladies of our staff were present—made speeches, like true newspaper-women, and turned in better copy ever afterwards. There the ways and means of tri-weekly existence were forgotten, and the members of the staff showed forth that, under the painted mask of business absorption, remained the true spirit of idealism—the spirit that made The 'Varsity what it was in years gone by, and which will stand out more clearly once again when the awkwardness of adolescence has ripened into mature grace, and The 'Varsity's growing pains become a thing of memory.

THEATRE NIGHT

THE annual Theatre Night was held on the evening of February 3rd, at the Royal Alexandra. The occasion was marked by a very commendable decrease in the usual attempts at wit and humour from the top galleries during the progress of the play. Cowbells, auto horns, and other noise-producing contrivances, so conspicuous in past years, were not in evidence. The secret of this extraordinary conversion may have been the work of the Parliament, under whose directions the arrangements for the evening were made, but one rather suspects that the fascinating beauty of the old Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado" played a still more important part in subduing the exuberance of collegian youth. This play, which carries one to the land of the Rising Sun and into the atmosphere of Oriental beauty and splendour, was admirably suited for a student audience. The sparkling wit of De Wolf Hopper as Ko-Ko caused the freshmen and sophomores to convulse with laughter, the juniors to grin, and the faces of the seniors to break forth into smiles.

The guests of the evening, safely ensconced in box seats, and hence out of the range of the showers of peas, wheat and other debris, entered into the spirit of the occasion so heartily that we would almost believe that they were amused at the spectacle of the embarrassed gentleman attempting to disentangle himself from the paper streamer which coyly wound itself around his and her neck, or his useless attempts to protect her from the other fellow, who, seated in the front row in "the gods," drank to the dregs his cup of revenge, through the instrumentality of a pocket of peas and a pea-gun. The Lieutenant-Governor, the President, and the Mayor, did not fail to compliment the rooters' brigade on their good behaviour, the ladies on their beauty, and the escorts on their dignified air of ease and nonchalance. Eight young men, known to the University world as the Science Octette, added to the pleasure and amusement of the evening by singing college and ragtime songs. The peculiar manner in which the Octette wandered about the stage may have been due to nervousness or the presence of so many pretty girls, or it may have been caused by the fear lest a fellow "Toike Oiker" might test the accuracy of his aim with a lemon or some equally moving missile.

One is apt to grow philosophical in attempting to explain the popularity of Theatre Night or to enter into a microscopic examination of the factors that differentiate it from other nights at the theatre. The fact that it is "our" night alone suffices. Although our fathers, when in reminiscent moods, dilate upon the glorious days of old, when they went to the theatre and poured flour and sawdust down from the top gallery, we in this degenerate age flatter ourselves that our milder methods of giving vent to our student jovialities is more in keeping with the present laws of the land, and reflects with greater fidelity the true spirit of the University.

THE dawn of the twentieth century marked the establishment of that club—so mysterious to the "Co-eds."—the Undergraduates' Union. Only those initiated can realize the value of this institution, which is an asylum for scholastic refugees from boring lectures. The cordiality ensuing from the association of students from all the faculties is fostered here.

This modern idealistic monastery has three distinct stratial orders. The novice, on entering the sign-bedecked oaken door, is ushered into a long, narrow room in which the soft glow of crimson rugs is in startling contrast to the severe classic arrangement of dusty encyclopædias along bleak walls. That every other volume is missing does not at all mar the effect.

But the Mecca of Sultan Nicotine's subjects is in the mid-world—for those not too bad and not too good. Everything here suggests the vanished splendour of an Augustinian age. Nowhere could the term "union" be more paradoxical. Morris chairs, out-of-date magazines, and "Life" itself have hopelessly disintegrated in anticipation of the future Utopia. But this material decadency is far outbalanced by the animated but grotesquely rambling discussions interpolated between the strains of "Il Trovatore" and the belchings of the "Yiddisher Ball." From religion, atheistic and orthodox, to theatres, classic and otherwise; from athletics to lectures; from terpsichorean revels to drill sheds; from the personnel of the faculty to the latest freshette debutante, and from the "merit" of the "West" to the "culture" of the "East" suggest the wide scope for original observations. Sunday post-sermonic reflections are particularly scintillating, partly due no doubt to that inward complaisance which only a lamb dinner of the Dining Hall can produce.

The "third degree" of this miniature world places the final academic imprint on a man. It is a sort of modern elevated Sheol, where the attenuated hulks of men wander about in a murky diaphanous ether arising from two aquariums. Closer olfactory examination, however, determines that it is only clouds of smoke incense exhaled by shoals of "fish."

"In the beginning" was the "Colonel," who yet as "presiding spirit" hovers over the "boys" with paternal solicitude. He, who can number as his personal friends many of our foremost Canadians, who knew him as undergraduates, shall ever be for us a keynote to many pleasant memories.

Would that there were more opportunities in academic life for students to come together as they do in the "Union."

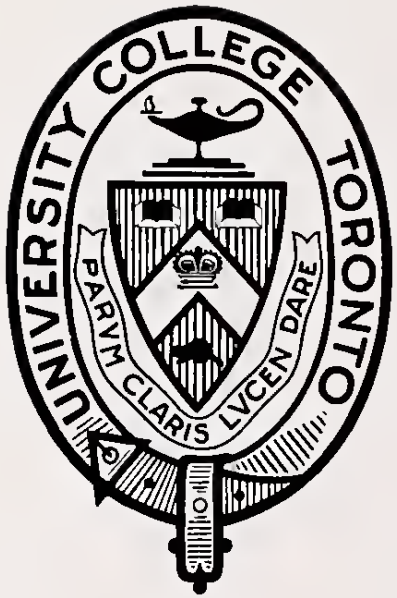
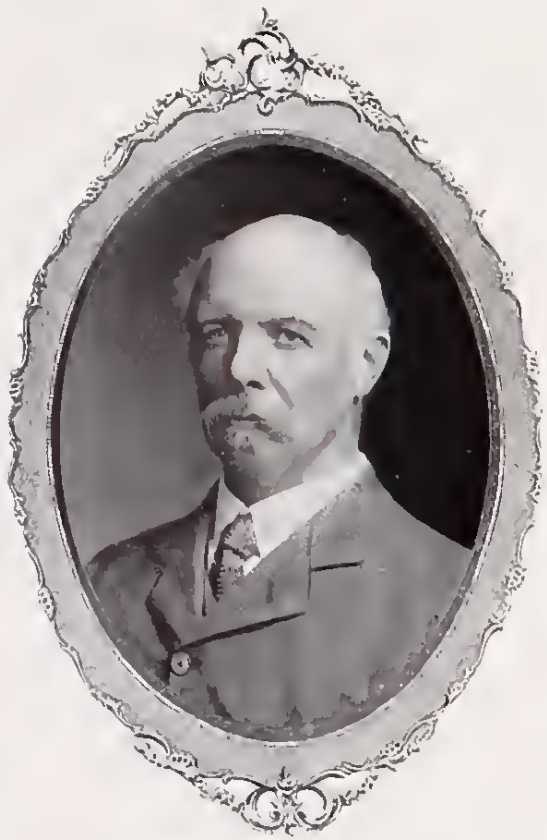
DEBATING UNION



UNIVERSITY COLLEGE TORONTO
PARVM CLARIS LVCEN DARE



MAURICE HUTTON, M.A., LL.D.
Principal of University College

UNIVERSITY College is the complement to the University of Toronto in the Provincial system of University education in Ontario. The University teaches the expensive or laboratory subjects, and also—for reasons chiefly local and accidental and without basis in educational or other broad principle—History, Economics and Mathematics, and finally—for more obvious reasons, the less imperative languages, Spanish, Italian and Arabic; the College teaches Classics, Modern Languages, Hebrew, Ethics, and—as an optional subject—Biblical Literature.

This division leaves out Philosophy; but inasmuch as Philosophy involves, among other things, Psycho-Physics, a laboratory subject, it is assigned to the University.

The arrangement though illogical, as are most of the arrangements among a practical people more concerned to suit the convenience of the hour than logic, is not in practice so different from the system of the old Universities of Great Britain as at first sight may appear.

The same need for economy in laboratory subjects has compelled the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge to teach the Natural and Physical and Chemical Sciences through the Universities, while the Colleges teach, broadly, the Humanities; the same need further has given to the Universities the out-of-the-way or recondite languages—Chinese, e.g.: Ethics again belongs to the Colleges on account of its close association with Theology, and to University College because a State University, including students of all theologies, and none could hardly with propriety include it; on the other hand, so long as the civilization of Ontario is distinctively based on Christianity, there is sufficient reason for including both it and the undenominational teaching of Biblical Literature in the State College. Probably the service rendered to the State by the intelligent teaching of the last named subject in University College is, in this age, one of the best services which the College can render.

The number of students in University College is approximately nine hundred and fifty, with one hundred occasionals; about one-fourth of the total are women.

Chronicles of Class 1913

1. In the days of Falconer the Great, in the sixth year of his reign, came messengers unto me saying,—

2. Write us, we pray thee, the deeds of the Seniors, high and mighty, that we may record and seal them in the book of Knowledge, which is called by the children of 'Varsity, TORONTONENSIS.

3. Then I went up to my watch-tower and looked round about me, and behold, deeds of strength and valour and mighty works were on every hand.

4. And I turned back the leaves of time, and in the month which is called October was there great division among the peoples, for it was the time of elections.

5. And it came to pass that a leader was chosen from among the people to direct them in their councils.

6. And unto him were given councillors who should be with him to advise him and make the way hard for him.

7. It came to pass that these wise men decreed that there should be a Class Reception, and on that day there was gathered a great assembly from all the peoples.

8. And there was much promenading, and the murmur of voices rose as the sound of many waters.

9. And the leader again took counsel and sent unto Aura Lee, saying,—Our fair maidens shall dance and our youths shall make merry within your walls. Prepare ye the way for them.

10. And the youths assembled in the rotunda and made a covenant with one another saying, Let us go up to Aura Lee and let us take with us damsels of our number. None others shall we take.

11. And they went forth in great numbers, and the music was like unto the voice of thunder.

12. And in those days behold the Rugby Team was known throughout the land, and some of its valiant men were chosen from among the ranks of the Seniors.

13. And a great multitude beheld them from the Stadium.

14. And on Field Day verily our men were conquerors (for there had been much "fasting"), and so were the races won.

15. And there arose great strife between the scribes who set forth the chronicles of the children of the University, and the valiant King of the children of Harbord.

16. Wherefore there was much weeping and gnashing of teeth, and the wise men of the land were called upon to judge between them.

17. And unto the Class of 1913 were given many women of valour who should bring fame unto their people in tennis.

18. And they were skilful in basket-ball and hockey, and in the paper-chases were they faithful unto the end, and annihilated mighty hosts of coffee and crumpets.

19. And also in those days was set apart a room, a room high above the head of man, unto which the women might go for rest and peace.

20. Wherefore shall the children of the coming generations rise up and call them blessed.

21. And in that year great were the changes wrought in the places round the field which is the campus.

22. And there was the noise of many hammers and of a multitude of stone-cutters; for the barbarians which were called Knoxonians were building a habitation whose top should reach to heaven.

23. And on the other side which is to the East there was dug a great hollow from which should rise tower upon tower, a mighty stronghold.

24. Wherein the swingers of clubs and turners of handsprings, the divers and players of billiards, and the Y.M.C.A. should find a refuge.

25. Behold among the Seniors was found great knowledge, such as had never been found before, no, not in any place.

26. And their fame spread unto all the parts of the earth, even unto Weston.

27. The rest of the deeds of the children of Nineteen Hundred and Thirteen, are they not written in the books of Brebner, the Registrar?

1T4 Class History

REPRESENTING the spirit and vigour of college life, the Class of 1T4 again enters upon its year of activity. With ranks but little depleted by the fortunes of war, 1T4 has reached the proud position of a third year class, where, as "jolly juniors," its members take part in work and play with equal vim.

In every important field of college life our students are to be found, fulfilling their work with enjoyment, and giving to all things a healthy interest. 1T4 has striven in its past two years to keep up to this spirit, and, in its third year, it is still valiantly following the standard. In many respects our motto is, to enjoy all things in moderation and benefit from all things whether they are to our liking or not.

In the first place, our class gives enthusiastic support to athletics, ever cheering on the blue and white. We are proud of our members who are on the first Rugby team, and of all who have attained a position on the teams that represent the physical prowess of our college. We like clean sport, and we are enthusiastic for our members on the field. Nor is this spirit lacking among our women students. The tennis courts show abundant proof of this, and basket-ball is as well patronized as ever.

In the different college societies 1T4's members are variously distributed according to individual taste. "Y.M." and "Y.W." have our warm support, and many of our members hold positions on the cabinets of these institutions. There are many societies that offer an opportunity to increase our knowledge outside of the everyday work, and here as elsewhere 1T4 is eager to seize the advantage and ready to improve by it. The taste of the whole class, however, is well suited by the Literary societies, and on "Lit." nights we are always there.

This year 1T4 is entering upon a new rôle, that of setting the fashion. Our innovation is very popular, for we intend to dance as well as promenade at our reception. This is no attempt to wilfully destroy a long-established custom, but it is an attempt to increase the pleasure in our yearly reception and by so doing make it more a class affair than ever.

This short history merely mentions our interest in the chief things of university life. The future is veiled to us all, yet we are eager to see what it has to offer. Class prophecy augurs well for us. Let us press on as we have done, ever grasping opportunity so that each member may honour his Alma Mater, for have not Art and Science spilt their horn of plenty at our feet?

"We know what we are, but we know not what we may be."

THE Class of Onety-Five, after the various trying, unique and delightful experiences of the "Freshie," has reasserted itself, and now fills the important position of the Sophomore, with the prospects of another year of work and play, and the resolution, at least, of paying a great deal more heed to the former than in our preceding year.

Already we have launched upon the tide of social activities by commencing with that serious duty which falls to the lot of the "Soph." annually, viz., of receiving the Freshmen and smoothing down their little idiosyncrasies. Onety-Five chose as her method an evening to be spent in social and informal entertainment. Probably the most popular events of the gathering were the apple scramble and pie-eating contest. Later on a plan was devised for the purpose of impressing the "Freshies" with the need of respect for order and government; and accordingly the assembled company paraded down-town to review, at close quarters, that practical emblem of the law known as the police station. While proceeding along Yonge Street they favoured the populace with vigorous, yet respectful vocal salutes. Their praiseworthy intent was misinterpreted by the officers of justice, and a slight fracas arose, in which trolley-poles, handcuffs and batons were involved.

The next important social event was the annual class reception, which was held on Dec. 14th in the University School. We departed from the old-time precedent in that we introduced dancing into our programme along with the customary promenading, thereby pleasing everyone. Rarely has a college gathering been characterized by so profuse a distillation of the volatile elixirs of wit and gallantry; and even the music, which was rendered by Bodley's Orchestra, seemed above the ordinary. As for our Skating Party, which is still in the future, we are trusting it will meet with better fate than that of last year, when we delayed so long that there was not any ice, and we were obliged to substitute with an informal dance.

As in all other lines of activity, Onety-Five has distinguished itself in athletics. On first, second and third Rugby teams, in soccer, hockey, and in the departments of field sports and rifle shooting, we were creditably represented. The women are especially to be commended for their hockey team. Juniors, do you still remember the defeat you suffered last year? The paper chase in the autumn brought the women of the different colleges together for a short time. At the last one this season we carried off the colours both for numbers and for lung power, as we shouted again and again:—

"College, college men are we
Of Toronto 'Varsity;
U. C. live; U. C. thrive;
Arts college, Onety-Five!"

History of Class 16, University College

THE history of the Class of Onety-Six, though necessarily brief, is yet replete with thrilling adventures and great achievments. The first function with which we were greeted on our arrival at the University was an address delivered by the President in Convocation Hall on Oct. 1st. (It was there, before the President appeared, we heard for the first time our college yell.) The theme of the address was brought out to us very forcibly. We were enjoined to make the best of our college course, to take Opportunity by the forelock, lest he turn and thus escape. We observed that four-fourths of our opportunities lay before us; our hearts went out in sympathy for the senior whose three-fourths had already passed. Inspired by these words, we felt that we were capable of accomplishing great deeds.

The men of the year were soon brought together by a reception given in their honour by the Sophs. at the Gym. on the evening of Oct. 23rd. On that ever-memorable night we chose as our rendezvous the northern end of the Campus. It was there that our warriors assembled, armed with the sacred emblems of the year. Our stalwarts, ever ready for the fray, soon commenced to march to the tune of the first year slogan. Eventually the martial line halted before the towering chateau. Immediately we tried to gain admittance, but singly we were taken prisoners and forced, against our dignity, to crawl through a canvas tunnel filled with flour and pepper. As soon as a large number of prisoners had collected in the hall at the end of the tunnel, they overthrew the guards, and at the same time the besiegers rushed the entrance. After this a strenuous battle ensued. When the warfare ceased, inter-year games commenced. To our disappointment we were unable to win the basket-ball game. At any rate, we had one thing in our favour, namely, we lost the pie-eating contest; this goes to prove that we are not "hogs" as far as eating is concerned. After that an apple scramble took place, and then, along with the Sophs., we formed in line to serenade the silent streets of Toronto.

But it is in a less turbulent manner that the ladies of the year have made their influence felt. There is no field that they have not invaded, and in each they have shown great enterprise and skill. Early in the year the annual tennis tournament was held, and it was a freshette that gained fourth place on the team. Basket-ball also has proved a great attraction to many, and two of our year displayed such ability that they were immediately put on the team. Thus we have already attained both name and fame in athletics.

In intellectual pursuits the freshettes have been no less active than in others. On Nov. 16th a debate took place between freshettes and juniorettes on the subject: "Resolved, that it is better to be a freshie than a senior." The two supporters of the affirmative successfully carried the resolution, and thus proved their ability as orators. Finally the ladies of 1T6 formed a Discussion Club to deal with live topics. Already two very interesting meetings have been held. No other year ever formed such a club until they became sophomores.

The first class meeting took place on Nov. 29th. At this meeting the elections were completed by the choosing of the Orator and Representative to the Undergrads' Parliament. We can but hope that all future gatherings of the Class of 1T6 will prove as successful as the first.

LAURA K. AITKEN.

LAURA AITKEN comes from Newcastle, N.B. She studied at Trafalgar Institute and Branksome Hall, and entered University College with '13. She has always been most popular with her classmates. She is a member of Sigma Beta Pi Sorority.

LILLIAN MURIEL ALLEN.

"Here is a dear, a true, industrious friend."

LILLIAN ALLEN was born in Carleton Place and there received her primary education. In 1909 she came to 'Varsity, entered the Moderns Course, and ever since has exemplified her quotation. She has taken an active interest in Y.W.C.A. and Settlement work. She was on the Y.W.C A. cabinet, and in her fourth year was the representative of the Women's Literary Society to the University Settlement.

ALICE JANE ANDERSON.

"A life that moves to gracious ends."

ALICE ANDERSON, a graduate of Branksome Hall, is a member of Class 1913, and has taken an active interest in all college affairs. As president of the Y.W.C.A. she has fulfilled all the hopes that a lovable, true and serene disposition could promise. She is a member of the Toronto chapter of the Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority.

CHRISTIAN RICHARD ANKENMANN.

"They aint any such men now, I can tell you."

CHRIS. began his terrestrial career in January, 1891, and selected Chesley for his native village. One of the small band of Commerce and Finance pioneers who have to date foiled the examiners, he has taken an active interest in various student activities, and is a member of the University Glee Club. If "goodwill" may be regarded as an asset his future business success is assured.

HARRY NELSON BARRY.

"No man hath walk't along our roads with step
So active, so inquiring eye, or tongue
So varied in discourse. . . . ."

THE subject of this dissertation was born in Guelph, Ont., in 1892, but has lived in Toronto since 1901. In the University, as a player on both the Junior and Senior Arts Rugby teams, member of the Arts Dance Committee, and of the "Torontonensis" Board, he has conferred honour upon both himself and his class.

WILLIAM JAMES BEATON.

"Oh, Romeo, Romeo! Wherefore art thou Romeo!"

BILL was born in Whitevale, was sent to Markham High School to take off the corners, and chose Political Science to give him a final polish. The result is a very smooth article indeed. Always with an eye for politics, he was president of the third year, and is now leader of the Unionists. He looks longingly upon Osgoode, and will probably send many a man down before he dies.

JOHN HENRY BIRKENSHAW.

"His form accorded with a mind
Lively and ardent, frank and kind."

FOUR years ago Henry dropped into the Registrar's officed and announced to the "August Presence" that he was going into "M. and P." No objections were raised, so we greeted him with a "Glad to know you!" Many times since we have re-echoed that formal phrase, and with added sincerity each succeeding time. Besides being a star in his chosen course, he shines as an exponent of soccer football.

M. HAZEL BLETCHER.

"The ae best fellow e'er was born"

HAZEL BLETCHER was born in Port Hope, and attended the public school and collegiate there, taking her Honour Matriculation in 1909. On entering the University she enrolled in English and History, and for four years, a member of Onety-Three, she has participated in every phase of college life, taking "all the swift advantage of the hours," filling them with much of labour, most of fun.

CHARLES HENRY BOWMAN.

"I to the world am like a drop of water,
That on the ocean seeks another drop."

BORN at Niagara Falls, where he could not "step into the same river twice," Charlie, after graduation from Stamford High School, was specially adapted to the attractive study of "flotsam" and "jetsam." "Bow," with the Greek love of proportion, combines work with pleasure, seriousness with mirth, doubt with certainty, and faith with reason. Here is, indeed, a faithful friend and genial companion.

HAROLD R. BRANDT.

"He talks at random, sure the man is mad"

BORN in Berlin, Ont., April, 1893, "Brandty" soon showed that healthy scientific curiosity which led him, after matriculating in '08, to enter C. & M. with the Class '13. At the rifle ranges and swimming pool he is equally well-known, having played with the U. of T. polo team; while in the lab. his optimism and frankness have made him popular with his fellows.

SARAH ALBERTA BROATCH.

"Machinery just meant
To give thy soul its bent,
Try thee and turn thee forth
Sufficiently impressed."

SHE was born in Trenton, Ont., where she received her high-school training. Having attended Faculty, Sarah engaged for a short time in teaching the "yonng idea." She became initiated in the Arts Course of '13 through the Summer Session of 1909—and was so impressed that she entered later as a regular student. She is president of the Inter-Collegiate Debating Union.

GEORGE MELBOURNE BROCK.

"He was a stalwart knight and keen,
And had in many a battle been."

"MEL" heard his first lullaby near London, 1888, and has shown remarkable fondness for tender voices ever since. Came to Toronto, 1909, and took a strenuous course in "Athletics" and "Fussing." When "Mel" wasn't breaking track records, captaining the basketball team, playing First Association and Rugby, or upholding Canada's prowess in England and Sweden, he was busy copping honours academically.

JOSEPH MAX BULLEN.

"From the crown of his head to the sole of his feet, he is all mirth"

OUR president was born in Toronto in 1888. He entered the University in 1909, taking Political Science. He played Mulock Cup Rugby, and was assistant secretary of the Lit. The climax of his popularity was reached in his fourth year, when, beside running Stag Night and being manager of the Senior Hockey team, he attained the presidency of his year and an invitation to the Queen's Hall Dance.

KENNETH EDWARD BURGESS.

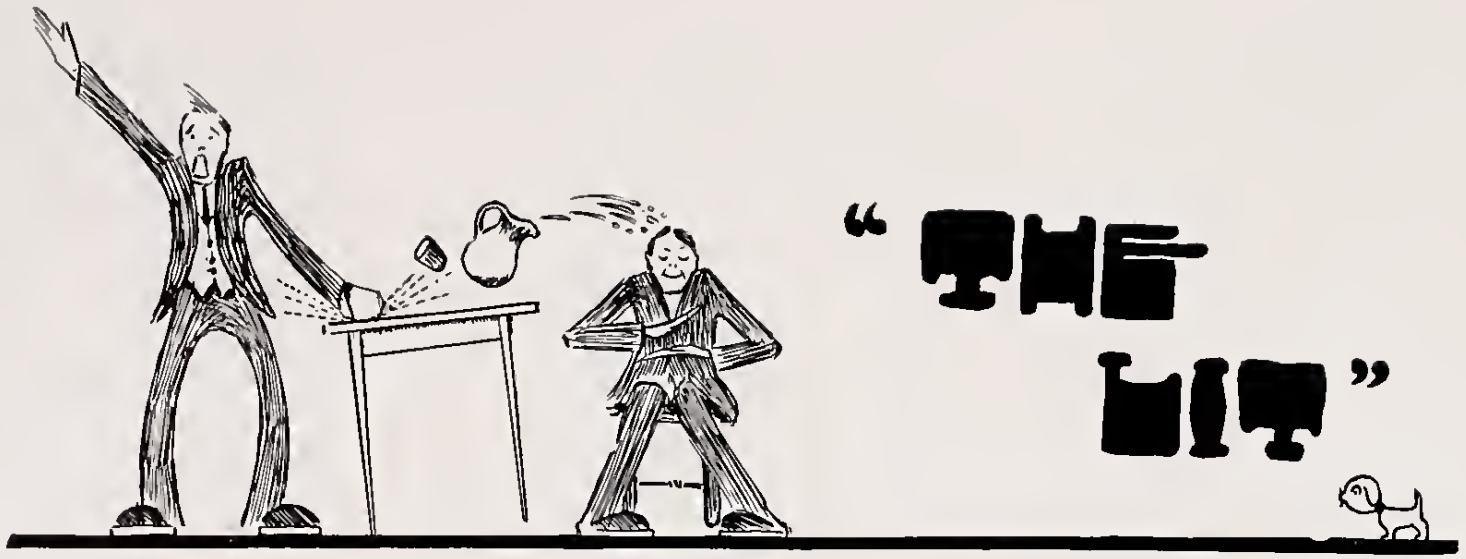
"'Fake,' said the Editor."

IT was "Ken's" lot to have his birthplace named after him, some decades before he was born. Leaving fame and Burgessville simultaneously, he fared a while on the husks at Woodstock, then repaired to Toronto to taste the sweets of the C. & M. Course. A newspaperman in his summers, he has borne the cursings of more than one city editor—and lived to curse in turn his underlings on "The 'Varsity."

MAE N. BURRISS.

"Let us then be up and doing"

MAE BURRISS was born in Kentucky, but brought up a Canadian in Port Arthur. Seeking new worlds to conquer, she came to 'Varsity and enrolled in Moderns. She at once became interested in a variety of activities truly bewildering, and has played a prominent role on the college stage in athletics, theatricals, and examinations. "A good play needs no epilogue."



THE fifty-ninth year in the history of the Literary Society at its very outset exhibited evidences of that tendency to innovate which by its final development to maturity has made it perhaps the most memorable in a career at no time uneventful. The season had scarcely opened when, by proposing that the third regular meeting should take the form of a Municipal Night, the "Old Lit." Executive demonstrated their distaste for the fetters of tradition. So signal a success did this undertaking prove that its annual recurrence is assured.

The subjugation of routine business and introduction of addresses by such well-known men as Mr. Smith-Gordon and W. F. McLean, M.P., upon themes of widespread import, have furnished further evidence of this desire to shun the beaten trail. Nor has routine business suffered because of this change. The financial reports show greater prosperity in this department of the Society's activities than has been witnessed for several years. For the first time since its establishment, sufficient refreshments were provided at the ever-popular "College Stag Night." The Arts Dance was exceptionally successful, although owing to the University's temporary lack of suitable accommodation for that function, it had to be held beyond the precincts of our Alma Mater. Those who gained admission to Convocation Hall on the evening of Mock Parliament thoroughly enjoyed themselves; but, unfortunately, seven hundred had to be turned away owing to the limited seating capacity of that building. By faculty and students alike the Annual Dinner was declared the finest ever held. The inviting of M. Bourassa, whose enlightening address contributed largely to the success of this function, is but one more instance of the Executive's endeavour to interest undergraduates in great issues.

The annual Oratorical Contest occupied its usual position of popularity among the students, while the regular meetings, and especially the Open Meeting which was addressed by Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., attracted even larger audiences than in former years.

It is one of the lessons of history that no important change is effected suddenly. Already has been pointed out the tendency prevalent during the past year to alter and inaugurate. But not until the Spring Term was it learned—and then only after a plebiscite had been taken—that complete reorganization was desired by the majority of undergraduates. As soon, however, as this fact had been substantiated, the "Old Lit." Executive, with a fearlessness characteristic of that venerable party which, alas! has ceased to be, cut loose from the familiar moorings, and accomplished the necessary stormy passage through an all but unknown sea in the interests of the progress of "The Lit." The time-honoured parties, "Old Lit." and "Unionist," are no more, and in their places stand raw recruits called Liberal, Conservative and Social Democrat. But "The Lit.," with its well-tried constitution, still endures, and that being the case, no matter how severe the storms it meet, its light cannot grow dimmer in the days that are to come.

FRANK WALKER CALLAGHAN.

"A companion that is cheerful is worth gold."

FRANK, by birth a Torontonian, received his primary education at the Junior School S.M.C., and in '08 entered University College. He has made friends everywhere, and in 1911 his popularity gained for him the presidency of the Columbian Club, in which capacity he even bettered expectation. His classmates have found him a valuable friend, sincere, broad-minded, and humorous, and will follow with interest his career in the legal profession.

GEORGE MILNE CAMERON

"Medicine ei gratissima"

On December 16, 1890, George appeared, ad lucem, destined for the profession of Hippocrates. His earliest scientific experiments in Hamilton were confined to the à priori realms of acute abdominal dolors consequent on the consumption of overdoses of poma virida, these medicaments being extracted from neighboring preserves. On this and kindred subjects, he early became an authority. His friends, comforters and advisors predict a great future for him in Medicine, if—?

CONSTANCE ARCHER CAVELL.

"She doeth little kindnesses
Which most leave undone or despise;
For naught which sets one heart at ease,
And giveth happiness or peace,
Is low-esteemed in her eyes."

CONNIE is a Toronto girl, and a graduate of Harbord Collegiate. What more need be said? At college she has found the good old General Course most congenial, and has taken a sincere interest in all student activities.

GLADNESS M. M. CHAPMAN.

"A rosebud set with little wilful thorns,
And sweet as Canadian air could make her."

SHE took the general proficiency medal from St. Margaret's College, Toronto, and entered the Moderns Course at the University. Fun-loving and mischievous, she was never profoundly impressed with the seriousness of her studies, and thoroughly enjoyed all college activities, holding offices on Class and Grace Hall Library executives. A year's holiday brought her back to '13. She belongs to Pi Beta Phi Fraternity.

FREDERICK CHARLES.

"Church and state may gang tae hell,
But I'll gang tae my Mary"

THE same spirit that caused Burns to rebel against authority is found in Fred. Fred submits to nothing unless there are reasons. In spite of this he is popular with those who know him. Born in Halton County, he graduated from Streetsville High School, and after spending a few years in teaching found himself in the University of Toronto enrolled with the philosophers.

GEORGE MURRAY CHIDLEY.

"Unless experience be a jewel; that I have purchased at an infinite rate."

"CHID." was born at Stratford in February, 1890, and received his high-school education at Caledonia. He entered 'Varsity in 1908, and distinguished himself in athletics. A conviction that consciousness of ignorance was the greatest step in knowledge begniled him into Philosophy, from which he emerged in 1912. Murray has not chosen his vocation yet, hence his prayer is "mehr licht."

JAMES COLLINS.

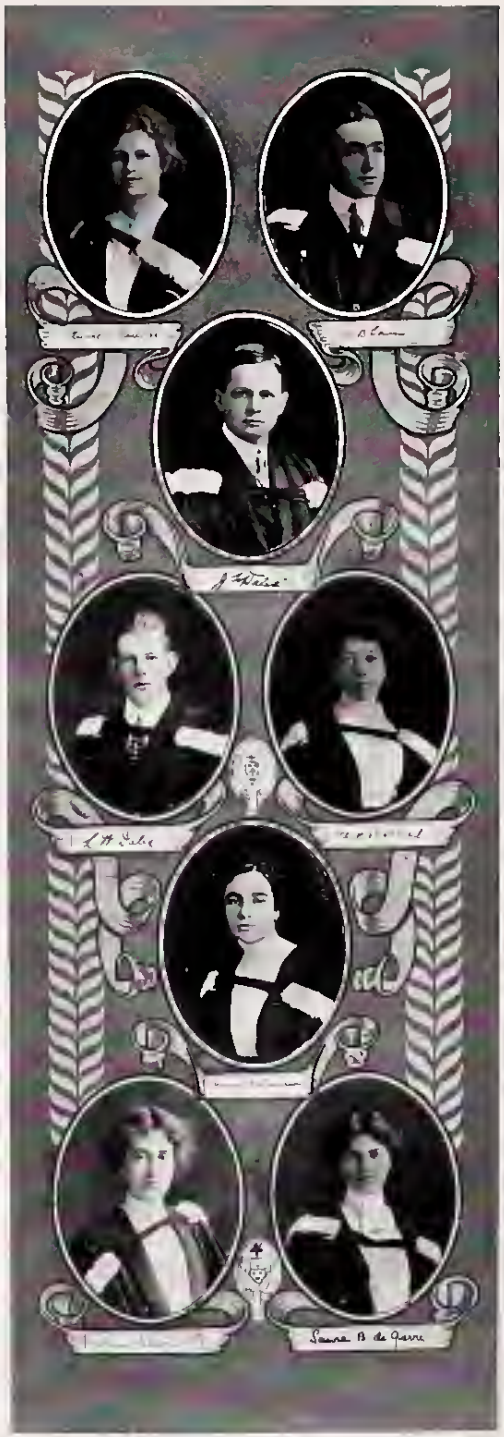
"He has a most refined, exquisite and penetrating judgment"

ALL great men are known familiarly by names other than their own; thus, the subject of this sketch is always called "John." A General Course student beaded for Osgoode, with an incidental love for Latin and Greek, "John" is one of the few to whom we can turn and discuss rationally matters of historic or of current interest. The library will miss him when he gets his parchment.

GLADYS COTTER.

"I never knew her
As otherwise than patient, glad and true"

GLADYS COTTER was born in Jamaica, W.I., and after receiving her early education at Pickering College entered the Class of '13 in English and History. She has been interested in Settlement work, and during her third and fourth years held office in the Y.W.C.A. Miss Cotter has gained the friendship of all U. C. women associated with her.



ANNIE MONTGOMERY COULTER.

"We may live without friends, we may live without books
But civilized man cannot live without cooks."

MATAICULATING from Bowmanville, Annie entered Faculty of Education in 1908, and the next year the Honour Course in Household Science. Four years of faithful devotion to her work have left her laugh as merry, and her smile as bright as ever. Her sunny nature has won her many friends, who wish her well in any calling.

WALTER BENJAMIN COWAN.

"The man worth while is the man with a smile
When everything goes dead wrong."

BACK in the nineteenth century the sparsely-settled district of Dundalk hailed Walter's appearance with delight. Since that time he has accomplished much. His course since he came to 'Varsity has been ever onwards. Zachens-like in stature, with boundless energy and an ever-present smile, the hard-working secretary of the year is familiar in all circles where good-fellowship reigns.

JOHN FRANK DALES.

"Banish plump Jack, banish all the world."

DALES, the jovial, was born in picturesque Dunbarton and received his early education there and at Whitby. Entering 'Varsity, he plunged with fiery zeal into student politics (V.P.V.) and—Modern Languages. His great executive ability found ample scope on the Lit. and Class executives and on the Arts Dinner Committee, but sated with the honours of office he now devotes his time to academics and other pursuits.

LOWELL WINDASS DALES.

"And one man in his time plays many parts."

"TOMMY" became the joy of his parents at Kingston. Kingston Collegiate tenderly nurtured him, till, moving to Toronto, he attended Harbord Collegiate, from which he matriculated. McMaster University contributed two years of training; then he transferred his affections to 'Varsity to take the B. & P. Course. He was a member of 'Varsity III. Rugby team champions in 1910, and also a member of the Senior Champions of 1911

MARJORIE JEANNETTE DARRACH.

"Oh, sleep, it is a gentle thing"

MARJORIE DARRACH was born in Toronto and received her early education at St. Thomas. In 1909 she came to 'Varsity, and since then has succeeded in never letting her studies interfere with her college course. She has been on the executive of the Women's Literary Society and the Y.W.C.A In her fourth year she was elected Head Girl of Queen's Hall.

ANNIE BELL DAVIDSON.

"Yea, thereto ye would be ready
To go to mirth, solace and play."

ANNIE has shown an unswerving love for the Alma Mater of her choice throughout her entire undergraduate life. In praise of her beloved General Course, in her duties as president of the Grace Hall Library and secretary of the Fourth Year Discussion Club, or in her staunch championship of college rites and decrees, she has proved herself a college girl who is truly ideal.

IRENE P. DAVIS.

"An equal mixture of good humour,
And sensible, soft melancholy."

IRENE DAVIS was born and educated at Wingham, whence, following the leadings of a thirst for knowledge, she came to 'Varsity. That part of her heart left free from her passion for English and History she divided impartially among social and friendly claims. Tenacious of purpose, and with never-failing ability, she has made herself so necessary as to be elected vice-president of her senior year.

LAURA BELFRY DE GUERRE.

LAURA DE GUERRE was born in Strathroy, Ontario. She matriculated from the Galt Collegiate Institute in 1908 and entered the University in 1909, enrolling in the Modern Language Course. Throughout her course she has been interested in all branches of college activity, serving in her third year on the Class Executive.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE STAG NIGHT COMMITTEE, 1912-13.

C. V. Scott, C. W. Kern, W. B. Cowan
H. A. Sinclair, J. M. Bullen, Chairman; W. J. Preston, Secretary.

LUCY HELEN DE LAPORTE.

"She needs no eulogy, she speaks for herself

SHE is a Torontonian, and not ashamed of it. She has taken a keen interest in all student activities, especially in the Discussion Club and the Dramatic Club, of which she was vice-president in her third year. She was also a member of the third year class executive. Helen is an ardent supporter of Women's Rights, and she would like to know "why should life all labour be?"

AGNESS A. DEWAR.

AGNESS DEWAR was born in Windsor, and took her preparatory education there, entering University College with '13. She has taken interest in all sides of college life, having served on the executive of the Women's Literary Society in her third year. She was also elected president of the Queen's Hall Dramatic Club.

JAMES ARCHIBALD DICKSON.

"Benevolent and kind he was, and had a smile for all"

JIMMIE was born in Goderich in 1891; otherwise it is not a bad town. He was deported to Seaforth, from which place he came to us. Incidentally he brought a scholarship in General Proficiency, but that is nothing against him. He has done well in "Physiology and Biochemistry," without allowing it to interfere with his college course. He is going into Medicine.

ROBIN MARY PERCIVAL DICKSON.

"I seem half ashamed at times to be so tall."

ROBIN DICKSON was born in Toronto. She attended first a private school, then St. Margaret's College, from which she graduated in 1908. She enrolled in University College in Moderns, and by her singing has given 1T3 many a treat. In her third year she was Musical Directress of the Class. The Alliance Francaise and also the German stage at the college have witnessed her dramatic ability.

PAUL TRIMBLE DOWLING.

THIS unfortunate victim of circumstances entered Political Science in 1909, but after a little confidential chat with Mr. Brebner in October, 1911, he turned his attention to the General. He then lost his balance completely and began assuming the responsibilities of office. Representative to the Parliament, associate editor of the "Blast," member of Arts Dinner Committee, associate editor of 'Varsity, and editor-in-chief of "Torontonensis" completes his circle of offences.

ALBERT MARTIN DOYLE.

"We ask and ask; thou smilest and art still."

DOYLES, Ontario, turned out a man of many scholarships—so much so that it took Doyle (Albert M.) two years to live down a reputation as an academic superman. Bridge helped some. His present perplexity is due to the fact that he doesn't want to make a living at classics and can't make one at bridge. He has a brilliant future behind him, and, it may be, happiness ahead.

ALBERT G. EAKINS.

"Yet tho' his caustic wit was biting, rude,
His heart was warm, benevolent and good."

PORT BURWELL looks with pride at one of her worthy sons. This one sharpened his wits communicating his early knowledge to the youth of his native land, but whether, like Socrates, he is blamed for corrupting them, we have no report. Albert has reached the graduating year at U.C. He has one eye fixed on the Bar, the other on the abolition of the bar.

GEORGE STUART EASTON.

"In aspect manly, grave, and sage,
As on king's errand come."

GEORGE hails from the Scotch settlement of Ailsa Craig. In disposition he is rather Irish, for his rebellious spirit prompted him to join the Student Volunteer Band, of which he was president for '12-'13. Many have rallied around his standard, and another Chinese revolution is evidently not far distant. M. and P. attracted him, so he is preparing for Knox by specializing in Astronomy.

WILLIAM GORDON EGBERT.

"Stuffed with all honourable virtues."

"EGGY" was born in Milverton in 1892, and went to Calgary in 1904. In the University he took Political Science, and has led that Class at the polls each May. He displayed his versatility by winning his colours on the track team, and being secretary of his year and president of the University College Athletic Association. He expects to attend Osgoode, but is considered by his classmates to be eligible for a Rhodes Scholarship.

HARDY VINCENT ELLSWORTH.

"Every man has his fault, and his is honesty."

"H. V." THRUST himself upon this long-suffering world at Ridgeway. Matriculating from Welland High School, he entered University College with the Class of '13, C. and M., and proceeded to collect honours in whatever time he could spare from his friends at the Union. Having chosen the kingdom of minerals and rocks as his field of endeavour, his greatest ambition is to bear a part in developing the mineral resources of our fair Dominion.

ROBERT KAY FAIRBAIRN.

"A truer friend were for to seek."

PUBLIC school training, Bruce County; high school work, Toronto; University Course, Philosophy; incidentals, some experience in business; hobby, preaching; characteristics, criticising the higher critics, and taking every statement made in the class-room with a large-sized grain of salt. Sincere, earnest, a hard worker, a staunch friend. That is Kay Fairbairn. We bespeak him a successful ministry in the Presbyterian Church.

HELEN FIELD.

"Faith, lady, you have a merry heart."

HAVING passed all her life within sight and sound of Alma Mater, Helen Field came, a graduate of Harbord Collegiate Institute, to enroll at 'Varsity with the Class of 1913. She chose to specialize in Moderns, and has proved herself a diligent student. A complex mingling of austerity, kindliness and merriment, the driest lectures fail to suppress her effervescent spirits.

RITA MABEL FLEMING.

"A day for toil, an hour for sport,
But for a friend, life is too short."

"RITA" came from Owen Sound to join the happy people in Mathematics and Physics, '13. Entering with an Edward Blake General Proficiency Scholarship, she has throughout held a high place in first-class honours, specializing in her fourth year in the Physics division. She has always enjoyed both work and play, and is followed by success in whatever she undertakes

CHARLES GEORGE FLETCHER.

"Much study is a weariness of the flesh"

"FLETCH." first appeared in the year 1890, just in time to see the old year out. His post office was immediately named Fletcher, which name it still has. After receiving some preliminary education at the Chatham Collegiate Institute, he wended his way to 'Varsity. After graduating in Philosophy, he will enter the Presbyterian ministry, which, it is hoped, will survive the shock.

ROBERT FORSYTHE FORSYTH.

"A wise skepticism is the first attribute of a good critic"

THE 13th of July, 1892, marks the beginning of "BOB'S" terrestrial career, and Toronto was chosen as his birthplace. He received his early instruction in Brock Avenue Public School, and, removing to Ottawa in 1905, he entered the collegiate there. In 1910 the Political Science Course at 'Varsity welcomed him as a member, and his fourth year honoured him with the office of critic.

EMILY FRASER.

EMILY FRASER received her preparatory education in Stratford. She registered in the Honour Moderns Course with the Class of '13 at Trinity. At the end of her third year, however, she came to University College to complete her senior year, and here her good nature and genial disposition have made her an appreciated acquisition to the "glorious Class" of 1T3.

BASIL MACLEAN FRITH.

"Ask the man who knows him."

BASIL MACLEAN FRITH is a son of the capital. Able, energetic, yet quiet and reserved, his close friends know him best as a prince of good fellows. The 'Varsity world knew him as a popular and enthusiastic athlete in all the fields of sport. To a man of fine parts, it is unnecessary to bespeak a successful career in the business life to which he enters upon graduation.

ROWENA GARDINER.

"A countenance in which did meet
Sweet records, promises as sweet."

ROWENA GARDINER was born in London, Ontario, where she received her preparatory education. She spent two years at Ontario Ladies' College, and entered Toronto University as a sophomore of the Class of '13. She has taken an interest in Settlement work and played on the ladies' basketball team. Miss Gardiner has extended a genuine feeling of good comradeship to all her fellow students.

WILLIAM ALLEN GARDINER.

"Tranquil his spirit seemed."

HE first saw the light, without undue excitement, in 1888, at Farquar, Huron County, Ontario. Somewhat later in life he studied at St. Mary's High School. On entering 'Varsity, he chose the Classics Course. His college career has been one of quiet study. He is not averse to mild relaxations, skating being his favourite. Clubs and the limelight-seeking side of college life do not appeal to him.

GWENDOLEN GARDNER.

"From jest to earnest."

GWENDOLEN GARDENER was born in Peterborough and "schooled" in Ottawa. A love for modern languages led her to 'Varsity. Preserving a happy balance between study and recreation, she has successfully avoided the pitfalls which yawn for unwary feet. A flow of spirits, unsuggested by her quiet manner, and a love for catchy songs, make her a good companion, and her sincerity and goodness a valued friend.

ZELLA IRENE GARVIN.

"Her air, her smile, her motions,
Told of womanly completeness."

ZELLA GARVIN was born in Hamilton, Ontario, where she received her early education. During her collegiate course she moved to Toronto. She took her first year University work at the Ontario Ladies' College, and entered the Class of '13 in her second year. She played on the ladies' basketball team and has taken a general interest in the activities of the college, where she has made many friends.

JOHN DUNBAR GIBSON.

"Conspicuous for mirth and laughter,
The ladies first, the men after."

NEAR London, September, 1892, the victim of this portrait uttered his first plaintive wail against the economic conditions of society. An inherent taste for things academic and musical, fostered at London Collegiate, was later to mature through four years with 'Varsity Commerce and Finance. The pursuit of fickle fortune is his destined career, and those who know, predict him first and foremost in things erotic and financial.

CLIFFORD B. GILL.

"The bookful blockhead, ignorantly read,
With loads of learned lumber in his head."

A SON of the farm, is a native of Blanshard Municipality, Manitoba, born 1891. He attended public school in this district, and matriculated from Brandon College in 1908. During the first two years of his Arts Course was registered in the University of Manitoba, but, descrying fairer fields afar, entered Toronto in 1911. Not content with Arts, he proposes to take an Engineering Course later.

ISIDORE GOLDSTUCK.

"Lean enough to be thought a good student."

ISIDORE was first introduced to this mundane sphere in the year 1890. Windau, in the Province of Courland, on the Baltic, was his first landing place, but he soon perceived that he needed a broader sphere for the development of his talents, and turned his face towards the land of opportunity. Here, after years of variegated experiences, he finally threw in his lot with the Modern Language Course, and a happy lot it proved.

GEORGINA GORDON.

"Still achieving, still pursuing."

"JEAN" Gordon, as she has always been known, was born in Tottenham, Ontario, and matriculated from her home school. After a year's preparatory study at Parkdale Collegiate, she entered 'Varsity in the General Course with '13. Much of her time has been devoted to advanced musical studies and to various phases of college life, so her excellent standing at her examinations is especially commendable. We predict a bright future for her.

ROBERT EVERETT GRASS.

BORN in Trenton, "Bob" matriculated from St. Andrew's College in 1908, and registered as a P.S. aspirant. He soon saw the error of his ways, and decided to graduate in the General Course In University affairs Robert has always been well to the fore. Vice-pres. U.C.A.A., member of Jennings Cup and First Football team, vice-pres. Rugby Club, sec. XIII. Club, were a few of the offices he has very ably filled.

WILLIAM HENDERSON GREGORY.

"A child, crying for the light."

WILLIAM entered with '12, combining Arts with Theology at Wycliffe. The combination could not be reconciled. so he dropped a year in Arts. Editor of the "Evening Blast" and news editor of "'Varsity," sums up his achievements in his final year. Around the "'Varsity" office "Bill" was a general favourite, and nothing was ever more interesting than to see him seated in the editor's chair propounding deep, poilosophical problems.

FREDERICK RUSSELL HALL.

UPON a farm in Durham County, F. R. Hall developed the stamina of mind and body essential to any life of greatness. Having taught for two years, he came to 'Varsity, where he has wandered through the mazy labyrinths of Honour Philosophy. He has taken a keen interest in all phases of college life, his strong social qualities and affable disposition winning for him many friends. We wish him the success which he deserves

MARGARET MURIEL HAMILTON.

"When maidens such as Margaret die,
Their place ye may not well supply"

OCCASIONALLY Margaret speaks of her school-days in Toronto, and of Smith's Falls, where she was born. She filled a place in the Class of '12 which her friends did not well supply when for a year she dropped out of college affairs. Before graduation her cheery smile will have gained her many comrades among '13.

ERNEST ALBERT HARRIS.

"He will so live that when he dies even the undertaker will be sorry."

IN Toronto, January, 1892, Ernie attended his first reception. His education at Woodstock College ended when he came to 'Varsity and entered the Commerce and Finance Course. His college career has been attended by success both in athletic and academic affairs. After graduation he intends to enter the legal profession, in which all who know him will wish him good luck.

HOWARD ARMOUR HARRISON.

"For every why he had a wherefore."

HAILING from Hamilton, Harrison intends to proceed to Osgoode and prepare for the service of Themis. Distinguished as he is by fondness for dialectic and a leaning toward rationalism, his contributions to discussion act as a solvent for non-essentials. His natural bent, strengthened by a combination of Classics, English. History, and Law, may be safely regarded as ensuring him either a short life or a gay one.

JAMES GRAY HARVIE.

JIMMIE was born in Coldwater, but as he never liked the name he is forgiven. He entered Political Science, but grew wiser as he grew older, and is now in the General. He has been known to attend a dance, has been seen at the theatre, and he has a horror of lectures. During the vacation he drives motor cars. His future is shrouded in impenetrable mystery.

HOWARD VERNON HEARST.

"So innocently wild! So bashfully irresolute!"

MR. HEARST may be said to be the embodiment of the movement in literature called Romanticism; that yearning after the ideal, and the beautiful in love. The sordid side of his nature manifests itself in his activity in Settlement work, on dance committees, and as sporting editor of the 'Varsity. His youthful enthusiasm and continued ebullition of spirits has placed him among the immortals of the year.

OLIVE ELIZABETH HENDERSON.

"Silence in woman is like speech in man."

HAILS from Burke's Falls, where she received her preparatory education. "Beth." joined the Arts Class of '13, and during her course she has always shown the keenest interest in the social and academic life of the University. Her ready sympathy, warm heart and quiet humour have impressed all who have known her.

ADELINE HILBORN.

"That's nothing to what I could say if I chose."

ADELINE HILBORN received her preparatory education at Ayr, Galt, and Harbord Street Collegiate, Toronto. She entered University College with the Class of 1913, after having previously attended the Normal School. In her third year she was secretary of the Women's Literary Society, and in her fourth the president. She is a member of the Toronto Chapter of Alpha Phi.

THOMAS FRANCIS HINDS.

"A perpetual source of sparkling epigrams"

"TOMMY" was born in Montana. After the usual excruciatingly painful process, he got in here with the rest of us, and proceeded to study History and Economics. While, no doubt, a good student, it is unquestionably true that he is fond of society. "Tommy" will likely go to Harvard to study law.

HORACE HOLMES.

"To-morrow blossoms
And bears his blushing honours thick upon him."

HORACE received his preparatory education in Toronto Public Schools and Jarvis Collegiate Institute. After winning the Edward Blake Scholarship in 1909, he registered in Mathematics and Physics. He has served on numerous committees, as president of the Class, member of the Mock Parliament, etc. By his good humour and true manliness, Horace has made many friends, who predict for him a brilliant future.

LUTHER SAWYER HOPE.

"Faith, Hope and Charity—
The greatest of these is Hope"

HIS voracious appetite—for study—was gained in six years at "Highfield." His course is C. and F., and, although his contempt for books is not the kind bred by familiarity, yet he has always succeeded at the "springtime guessing contests." At East House they will tell you he is the best judge of drama and absolutely the worst musician in the University.

JAMES HARRISON HOWELL

"I want to know the truth"

IN 1892 Harry made his appearance at Welland, but Welland couldn't help it. He entered the P. and B. Course with the Class of '13—strictly on schedule, for such is "Harry's" hobby. He has taken a deep interest in his studies, but has not allowed them to interfere with his social duties. "Harry" possesses marked ability and determination, and his many friends confidently predict for him a very successful future in Medicine

ANNIE MABEL HUNTER.

"For she's a jolly good fellow."

BORN in Toronto, "Ann" on reaching the age of discretion, attended Parkdale Collegiate. In 1908 she entered the General Course, but could not resist the attractiveness of '13. Basketball, swimming, and hockey came in for a good share of "Ann's" time, but we expect to see her settled down soon.

The University of Toronto Elysium Club

WE were sitting out an afternoon in the Union—the Occultist and I. I had been showing him a particularly fine Coles Phillips in the current Life, but he wasn't much interested.

"Too earthy, too fleshy," he complained. "By the way, how would you like a trip to the Astral Plane this afternoon?"

"Fine," said I. What the Astral Plane was I had no idea, but I like travelling. "What's on?"

I'll go on the stage as a chorus man

He leaned closer. "The Toronto University Club of Elysium meets in convention to-day. All the egos, whose reincarnated bodies are now at 'Varsity, will be there."

"You mean—our souls?"

"Souls, if you will. I call them egos. But we won't quarrel about the name. We'd better hurry, if we are going up."

He rose, but I forced him back into his chair. "Just a moment," I said, politely holding him down. "What do these egos look like? How will we know which is which? What language do they speak? What——"

"Oh, that's all easy. Each one wears the body he was last incarnated in, but he speaks the language of his present earth-shape. The ego that wears the body of Helen of Troy, for instance, speaks French mostly, for her present earth-shape is a Frenchwoman, Gaby des Lys. Julius Cæsar, on the other——"

"Slower, slower," I interrupted; "tell me one thing. Shall we see that big, beautiful Trojan doll you were talking about?"

"No. She belongs to the Footlight Club, and its members never have anything to do with the University Club people—at least, not in the afternoons. But you'll see Cæsar."

"Well," I admitted, "that's something, though I'd have given a lot to see Nellie. Has Cæsar got an earth-body attending lectures here?"

"Some Rugby player or other. Let's see, now. Gale—Dale—it's Jeff something——"

"I know. Jeff Taylor."

"That's it."

"Come on," said I. "Get a couple of lower berths, with rythmic breathing attachment, for the Astral Plane. I want to see Cæsar."

And that's how I came to take the trip.

* * * * * * * * * * * *

The Convention was held in a big stadium. We had seats in the section of the stand allotted to mystics and masters of the Black Art, which was the centre section. And after the speech-making was over, we went down on the field and wandered around among the egos, catching snatches of conversation here and there. On one side of us a Carthaginian soldier was explaining the principles of Boston pool to an Egyptian astronomer, using his pike for a cue, while nearby two Homeric butchers (evidently Medicals when on the physical plane) discussed nerves and arteries, the way the flesh-and-blood Meds. do every day in the dining-hall. A little further on two Roman dandies of the Augustine Court argued the respective merits of the Little Blue and Mission tea-rooms. For a long time I recognized no one, and I was beginning to be bored, when the gate opened and two striking-looking men entered. The larger and finer-looking was clothed in a coarse Athenian tunic; the smaller wore a more refined and noble costume of purple silk.

As a rule, I am kind.

Immediately on entering, the pair were surrounded by an excited group who greeted them with fervour.

"Bless me, if it isn't old Charlie Gage," declared one. "I thought we saw the last of you two years ago."

"Well," drawled the big fellow, "I couldn't stay away, so I came back to Science '16. It's no use me staying out of college. I'm no good to work, am I, St. Clair?"

"Not a bit," answered Craig Allen St. Clair, quite cheerfully. "At least, not unless you've changed since you posed for me the time I did the Apollo Belvidere. That job just suited you, standing round doing nothing. You were the best model I ever had."

"A Carthaginian Soldier explaining Boston Pool to an Egyptian Astronomer."

"I'd go on the stage, as a chorus man," said Charlie, gloomily, "only all the managers say red hair is a hoodoo. I don't know what to do. Every occupation is so low compared with what it used to be in Athens."

"Yes," assented the sculptor, with bitterness; "drawing cartoons for 'Varsity and the 'NENSIS is an awful come-down for me who sculped the Apollo. But we all have to take the drop."

"Oh, I don't know," put in a thin youth. "I used to be a slave running before Cæsar's chariot and yelling out, 'Hail, Cæsar!' Now I lead the rooting at the Rugby games, and have conferences with people like Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir John Gibson. We don't all drop. I expect to be a baseball umpire in my next——"

"Who said Cæsar?" demanded a stern-looking fellow, with a thick, gruff voice, who had just come up. "I don't want to hear anything against Cæsar, because I'm him, and I'll—— Was it you, McKay?" he snorted, catching the sculptor by the neck and brandishing his short sword.

"Oh, no, bless you, sir; no, oh, no, not at all. It was Dutch over there."

"Cool off, Jeff. Here comes Christie," said someone. I looked around quickly, half expecting to see brass buttons and the John A. Macdonald pose that Christie assumes when on earth. But the approaching personage was about seven feet high, and girded with a tremendous club. By his hair, which hung to the waist, I knew him at once for Samson.

"Morning, fellows," said Samson, genially, leaning on his club. "What's wrong with that 'Varsity team this year? They don't seem to get away with more than one game a month."

"They'll win on Saturday, if Parker's in goal," said a young man in the robes of a priest of Bacchus. (His earth-shape was quite evidently in its freshman year.) "Where is that icicle, anyway. Isn't he coming to the convention this year?"

"Well, what the—— What d'you know about—— Of all the—— Well, such is fame!" These remarks broke from the mouth of a handsome young gladiator on the outside of the group. His face was livid with indignation, as the torrent of words poured forth. "Me not at the convention! Me! William Parker! Not at the convention! Why, let me tell you, you little devil, without me it wouldn't be a conven—— O, horrors! O, Biltaft! And have I lived so long for this? Kind sirs, lead me away. I am weak."

Whereupon he departed in high dudgeon. The group was breaking up, and the Occultist and I turned away to leave, when I stumbled across a form lying, face downward, in the astral dust. He raised himself on one elbow when I looked back, and I saw that he was young, with hard, gleaming muscles, but wearing a countenance prematurely aged by care. He had been weeping.

"I hope I didn't hurt you," I said. As a rule I am kind.

"Aw, it don't m-m-matter. It d-d-don't make any diff'rence. I don' care a b-b-bit. You can kick me again, if yuh like."

Surprised to hear such grammar from a youth of so distinguished mien, I turned inquiringly to the Occultist. He divined my intent, and answered my question before I asked it.

"Do you remember reading about the chap who made record time between Athens and Sparta to call the troops to battle?"

"That Beautiful Trojan Doll"

I did. And at the same moment I recognized the voice of Bud, post-office messenger and maid-of-all-work to the 'Varsity office.

"What's the big trouble, Bud?" I asked, leaning over him.

"Aw, nuthin'. Only nobody pays any attention to me now, an' I used to be able to run faster than any of them. An' even that kid that does errands at the press kin lick me. An' nobody loves me but

LAWRENCE INGRAM HUNTER.

"He loved not man the less but nature more"

ALTHOUGH remembering with pride his rural birthplace, "Laurie" vowed not allegiance at the shrine of Ceres. The call of the Muses awoke an echo in his soul. After graduating from the Arthur High School at the head of his Class, for three years he guided a younger generation to the springs of knowledge. Then with 1T3 he continued the pursuit of wisdom at 'Varsity.

VIOLET M. HYLAND.

VIOLET M. HYLAND was born in Whitby. She matriculated from Westminster College and entered University College with '13. During the four years of her college career she has won the affections and respect of all with whom she has been associated. She is a member of the Sigma Beta Pi.

HARRIET INGHAM.

"Having the graces of speech and skill in the turning of phrases"

AFTER matriculating from the Bishop Strachan School, Toronto, Harriet Ingham entered 'Varsity in the English and History and Moderns Courses. Notwithstanding her aversion to nine o'clock lectures, she has always taken high honours in both departments. A companion in merriment, a friend in need, and a guide in literary matters, she has been much sought after as a writer of biographies.

JAMES THOMAS JENKINS.

"His step is first in peaceful ha',
His sword in battle keen"

"Well, fellows, 'tis a weary world we're livin' in the noo'," but Jim never wearies of things worth while. His ability for teaching and student work in Mathematics, his love for athletics and the scenic wilds, his sportsmanlike appreciation of well-bred horses and dogs, bespeak an all-round man. His genial courtesy and very evident "good-fellowship" have won him many friends.

ROBERT BLAND JOHNSTON.

"Of manners gentle, of affections mild,
In wit a man. . . . . "

THE showers must have ceased when Robert uttered his first "goo-goos" in 1891. Graduating from Jarvis Collegiate, he entered the Political Science Course at 'Varsity, and was elected president of the Freshman Class of 1T3. "Bob" has held office in the Undergraduates' Parliament, on the "'Varsity" staff, and the Arts' Dance and Dinner Committees, and was secretary of the Literary Society. He will attend Osgoode Hall.

HENRY HALL JOHNSTONE.

"A dancing shape, an image gay,
To haunt, to startle, and waylay"

ONCE upon a time Henry was in '12, but that is another story. He has been with us throughout all our journey in the wilderness, nestling among his classmates as a rose among thorns. Always ready to cut a lecture, with a faculty for choosing good friends and borrowing their tobacco, the very sight of him chases away our melancholy.

LESTER MILLMAN KEACHIE.

WAS born in Toronto in 1889, and received his preparatory education at Jarvis Street Collegiate, matriculating from there in 1904. After spending several years in business, he enrolled in University College with the Class of 1913. He is a member of the XIII. Club.

M. WILKS KEEFER.

"Still waters run deep."

THE subject of this sketch made his debut in our planet A.D. 1891. For his first eight years he inhabited the town of Galt. Becoming restless, however, he transferred himself to England. Returning in two years and matriculating from St. Albans, he joined the 1912 Class. After three years of ceaseless labour, persistent wanderlust impelled him to recross the seas. Now, returning to the attack, he graduates in the congenial atmosphere of year thirteen.

"Fie upon this quiet life: I want work."

"DAN." has spent all his home life in Stratford, where he first saw light on November 14, 1890. Passing through the public and High Schools of the Classic City, he matriculated in 1907. After successfully spending the following two years in Collegiate there he entered University College in 1909 with the M. and P. Class of 1913. "Dan." is an ardent student and intends to pursue Actuarial work.

EDWARD ERNEST KERN.

"Take heed to yourself, for the devil is unchained."

IN the cold of January, 1891, the angels, after a stormy passage, hove to at a lonely ranch near Medicine Hat, with a golden-haired youth in tow. The angels escaped. He learned much wisdom at Moose Jaw, then trekked further East toward the wise men. He played Hockey and Lacrosse right well, studied some, and hopes the angels may again visit him. We hope so, too, but he may become a lawyer.

MAYBELLE GLADYS KERR.

"Thou hast wit, and fun, and fire."

MAYBELLE KERR, although born in Winnipeg, early came to live in Owen Sound, where she received her Academic training in the Collegiate Institute. On her graduation in 1909 she entered 'Varsity, registering in Moderns. Throughout her College course she has taken an active part in Athletics, winning fame for herself aod her College on the Basketball team.

VIOLET ISABELLE KEYS.

"Ye are sae grave, nae doubt ye're wise."

BORN in Clarksburg, Isabelle Keys attended High School in Meaford and Orangeville. After graduating from the faculty of Education she entered 'Varsity, enrolling in Moderns, to which course she has heen a credit ever since. In her second year she was Vice-President of the year, Basketball Curator and Modern Language Club Representative. Spanish plays and Basketball are grateful to her.

EVA WILLARD KING.

"Let me hear her laughter."

EVA KING hails from the farmland near Hickson. She attended the Woodstock Collegiate, from which she matriculated, 1908. After remaining a year at home, she registered at 'Varsity with the class of Onety-three in the English and History Course with Moderns option. In her fourth year she was Class Historian. She hrings with her the fresh atmosphere of the farm, its frankness, and its wholesome fun.

WILLIAM P. KRUG.

"Fond of lessons and infatuated with Sunday-School (?)"

"BILL'S" earthly debut was made at Chesley in July, 1890. After the usual preparation he entered the Commerce aod Finance Course at 'Varsity. He bas been a first tenor in the Glee Club for four years aod is now President of the South Residence. The good wishes of "Bill's wide circle of friends will attend him in his struggle with the hard, cold world.

GROVER STANLEY LLOYD.

"A man he seemed of cheerful yesterdays
And confident to-morrows."

"STAN." prefers action to speculation, hence the success of Premier (G. S.) Whitney's Governmeat for a couple of bours, at least, during the Mock Parliament of 1912. He has also ably handled the cash for Class and Y Executives. For exercise he indulges in Soccer, Basketball or Hockey, but for recreation, he prefers "Greek and Hebrew." His kindly manner and genial disposition have made him many friends.

MELVILLE ELLIOT LOBB.

"Of making many books there is no end, and much study is a weariness of the flesh."

THE Rugged Rockies, Smiling Ontario, Merry England, the old swimmin' hole, the martial camp and the athletic field have all heen forces in developing a versatile nature. But it is to his Alma Mater and Mathematical Course that Melville ascribes the premier honour for knocking off rough corners from a mind requiring a six-foot-two frame and a seven-and-a-quarter hat.

HUBERT WISE LOFFT.

"Lines of thought upon his cheek
Did deep design and counsel speak."

THERE was born in the year 1891, in the town of St. Marys, one, afterwards named Hubert Wise Lofft. Enrolled in C. and F., he has been a good man for his College, has served on the Lit. Executive, on the dance committee, and in various other ways has identified himself with progressive movements (ex. the dance) in College life. Everyone wishes "Hub." continued success.

LELIA REBEKAH LYONS.

"A countenance in which did meet
Sweet records, promises as sweet."

LELIA R. LYONS was born in Weston, Ontario. She registered in the Modern Language Course at University College with the Class of '11, but illness and possibly the lure of the Western Prairies deferred her graduation until 1913. Lelia's sunny disposition has won for her many friends during her College career, and their wish is that Fortune may ever smile upon her.

HUGH NEIL MACCORKINDALE.

"A simple child."

HUGHIE early showed a bent for learning—it is even rumoured he could pronounce his own name at ten, and give its various spellings at twelve. The result was, that after preparing at Owen Sound C.I., he entered '13 in the Mathematical Course. He has held office as Secretary of his Class, of the Lit., of the M. and P. Society, and so ad infinitum. He also debated for the University against Ottawa.

G. L. B. MACKENZIE.

"These sweet thoughts do even refresh my labours"

HOWEVER simple his method in the pursuit of wisdom, George knows thoroughly how to apply himself, and certainly gets good results. Femininity and History are his specialties, though he is a fellow of broad interests. Damsels, dingies, dactyls and dynasties are all objects of his capacious attention. Born, Toronto, 1892; educated, U.C.C. and Lausanne, Switzerland.

MARY ELIZABETH MACKENZIE.

"Ich dien."

PURE and exalted in motive, practical and enthusiastic in ambition, energetic and capable in achievement, the subject of this sketch has been successful, whether riding bronchos on Western plains or studying bio-chemistry in Eastern cities. Her sympathetic sincerity, pleasing social ability, and modest dignity have made for her many friends. Her intellect alive to the responsibilities of true citizenship, her heart aglow to assist the weak, these spell greatness for her influence and honour for her Alma Mater.

HARRIET MACKLIN.

"By nature warm, by nature bright"

WHEN Harriet's "Classic" education at Loretto Convent and the Collegiate was completed, she left Stratford and began a "Modern" career in University College. Success has attended her in her undergraduate days and to-morrow's "prohs." are fair. Considering Hattie's bright and amiable disposition, it is not difficult to prophesy that her course through life will be accompanied by the best wishes of an ever-increasing circle of friends.

IDA FISHER MACLACHLAN.

"Her neat cookery! She cut our roots in characters;
And sauced our broths, as Jove had been sick,
And she his dieter."

HAVING lived practically all her life in Toronto, Ida naturally attended Harbord Street Collegiate. On entering the University she joined the Household Science Class. Not satisfied with purely domestic accomplishments, she found an antidote in fencing and paper-chases, and has served on the Athletic Executive. All other College activities have also had her hearty support.

MARY ALMA MACLAREN.

"Much study is a weariness."

MARY ALMA MACLAREN was born in Toronto. She received her preparatory training at St. Joseph's College and entered 'Varsity with '13. The only course of lectures which Alma enthused over were those of the Scottish poets. She is an ardent Caledonian and carries with her the refreshing fragrance of the heather. She bears the burden of her learning lightly and takes a lively interest in Academic life outside the classrooms.

Herbie Taylor, an' he says he isn't coming to the convention, because he's ascared of Hugh Maclanchlin, because he stole the Lit.'s ticket to the Queen's dance. An' I don't have no fun nohow."

I started to comfort the poor boy, but just then a villainous-looking Jew, with a bag of gold tight-clutched in one hand, stole up, his shifty eyes seeming to pierce the dull atmosphere on every side. Kneeling down at my feet, he whispered in the ear of the young runner, who immediately jumped up and embraced him.

"Gee, Herbie, I'm awful g-g-glad you come," he cried, in an ecstasy of joy. "No, Big Mac ain't near here. I saw him going off to help Beaton and that Unionist gang to form a Lib'ral party. You needn't be scared."

"Scared!" echoed the Jew, growing very bold, on hearing that his enemy was nowhere near. "Huh! Look at this bag of money, Bud. That's fees. I squeezed that out of the loafers that hang around the Union. Do you know what I'm going to do with it? I'm going to start a new party, Bud, and smash the Liberals to pieces. I'm a Socialist. I believe that everyone has a right to say what he thinks. And anyone who says a word against that will get this fist in his face. See?"

"That's w-w-what I say, Herbie," declared Bud; and they went off arm in arm.

* * * * * * * * * *

Suddenly the Occultist grabbed my arm. "My God!" he whispered, "let's get out of here."

"What's wrong now?" I asked, for I was just beginning to get interested.

"Look what's coming. It's my ego, and if he finds me here there'll be the very dence to pay."

I looked. Rolling along on its side, a big tub approached, and, curled up inside it, a wizened-up old man, who held a lantern by a swivel-ring, so that it remained upright, while the tub and its occupant revolved. Already the Occultist had fled, but I waited a moment longer. The tub was being pushed along by a very old man, who wore a medal, inscribed, "President of the Ananias Club." When the tub was opposite me it stopped and the old man spoke.

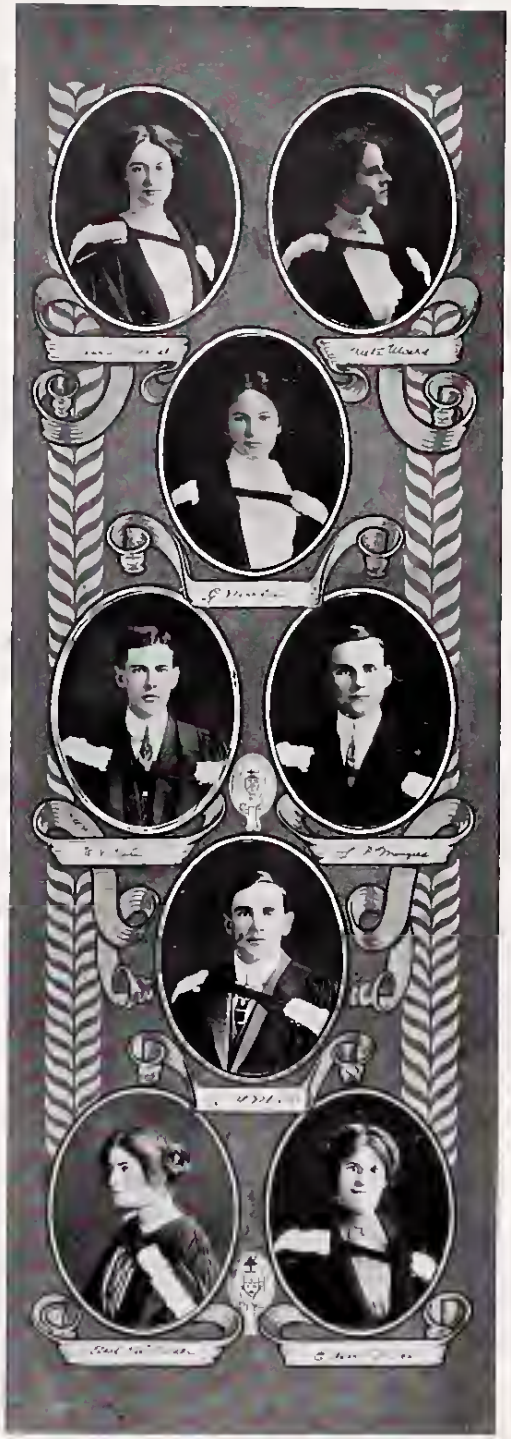
"Say, Diogenes, I don't believe there's any use trying to find an honest man in this club. Let's give up."

"You're right. Come on into the tub and have some beer. And try to forget for a moment that you're the Habitual Highbrow, and remember that you're Ananias. Although, I suppose, in the long run it doesn't matter much."

I didn't stop running till I was back in the Union.

JAMES HENRY PEDLEY.

"Let's get out of here," said the Occultist.



BESSIE MACNAB.

"As gay as any."

BESSIE MACNAB was born in Claremont where she received her primary education. Later she entered Jarvis Collegiate Institute from which she graduated in 1909. When she entered 'Varsity she enrolled in Moderns. During her college course she made her debut on the stage, starring in French and German plays. Her many friends will recognize her in the above quotation.

META CONSTANCE MAIRS.

"She seemed as happy as a wave
That dances on the sea"

META CONSTANCE MAIRS received her early education in Markham, entering the Honour Modern Language Course at Trinity with the Class of '12. On returning from a trip abroad, which deferred her graduation till '13, she registered at University College. Meta's bright smile and clever repartee have made her a general favourite at 'Varsity.

GRACE MARTIN.

"And still the wonder grew,
How one small head could carry all she knew."

GRACE was indeed an "infant phenomenon." When just nicely out of her cradle she graduated from St. Mary's Collegiate with the second Edward Blake Scholarship in Mathematics and Moderns. She then entered 'Varsity to specialize in Mathematics, and in her second year added the Fulton Scholarship to her list of honours. She was a general "good sport," in private tutoring and atlilities.

WILLIAM HOWARD MARTIN.

"Verily, this is too tame."

MART's Academic progress in St. Mary's, and later in the Department of Chemistry and Mineralogy has, to date, been more or less orthodox. Of greater interest than these details is the fact that, despite his large number of Scholarships, Mart. has become a general favourite for his unassuming ways. Possessing a large "capacity for taking pains," this true chip of the old block promises a pedagogical career not without distinction.

LESLIE PROCTOR MENZIES.

"Knowledge is proud that he has learned so much;
Wisdom is humble that he knows no more."

LESLIE is an offspring of Lambton County. In '09 he took shelter under the canopy of the blue and white, entering with the Biology Class of '13, where he has been aptly fitted for his vocation in life. Those with whom he became acquainted found him a true friend and companion.

ALEXANDER McFARLANE MILLER.

"Ye are sae grave: nae doat ye're wise"

"ALEC" says he is going to be a preacher, but he is by nature a philosopher, and his remarks during a dry lecture are as welcome as an oasis in a desert. Like Socrates, his chief pastime is to prove to all his friends that they know nothing. "Alec" is a person of all dimensions, a broad Scotchman, a deep philosopher, and a man of high ideals.

ETHEL M. MILLER.

ETHEL M. MILLER claims Niagara Falls, New York, as her native city. She attended public and High School there and entered 'Varsity with the Class of 1912, registering in the General Course.

E. MURIEL MILLER.

"She strove the neighbourhood to please,
With manners wondrous winning,
And never followed wicked ways
Unless when she was sinning"

MURIEL MILLER is a Toronto girl. She received her public school training here, and graduated with honours from Parkdale Collegiate Institute in 1909. The following fall she registered in University College in the Household Science Course in which she has always attained high honours, including first place in 1912.

JOEL MURRAY MITCHELL.

"In close fights a champion grim,
In camp a leader sage"

MURRAY is a Scotch "Grit" from Watford, and has made quite a name for himself while here. He was Secretary of the First Year, Chairman of the Arts Dinner Committee and Adviser-extraordinary to the "Old Lit. Party." About once a year he has taken first class honours in Political Science. Of an even and judicial temperament, we submit that eventually he will supersede Blackstone.

CHARLES HASSEL MORSE.

"Give fools their gold, and knaves their power;
Let fortune's bubbles rise and fall;
Who sows a field or trains a flower
Or plants a tree, is more than all."

CHARLES HASSEL MORSE was born at Adelaide, Ont., June 11, 1888. He entered upon the study of Forestry upon his father's farm, but later enlarged this to include Arts at the rural school and the Strathroy Collegiate. After teaching for three years he entered upon a six-year course at 'Varsity.

JESSIE LOUISE MUIRHEAD.

"She has wit, and song, and sense,
Mirth, and sport, and eloquence."

JESSIE MUIRHEAD has spent all her short, sweet life in the City of Toronto. She graduated from East Toronto High School with honour matriculation and then entered 'Varsity in the M. and P. Course where, she has kept up her good record for success. She is "pretty to walk with, witty to talk with, and pleasant too, to look on."

PERCIVAL CRAICK MULHOLLAND.

"Remote, unfriendly, melancholy, slow."

COMING to 'Varsity in 1908, he entered the Political Science Course, but later, believing that the General Course provided a more cosmopolitan education, he transferred. As Secretary of his year, a member of the Mulock and Jennings Cup teams, President of the University College Athletic Association, Manager of the 'Varsity I Rugby team, and a member of the XIII Club, "Slick" has actively participated in all branches of undergraduate life.

MARY ADELAIDE CLARE MURPHY.

"We met, we liked—and liking Grew into friendship soon."

CLARE was born in Toronto. She received her earlier education at St. Joseph's Convent, later entering University College with '13, and taking the General Course. Her activities have not been restricted to any one side of College life as she has given her enthusiastic support to the Tennis and Hockey teams, the Class Executive and the Athletic Association, of which she was an able President.

JAMES RALPH MUTCHMOR.

"He has, ay, some cause to smile."

JAMES RALPH MUTCHMOR, an emanation of Providence Bay, is an enthusiastic philosopher of the analytico-synthetic school. As Whip for the Mock Parliament and President of the Y.M.C.A. he has done well, his sunny smile and ardent appeals never failing to arouse the emotions of his fellow students. We hope that, through him, the restoration of the divine rule of Providence and the subjugation of Sin and Satan may be accomplished.

ERNEST LEONARD McCOLL.

"Kind hearts are more than coronets,
And simple faith than Norman blood."

ERNEST LEONARD MCCOLL was born in Toronto and received his preliminary education at Jarvis Street Collegiate. He took a keen interest in University life, especially in Rifle Association. He was a member of the Militia, holding the rank of Major in that ancient and honourable cavalry corps, the Governor-General's Body Guard.

WILLIAM PORTEOUS McCOWAN.

"There's no grander sight in al creation than a Scotchman in the making."

NOBODY knows where "Bill" went to public school, but records show that Markham High School once had him as a pupil. Having resisted the temptations of that thriving metropolis he came to Toronto with a York County chisel to carve out his fame on the anatomies of sundry frogs. Last year he stood second in his class and never had a star. "Bill" will join the Class of '16 in Medicine.

CRAIG-ALLAN ST. CLAIR McKAY.

"Just like most men, only more so."

RECEIVED the usual pre-Varsity education at Woodstock. Has taken unusual interest in University matters. Sec.-Treas. Literary Society, Member of Undergrads. Parliament, Sec.-Treas. University Historical Club, Arts Dance Committee 1911 and 1912, Sec. Treas. University Theatre Night. One of the best cartoonists "Varsity" has had, and twice President of the famous East House. Sincerity and energy anger well for his success as a grad.

P.S.—He reads "The Globe"

HUGH JOHNSTON McLAUGHLIN.

"Sana mens in sano corpore"

The subject of this famous perjury made his initial bow before the world some twenty years ago in the town of Lindsay. Since that time he has been chiefly occupied in bringing despair to his tutors and confusion to the Unionists. At present the Modern History Course and the Vice-Presidency of the Lit. are the media through which he is operating. He intends to be a lawyer. Evil doers and Conservatives beware!

MARY AIKEN McLELLAN.

"Dear were her charms to me;
Dearer her laughter free;
Dearest her constancy."

MARY MCLELLAN spent her earliest years on a farm near Weston. She attended Weston High School for four years, winning honours in examinations as well as in Literary circles. After six months at West Toronto Collegiate, she entered 'Varsity in M. and P. Her merry smile and unfailing good humour win all hearts.

ARNOLD RODERICK McLEOD.

"Incentives come from the soul's self; the rest avail not."

ARNOLD RODERICK MCLEOD was born at Covehead, P.E.I., July 23, 1892. He began his public school course at Newcastle, Ont., in 1898. Later he attended the public schools of Westville and of Truro, N.S. From 1905 to 1909 he studied in Truro Academy, and then entered University College, Toronto, selecting as his special course Mathematics and Physics.

ARLOTTA HAZEL McNEELY.

"With divers plans and lofty aspirations"

A LUCKY star shining above Medicine Hat in Southern Alberta guided Arlotta McNeely to the Class of '13. Leaving work to take care of itself, she entered into all pleasures in her breezy Western fashion and assisted in guiding the executive ship through the storms of the second year. In all her many plans and ambitions for the future may she still be guided by the same star.

JAMES McQUEEN.

"He was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians."

THIS canny Scot was ushered into the heather-clad hills of Grey County about a quarter of a century ago. He has always been a very keen, thorough student, as his high school and University careers show. He entered with '13 in the Mathematics Course, has always been in first-class honours, and also has taken an active interest in every phase of college life.

KATHLEEN P. McVEAN.

MISS KATHLEEN MCVEAN was born in Dresden, Ontario. Her education, begun in that town, was supplemented by four years at Westminster College. Miss McVean brought to her university life the ardor and earnestness which Westminster loves to cultivate, and in all the activities of college she has displayed these characteristics. Loyalty to her work, energetic devotion to college institutions, and a genuine spirit of camaraderie have made her a useful citizen of the college world.

HENRY LUSCOMBE NICHOLSON.

"Speak not to me of woman."

"NICK," as he is rather aptly called, is a native of St. Catharines. At 'Varsity he has been extremely prominent in social, literary, and athletic circles. He has been class critic and was secretary of the University College Athletic Association. As inside wing on the First Rugby team he distinguished himself in the season of 1912. The Anglican Church will find in him a staunch pillar.

The Passing of '13

NOW the Lords of the Council were gathered together in assembly and did discuss many things. And there entered unto them the Advocate (who sitteth in room 5, seeking whom he may pluck).

And the Lords of the Council spake unto him and said: "Go forth and disturb the equanimity of our servant, Onety-Three, for we cannot, whereof we are much cast down."

Therefore went out the Advocate and encountered Onety-Three, who was now an old man nearing the day on which he should dissolve. And the Advocate spake unto him and said:

"Wherefore is thy head so high, and thy tie so neatly tied? Dost thou think there are none other like thee?" But Onety-Three lifted up his voice and spake and said:

"Doth not Wilson sit day by day in the library and cleave unto Economics, and doth not Mutchmor work as gallantly on Sunday as he worketh valiantly the other days?

"Did not Stevenson hate instruction and despise reproof and thereby be true to the motto of his year? Yea, and Wilkes curseth the Borden Navy, and sayeth that there is no emergency.

"The tongue of Perry Park is as choice silver, and his good-fellowship covereth all his sins, but Smith doth sit in the Union and muse upon the time that he was young.

"Fulton Wallace lost half his life when the Old Lit. died, but he despaireth not and worketh ever hard. Parker faints not in the day of adversity, for his strength is great.

"Telfer attends lecture in his old age as a penance for his wasteful youth, and Harold Wallace writeth for a newspaper and has fallen low. Pedley, like Samson of old, is in the hands of the Philistines and followeth Henry George.

"The hand of the diligent maketh rich, so Shulman will be impeached as a plutocrat; as for Walker, many have done virtuously, but thou exceedest them all.

"Platt hath shown his face again and become exceeding smooth. How long wilt thou sleep, O Red Thomson; when wilt thou arise from thy slumber, for doth thou not know that he who dealeth with a slack hand becometh poor?

"Did not Vanston make many hearts glad because he hated receptions? Surely the Union hath Qua in its clutches; Settering-ton now draweth up lists of men, instead of lists of books.

"Why does Treadwell mourn? Does he not yet know his time-table? Gilbert and Sullivan hath turned the head of Richardson; while Roach rusheth about and muttereth, 'My ducats, my ducats, a daughter for my ducats!' "

Then did the Advocate go back to the Lords of the Council and speak and say, "I can do nothing with him; he is a holy man." But the Lords of the Council did cry as one voice, "Pluck him! pluck him! bring us his goat!" and the Advocate went forth again.

And as he came near Onety-Three, the old man did raise his eyes and look afar off towards Queen's Hall, as if he saw a vision, and cried:

"Lo! Ankenmann leaveth dances early in order to attend them again next night, and Mitchell, who was great in his youth, now foldeth his arms and thinketh on Education.

"Gardiner is a man of understanding and of excellent spirit; Barry doth possess a merry heart and is as good as a Med, and McLaughlin is the desideratum of my house.

"Gibson is nice and danceth much, and, like a friend, loveth at all times. Beaton is as Demosthenes risen amongst us, and causeth the moon to go behind a cloud by his eloquence.

"MacCorkindale says little, but goes out much, and Ellsworth has studied Life in the Union and smoked away his inheritance.

"MacKenzie is as Gibbon amongst us; Grass doth hearken to instruction, is wise and refuseth nothing.

"Hath not Brock always done me honour, running always swiftly; a wise son that gathereth in the summer. McKay has been as a guide to the erring, correct from morn to night, from head to foot.

"Egbert doth run well, and write well, is prudent and crowned with knowledge. Bullen hath fallen from his lofty stand and loveth Queen's Hall.

"Lofft is a model to all men and is favoured by the fair; Gregory did great evil in writing a Blast, and hath ever since been sought in revenge, and hath been removed from his high estate.

"Burgess is a man of patience, who vainly sought editorials from his associates, until his associates were associates no more."

Then, again, did the Advocate go unto the Lords of the Council and report no progress, and, again, was he sent forth. And Onety-Three did lift up his voice and say:

"Lloyd did trick himself up in vain clothes and did stand before a crowd and did be a playactor, so henceforth he is a stranger to me.

"Eakin dreameth continually of a great plain called 'The West,' for he loveth Ottawa no more; Callaghan doth read much and copieth what he readeth and getteth away therewith.

"Kern is full of love toward a certain subject called 'History of Philosophy,' and Hall doth mourn an overcoat, which cost many shekels.

"Collins is a man of understanding and holdeth his peace, and according to his wisdom is he commended. Doyle smileth ever and studieth less and less, and in his company there is favour.

"For Dales knoweth that in too much wisdom is much grief, and that a little recreation is relished before the Sabbath day.

"Henry Johnstone hath seen all the works that are under the sun, and all is vanity and vexation of spirit. That there is no remembrance of former things is a great delight to Harris.

"Bob Johnston was great and increased more than all the men in college, and fussed much. Dickson is subtle and much acquainted and little known.

"But Harvie remaineth a simple child, and, as Diogenes searched for the truth and found it not, so did Hinds seek for his Ethics Supp.

"Hearst rejoiceth in his youth and walketh in the way of his heart, and has not yet said that he taketh no pleasure therein."

Then did the old man's limbs totter and his eye grow dim and his voice become weak, and he sank to the ground.

And all the glories of the past rose to his vision, and he cried out: "There was never yet man like me; no, nor never will be; I am unique, and that word will be placed above my grave."

Then he stretched forth his hands, and, it being the sixth of June, he passed into the Unknown.

And the Advocate returned to the Lords of the Council and told them what had come to pass.

Whereupon they said, "It is well," and rose up and scattered over the face of the earth until October.

KENNETH BROCK O'BRIAN.

". . . Read thy own breast right,
Man gets no other light,
Search he a thousand years."

KENNETH BROCK O'BRIAN was born in 1887, in Toronto. There he entered the Provincial Model School in 1896, and in 1906 left Harbord Street Collegiate Institute to be a freshman of University College. He subsequently spent two years with the Faculty of Applied Science. But in the end he was naturalized into '13, and with '13 he remains to this day.

FLORENCE BEATRICE SHIPLEY O'CONNOR.

"Just one girl."

FLORENCE BEATRICE SHIPLEY O'CONNOR is the only '13 graduate in Natural Science Physics—"straight Physics," as she calls it. She attended public school in Teeswater, S. Bruce, but matriculated from H. C. I., Toronto, the only one in her class with honours in the three Science divisions.

"Miss Mattie," as her Cranford friends still call her, is a lover of art and music, and a pleasing poet. Success to her!

GEORGE WILFRED OLIVER.

"I am not in the roll of common men"

GEORGE was born at Eberts, Kent Co. He matriculated from Chatham C. I., where he proved himself a lad o' pairts. Failing to discover the philosopher's stone down on the farm, he entered 'Varsity to continue the search. He has served on the class executive, and is an enthusiastic soccer player. Nothing short of the Moderator's chair of the Presbyterian Church will satisfy his ambition.

ANDREW PERRY PARK.

"Whittled into shape with his own jack-knife."

"PERRY" is a Toronto boy, and a graduate of Jarvis to boot. At the University he has been ceaselessly active in athletics, the Y.M.C.A., the Mock Parliament, the "Lit," and—bis studies. He has developed the ability to smile under difficulties. This, and his resourcefulness, will make him a power among men and boys, wherever fate, or his promise as a student volunteer, will carry him.

WILLIAM CABEL PARKER.

"Hence! loathed melancholy"

BILL swallowed his first dose of soothing syrup near Brockville, 1890, shortly after which the paternal abode and incidentally Bill shifted to Brandon. He early showed discretion by enrolling in Political Science, attaining honours every year. Chairman of Stag Night, cutting bread, and copping his "T" with four years' hockey, are his specialties. Bill takes everything in moderation but "fussing." The Western legal profession will be enriched by his practical ability.

GORDON CUMMINGS PATTERSON.

"Work and win"

P. was born in Toronto, October 2, 1890. He passed through Rosedale public school, and after a year at Wellesley school removed to Barrie. In the Barrie Collegiate he met with considerable success, attaining first-class honours in the junior matriculation and senior teachers' examinations. In 1909 he entered Toronto University, and passed with first-class honours in Moderns each year, winning the Italian Prize in 1910 and 1911.

JAMES HENRY PEDLEY.

"May Jove in his next commodity of hair
Send thee a beard."

BEFORE crossing the mystic threshold of Plato, James took the precaution of being born in Vancouver and "getting educated" at St. Andrews College, Toronto. Already "a journalist of considerable experience and undoubted ability," some day he will write a book. When last seen he was in the English and History Course and a bigoted Unionist. His favorite outdoor (and indoor) sport is smoking.

HENRY ERROL BEAUCHAMP PLATT.

"Why all this toil and trouble?"

ERROL arrived at 'Varsity, the culmination of accomplishment from Parkdale Collegiate. Following the two-fold bent foreshadowed by his former activity in athletics and oratory, he hewed a path to fame via direct route of Rugby and the Historical and Thirteen clubs. His 'Varsity career has been marked by versatility and good-fellowship. The answer to the query above is: he has decided to settle down and concentrate on Law—some time.

H. CLIFFORD PUGH.

"Teach thy tongue to say, I do not know"

BLUEVALE, birthplace of H. Clifford Pugh, is a sequestered village situated one mile from the B. Line and station, where "McPherson's Pump" and "Stewart's Hill" are familiar objects. Bluevale furnished his entrance and Goderich and Wingham his senior teacher's certificates. Trained at Goderich Model, he taught in Londesboro', Inwood and Saskatchewan. He very creditably pursued the Honour Biology Course. He is a good friend and a genial companion.

NORMAN CHARLTON QUA.

"O'it he was gentle, mild, and virtuous"

NORMAN C. QUA first took an interest in things chemical at Paris, where the high school so intensified his chemical longings that he enrolled in the Class of '12 in C. & M. However, deciding '13 was a much better year, he entered it in his third term. In the swimming-pool, glee club, and at the rifle-ranges he was not unknown, and the chemical world will yet hear from him.

JESSIE BAILLIE READE.

"Away with him! Away with him! He speaks Latin"

JESSIE B. READE received her earliest education at Rosedale Public School and at "Westbourne." From Jarvis Collegiate Institute she matriculated, 1909, with a scholarship in Classics and Moderns, and registered at University College in Classics. She has served twice on the Classical Association executive, and in her second year was Class Historian, and Corresponding Secretary of the Women's Literary Society.

DORA ELLEN REDMAN.

"Of her own gentle voice afraid"

A GRADUATE of Malvern Ave. High School, Toronto, Dora Redman entered 'Varsity in Moderns, and became in her fourth year vice-president of the Modern Language Club, and head of the Y. W. Lunch Room. With a due regard to all the claims of college life, she has gone on her way a pleasant companion and a trusted confidante—for at her christening the good fairy bestowed on her the gift of silence.

THOMAS BASIL RICHARDSON.

"He was stately, young and tall,
Dreaded in battle and loved in hall."

WITHOUT flowers or cab, Dick launched his career in Toronto, September, 1893. His early education was received at St. Albans School, from which he graduated prior to entering 'Varsity, Commerce and Finance. Hockey and Rugby found in him an enthusiast, and cricket a participant, while his academic course was accompanied with a brilliance which awarded him first place and ensures his future success in life.

WILFRID DANIEL ROACH.

"True as the dial to the sun,
Altho' it be not shined upon."

GRADUATING from the high school of his home town, Arthur, Ont., Wilfrid felt a desire to delve more deeply into the realms of knowledge, so joined the ranks of '13. An orator by nature and a Unionist by choice, Wilf. saw active service in the "Lit." Silver medalist for Oratory, member of Inter-Year Debating Team, and treasurer of Senior Year, demonstrate his ability.

THOMAS EDWARD ROBINSON.

"A sense of humour, and a touch of mirth,
To brighten up the shadowy spots of earth."

TOM was welcomed into our planet on the banks of the Maitland in Huron County. After preparing himself for Wingham High School by learning to write, he spent some time on the farm. Those who know him at U. of T. feel certain from his sound arguing powers and true Irish wit that he will succeed wherever he may cast his lot.

HENRY ROCHE.

"E'en his failings leaned to virtue's side."

HENRY is a favorite not only with the students, but with the urchins down town also. He busies himself to a large extent with the Settlement Work, but takes an odd lecture for pastime. The Anglican ministry will probably monopolize his smiling personality. The words of Falstaff apply well to him: "Banish not true-hearted Henry; banish not good-natured Henry; banish Henry and banish all the world."

HAROLD ERNEST ANDREWS ROSE.

"Qui multos homines vidit et mores."

MONTREAL, Ottawa, Hamilton, Winnipeg, Toronto, give Mr. Rose's inherited Methodistic itinerancy; taking Classics and English and History for three years shows a thirst for learning; the secretaryship of the Speakers' Club points to legal and demagogic ambitions. He is a lover of the sublime and the ridiculous, and patriotic enough to be a member of the Rifle Association and a very bad shot.

MARGERY EVAN ROSS.

"I have earned it."

BORN in Welland, where she attended the public and high schools, Margery Ross registered in Moderns in 1909. She is one of the few who continue to hold first rank throughout their course. She has proved a nimble hare in paper-chases, and has starred in several college plays. But she is par excellence a student, and to those who are not devotees of the Muses we may interpret the motto: "I have earned it."

BLANCHE H. ROWLIN.

"To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."

BLANCHE was born in the Ambitious City (Hamilton), and has never been able to get rid of the "strenuous" idea. She took her senior leaving from Jameson Ave. Collegiate, and then taught matriculation work for three years. Having mastered the art of doing two things at once, she entered in English and History with the Class of '13, taking the Teachers' Course while she continued to instruct Toronto's youth.

JAMES ARCHIBALD SCOTT.

IN 42 B.C. the subject of this petition blew into Seaforth accompanied by several musical instruments. The collegiate proved an excellent "prep." school, but "Scotty," being curious as to what was in the dark, sought light among the philosophers. His first achievement was joining the "Old Lits." He then went to the Rifle Ranges, where they presented him with the Dominion Salver. As a philosopher his harangues on Jonah will be peculiarly interesting.

HARVEY BASIL SETTERINGTON.

"Integrity and skill in thee now grew authority."

BASIL was born January 28th, 1892, and after his primary education entered the Leamington High School. Here he engaged very actively in sport as well as studies, and gained his junior matriculation in 1907. In 1910 he captured the Essex County scholarship for the Western University, and also completed his senior matriculation. He has by his conscientious and industrious character won for himself many friends at the University.

PERCY SHULMAN.

"Full of old saws and modern instances"

"PERC." came to this vale of woe some time in the early nineties. After attending Jarvis Collegiate, he joined the Political Science branch of the glorious Class of Onety-Three. At 'Varsity "Perc." is interested in the broader aspects rather than in the affairs of any special society. That with his talents he will grace the legal profession goes without saying, and we predict for him a successful career at Osgoode.

ANDREW LEEDON SIBBALD.

"We grant, altho' he had much wit,
He was very shy of using it."

BEHOLD Manitoulin's sole representative in the Arts Class of Onety-Three. Matriculating from Owen Sound Collegiate Institute, Andrew wandered down to Toronto to see the sights, but found so many Hebrews in this city that he decided to study their language and registered in Orientals. He will follow his namesake in becoming a "fisher of men," and will be a stalwart for the Presbyterian Church.

MOCK PARLIAMENT

THE vast throng that crowded Convocation Hall were alternately thrilled and shocked by the helligerent blasts of vituperative verbosity vented by the desperate individuals who, presuming upon the good nature of an easily amused audience, appeared as the representatives of the University in the annual Mock Parliament. The scene was one which might be reduplicated only in the third circle of the temperance heaven. In equal ranks on either side of the great organ, in front of which was seated the noble form of the Speaker, garbed in wig and gown of office, were ranged the grotesquely disguised forms of the unofficial representatives of the Ontario Legislature. The Opposition side was decorated with streamers and posters descanting upon the virtues of various brands of ginger ale, milk and soda-water. The members of the Government, with a truly Conservative hardihood, were entrenched behind fortifications of empty bottles, from which they now and then refreshed their thirsty throats.

After the Speaker had concluded his opening address, in which he referred briefly to the recent unpleasantness with the authorities of Harbord Collegiate and the outrageous conduct of the noble guardians of the peace, Premier Whitney (G. S. Lloyd) launched into a diatribe against the hopeless incompetency of the Opposition, the fearful condition of affairs existing in the University, and the radical measures necessary to reform them. The Premier spoke at some length, and when he had reached the conclusion of his narrative, Mr. Rowell (Horace Holmes) stepped forth.

In a long and carefully prepared speech, Mr. Rowell enunciated his famous policy, a policy destined to go down the ages, to wit, the "Polishment of the Bar." With a voice and expression that were heartrending beyond belief, he painted, in vigorous colours, laid on unsparingly, the hideous and fearful results incumbent upon the pursuit of the present policy of the Government. He showed clearly that, if beer was spilt upon the bar, the only thing to do was to wipe it off with a rag, thus "Polishing the Bar." He further eulogized the glories of a milk diet, as proposed by Professor Metchnikoff.

Mr. Hanna (S. J. Cook) made a brilliant speech, outlining the policy of the Government with regard to the University. A bar was to be established in the registry office and attended by Mr. Brebner in person. Through this combination Mr. Hanna hoped to effect the production of a genial good-fellowship between student and registrar. Such effect would be further enhanced by the erection of another bar in the ladies' cloak-room.

Mr. G. G. Galloway, who was responsible for the impersonation of Professor De Lury, was perhaps the most amusing feature of the evening. He approached the liquor question in a truly mathematical spirit, treating it as primarily depending on "Booze, a variable in X, varying between sam-shuey and City dairy milk." He continued in this vein for a few minutes, and, having persuaded the audience that the treating system was most unprofitable, retired in consequence of an interruption by a wooden-headed freshman.

Major Peuchen, the hero of the Titanic, next arose to set forth the policy of the Opposition and his own claims to renown. He produced his certificate of bravery, which looked like a cross between a warrant and a Phœnician manuscript. He was received with cheers, and this reception so inebriated the gallant hero that he became too full for utterance and sat down. Mr. Harrison carried out this part very well, if applause be any criterion.

The poet (Mr. Jenkins) gave vent to the usual parodies, at the expense of the Toronto City Council and the undergraduates whose particular merits brought them into the limelight of publicity. During the intermission which followed, Messrs. Lloyd, Jenkins, Thompson and Gardiner entertained the audience with several very good parodies anent the hirsute appendages of a well-known senior, the amorous adventures of certain juniors and sophomores, and the life exciting as exemplified at Queen's Hall.

Immediately after the intermission, the Doric Meenister gave a sermon on the iniquities of the undergraduates. Dr. Johnson, who followed him, commented harshly upon the abandoned habitues of the Union and Star. Mr. Leonard, as the Freshman, made a successful speech against Mr. Hagarty and a junior well-beloved of Venus. Mr. Gillam, as the Savage from Carlisle, also made a good speech; while Mr. Leckie, as the Queen's Hall Freshette, brought down the house. All who took part did well, the imitation in the case of Professor Hutton being so well done that those in the back seats were unable to hear, even as if the Principal were speaking.

"The Blast," as usual, was flagrantly libellous, but up to date has not been sued for libel. It is said, however, that actions against the editors are being contemplated.

HELEN G. SMELLIE.

"She hath a nimble wit."

HELEN SMELLIE was born in Fort William and came from there to 'Varsity, entering the course of English and History, in which she has ever been a shining light. Not all her time, however, has been given to historical investigation. She has taken part in almost every side of college life, especially in dramatics, having starred in the Queen's Hall play. In her fourth year she was a member of the "TORONTONENSIS" Board.

EMMALINE E. SMILLIE.

"All that I planned to be—and was not—comforts me."

BORN at Hensall, Huron County, and matriculated from Seaforth Collegiate. She took a course in nursing and graduated from the Toronto General Hospital, and then she entered the '13 Class in Modern History. Emmaline has shown unusual talent in debating, and won the Shield in the Oratorical Contest in her third year. She was also president of the Undergraduate Women's Association.

HILDA HÜBNER SMITH.

"Here's a friend for earnest and for sport."

HILDA HÜBNER SMITH received her preparatory education at the Thorold High School and the St. Catharines Collegiate. She entered 'Varsity with the Class of '13, and enrolled in the course of Modern Languages. In her fourth year she was president of the University Women's Anglican Club, and representative of the Literary Society to Evangelia Settlement, in both of which offices she proved very efficient.

WILLIAM ROSWELL SMITH.

"A man of sovereign parts, who loved too well but not wisely."

MES au monde at Hespeler; completed his "prep." work in English and History at Galt; encountered Brehner in 1909, and became a Unionist freshman. Since then, by his kindly geniality and even temperament, he has become a universal favourite. Academic progressiveness made him no recluse. An erstwhile member of the "Lit." executive, he, now, as president, centres his activity in the Modern Language Club.

FREDERICK SPEARING.

"Ah, but a man's reach should exceed his grasp,
Or what's a heaven for?"

"FREDDIE" was ushered into the world at Batteau, Ont., in May, 1893. Here he received his primary education, and later attended Collingwood Collegiate. In 1909 he joined the Onety-Three B. & P. Science Course in University College, Toronto, where he has made a grand success of his university career. After graduating in Arts he intends to complete his course in Medicine.

EARL J. SPINKS.

"I'll cavil on the ninth part of a hair."

WARKWORTH claims him. After matriculation, some years were spent in business, but such material occupation did not satisfy his enquiring mind. He came to the University of Toronto in 1909, and chose Philosophy for his course. 'Tis believed by all that he will complete his college career in regulation time. What young Socrates will do after graduation is a little doubtful, but we predict an illustrious future.

OSCAR DOUGLAS STEVENSON.

"He hath a lean and hungry look."

"O. D." WAS born on the "education" corner of King and Simcoe, some time before Toronto took growing pains. He secured his secondary education and matriculation at Stratford Collegiate Institute, and, after several years of newspaper work and teaching, entered the second year of English and History in 1910. He has had his full share of college honours and activity, in his senior year being editor-in-chief of "The 'Varsity." His future lies in literary or academic work

ETHEL LOUISE STOCKWELL.

"With thee conversing, I forget all time"

ETHEL LOUISE STOCKWELL began her scholastic career at Moulton College, where she did excellent work. Her thirst for knowledge, however, was not quenched, so in 1909 she entered University College in the General Course. During her stay at 'Varsity her nimble wit has been appreciated by all.

EDITH STOLLERY.

"A child no more! A maiden now—
A graceful maiden with a gentle brow."

EDITH is a Toronto girl. Huron and Harbord Schools and Moulton College all contributed something to her primary education. She entered the Class of '13 in '09, and since that time has endeared herself to many by her loving disposition and ever-ready sympathy.

ETHEL PARMENTER SUTHERLAND.

"In thy heart the dew of youth,
On thy lips the smile of truth."

ETHEL has always lived in Toronto, matriculating from Harbord Collegiate and entering the University as one of the youngest members of her Class. By her sincere interest in all college activities Ethel has proved herself to be a typical college girl. She has always judiciously mingled pleasure with study, and the cares of college have made but little impression upon her buoyant disposition.

CHARLES HOWARD TANNER.

"Mens sana in corpore sano."

"CHARLIE" first saw the light of day in Sturgeon Bay. He received his early education at Orillia Collegiate. He later honoured Toronto as his home. After a somewhat joyful and erratic course, he is still with us in '13. "Charlie" intends continuing his studies at Osgoode Hall, where he is bound to make a success. May he be as generous and kind to his law victims as he has been to all his friends.

MAY TAYLOR.

"Her lively looks a sprightly mind disclose"

BORN a Torontonian, May Taylor was early exiled to Lorne Park. From P.C.I. she came up to 'Varsity, and enrolled in Moderns. With a cheerfulness unimpaired by the hardships of enforced early rising and much time spent on trains, she has participated in college life; and by her vivacity and willingness "to help" in times of depression, she has been the little leaven that leaveneth the whole lump.

ALAN FOSTER TELFER.

"That one may smile and smile and be a villain"

INCARNATED in 1892 he has pursued the path to erudition in many establishments, notably the schools (public and high) of Collingwood, Upper Canada College, and the University of Toronto. The tennis and track club executives claimed him, and in his last year he was a member of the Historical Club and president of the Thirteen Club.

WILLIAM JAMES THOMPSON.

"There lives not three good men unhanged in England;
and one of them is Falstaff."

POET-PHILOSOPHER! Here have we a happy combination of Socratic style mingled with a goodly proportion of the manners, habits and customs of good-natured Sir John Falstaff. Who has not felt the ruthless hand of "Bill" in playful frolic, or who has missed his cynic smile? Here humour and pathos have sat down together; sense and nonsense have kissed each other.

JOHN CLARKE THOMSON.

"Ho!" said the King. "What ho?" said David.
"Ho! ho!" replied the King

THE genial business manager of this ponderous volume is a product of Orillia, interested in English, History, French, Economics and Religious K. He also was Historian of the Senior Year, and frequently has taken an afternoon off to play hockey for Senior Arts. With a wide knowledge of life and an extensive command of English, "Jack" is a most promising specimen of a lawyer.

FLORENCE TOBIN.

"Well, she had to sing, nor merely Sing, but play the lyre"

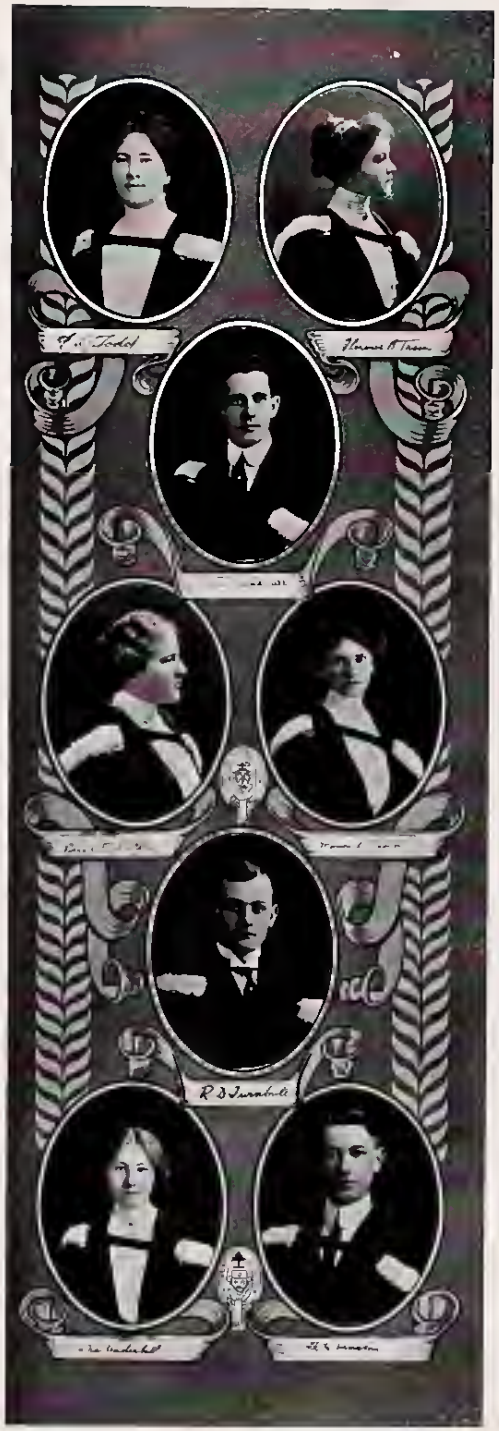
EARLY days spent in Everett and a seminary education at St. Joseph's Academy, Toronto, prepared Florence for a unique place in the Class of '13. Since entering in her sophomore year, her bright and winning manner and musical abilities have greatly widened the circle of her friends. May a star-lighted path through college give place to a happy and brilliant future.



FLORENCE STEEL TODD.

"In felaweshipe wel coude she laughe and carpe"

Miss Florence Todd was born and educated in Meaford, Ontario. She entered University College in 1909, in English and History, which she has ever maintained to be the best course in the Calendar. Every side of college life has claimed her attention, and especially in Dramatics she has been interested. In her fourth year she was a member of "Torontonensis" Board and "'Varsity" staff.

FLORENCE BEATRICE TRAIN.

"She's very well acquainted with matters mathematical,
She understands equations, both the simple and quadratical."

Florence Train received her preparatory education in Collingwood. From there she came to 'Varsity, and enrolled in Mathematics and Physics with the Class of Onety-Three. Throughout her course she has taken an active part in all branches of student life. She has always been keenly interested in athletics, especially hockey and tennis; in the latter she won the much-coveted "T."

NORMAN HOWELL TREADWELL.

"Even tho' vanquished he could argue still"

"Treao." is another of our "would-be" barristers who hails from Ottawa. After graduating at the O.C.I., he came to 'Varsity to follow the Political Science Course. At a tender age he decided to study the law. His choice of profession is doubtlessly due to his unsurpassable ability for sarcastic argument. The good die young, so the chances are "Norm." will live to a ripe old age.

ELIZABETH ELEANOR TROTTER.

"A little body often has a big soul"

"Bess" blew in to Caledonia, a small hamlet near Hamilton, some time in the last century. After swallowing all the knowledge contained in the aforesaid village, she came to Toronto to further her ambitions. Faculty sheltered her for one short year; then the call of English and History proved too strong. She entered '13, and has remained with us—with honours. She took some interest in athletics, attending one paperchase and many hockey practices.

MARION E. TROTTER.

"She was a woman of a stirring life"

Marion Trotter was born in Amherstburg, Ontario, where she received her early education. Her high school education was completed at Windsor, and from there she entered the General Course in University College in January, 1911. During her course she has always taken a great interest in athletics, basketball claiming most of her attention.

REGINALD DAVID TURNBULL.

"Better fifty years of Europe
Than a cycle of Cathay."

"Reg." was born at Farquhar, Ont., and obtained his early education at St. Mary's, where he leaves a first-class record behind him. In 1909 he entered Toronto University, and has since acquitted himself with honours in pursuit of the elusive "substance," besides taking active part in Y.M.C.A. work. "Turnie" is brilliant in conversation, broad in views, and believes in "giving the devil his due."

ISA UNDERHILL.

"She that was ever fair and never proud,
Had tongue at will and yet was never loud"

After Isa matriculated from Markham High School, her home was moved to Toronto, where she attended Harbord Street Collegiate Institute. Harbord was abandoned to pursue English and History and paperchases at the University of Toronto. Isa has taken much interest in all the numerous frivolities not included in the Calendar that help to perfect a University life.

FREDERICK HAROLD VANSTON.

"I would it were bed-time, Hal, and all were well"

"Hal" was born in the Forest City, and, having always a strong love for the sylvan, he removed his family to the town of Forest, where he acquired his public and high school education. Entering Philosophy in '09, he has taken a deep interest in college life, and served on the fourth year Class executive. "Hal" intends to enter law.

The Graduating Dinner

"SWEET and glorious it is"—so sang a hard of old—"sweet and glorious it is to die for one's country." Undoubtedly very true. It is also as true that immediately prior to battle soldiers are always fed, it being much sweeter and more glorious to die on a full stomach than an empty. If that be so for an army, why not for a class? Why not, indeed! Therefore, in anticipation of its sweet and glorious death on June 6th, the Class of Onety-Three held a farewell to itself in the form of a Dinner, at the St. Charles, on March 3rd.

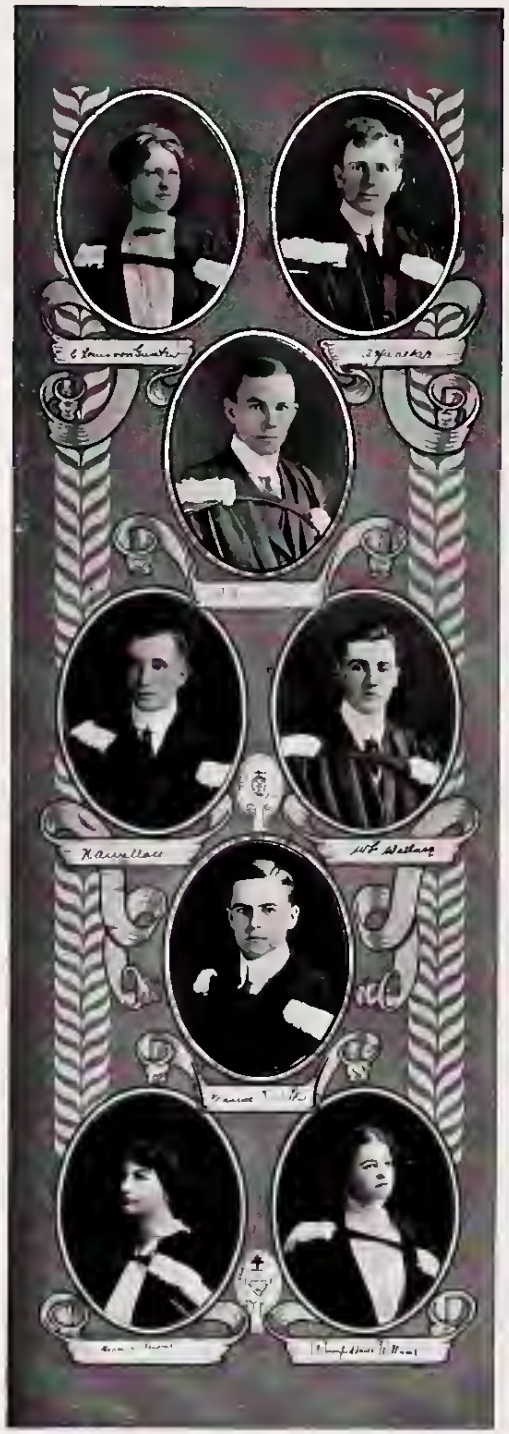
We make the above continuous references about dying simply because we want to dispel any ideas in anybody's mind that this dinner was an hilarious affair. Far from it. If there is one thing above all others upon which Onety-Three prides itself it is its Dignity. Onety-Three is always dignified, even when it eats. It stalked through that meal with a countenance of immense gravity. Nothing disturbed its equanimity nor ruffled the calm surface of its complacency. In the beginning and in the end, it was silent and stern and tremendously in earnest.

All of which is another way of saying that we enjoyed ourselves. We were fifty strong, seated at a long down stroke of the letter T—one table—and at a short cross stroke of the letter T—the other table, the head table. This head table was tastefully decorated by toast-master Joseph M. Bullen, our guests, cigars and cigarettes. The guest of honour was Hon. W. H. Hearst—Vernon's father—the other guests being President Falconer, Principal Hutton, and Professors McGregor Young and Baker. Mitchell and Beaton also were there. Mel Brock and Bill Parker sat next the head table, and were persistently importuned to nail some of the guests' cigars—which they did, but neglected to pass on.

After we had solemnly and silently demolished the grape fruit, slipped away the bouillon, and played with the fish, we settled down grimly to the turkey. A slight diversion was caused at this moment by the Editor of TORONTONENSIS arriving late, evidently under the impression he was attending a lecture, but the turkey stopped all comment. Deep apple pie was the dessert, and a grand finale was made on celery, cheese, biscuits, assorted fruits and coffee, although some of us passed over the cheese.

After we found matches for the cigarettes the speeches commenced. Joseph B.—our chairman—toasted His Majesty very neatly, incidentally comparing Mel Brock to Henry VIII. and Tom Hinds to Macchiavelli. Professor McGregor Young toasted the "Empire" very wittily, which toast was responded to in an able and eloquent manner by Hon. W. H. Hearst. Mr. J. M. Mitchell spoke very briefly and very humourously—he is a great wag—in proposing the "Faculty." This was responded to by President Falconer, who said many wise things, among others being that of reading Gorgias in a canoe. Principal Hutton proposed the "Class" in an extremely thoughtful and cogent address, and was replied to by W. C. Parker. We will not repeat the story Mr. Parker told, but we will say that he handed out some very deft left-handed compliments, and was very popularly received.

That romantic Mr. Beaton toasted the "Ladies" in his usual graceful manner and sweet voice when speaking on such a subject; Professor Baker replied; and then we sang "God save the King," and walked home. Mark that, walked. We might add that all the speakers remarked on our intelligent and handsome appearance, and we really looked sweet.



CLARICE LOUIS VON GUNTEN.

"The name of friendship is sacred."

LOUIS VON GUNTEN was born in Blenheim, Ontario, and received her early education there and at the Chatham Collegiate Institute. Upon entering the University in the fall of nought-nine, she joined the ranks of nineteen thirteen, and enrolled in the General Course. Throughout her college course she has been interested in college affairs, having served on the athletic executive and as vice-president both of her Class and the Literary Society.

ALBERT HENRY WALKER.

"Mens sana in corpore sano."

"FUZZIE" first saw the light in County Mayo, Ireland. Early in life he evaded the problem of Home Rule by coming to Canada. He has made good since coming to 'Varsity; besides being a good student, he is an all-round sport. He is the mainstay of athletics in Wycliffe, acts as business manager of the "Wycliffe Magazine," and has made himself indispensible on many committees. "Fuzzie" intends entering the Anglican ministry.

HAROLD HOLTORF WALLACE.

"We grant altho' he had much wit
He was very shy of using it."

HAROLD was born and educated in Lindsay. On arriving at 'Varsity he plunged into English and History, and entered the dim religious halls of Wycliffe. He has played Rugby, learned to smoke, and on occasion has been known to "fuss." He has captured the O'Meara Trophy in long-distance running, and is a member of the Historical Club. For his future the stars have not been read.

NORBERT AUGUST WALLACE.

"That nature might stand up and say
To all the world, 'This is a man.'"

NORBERT A. WALLACE gave his first yell in 1891, in Toronto. After receiving his primary education at St. Paul's Separate School, he graduated from Jarvis Collegiate in 1908 with Honour Matriculation. Entering the B. and P. Class of 1912, he won the Scholarships in both his second and his third year, but the typhoid bacillus delayed his graduation until 1913. He is entering medicine.

WILLIAM FULTON WALLACE.

"His body brevity and wit his soul"

WE draw the mantle of charity over Fulton's history prior to 1909, when he entered 'Varsity, paid his fees to the Extortioner-General, and uttered the evergreen platitude regarding "hard work." Though susceptible to the witchery of muslin, he is essentially a man's man —one who has read much history and made some, in campaigning for the Old Lit. party, debating for his year, and acquiring a reputation for political guile.

MAURICE F. WILKES.

"Fie! What a spendthrift is he of his tongue!"

NOT long after Maurice first squeaked, his friends began to see in him the makings of a politician. Politics took the place of the bottle, and are now meat and drink to him. At a tender age he joined the extremest wing of the ultra-Radical party. At present he is carrying on an active campaign in favour of absentee landladyism. B. Brantford 1891; ed. Brantford Collegiate Institute and T.C.S. Port Hope.

GYPSY WILLIAMS.

TORONTO was the birthplace of Gypsy, where she grew to girlhood filled with the desire of acquiring a higher education. She matriculated from Jameson Avenue Collegiate, and later, entering those 'Varsity halls of learning, joined the Class of '13, with which she expects to graduate, if the fates prove propitious. Though quiet and retiring, she has succeeded in endearing herself to the hearts of her fellow students.

WINNIFRED LAURA WILLIAMS.

"Her open eyes desire the truth"

WINNIFRED WILLIAMS was born in Culloden, but since an early age Ingersoll has been her home. She joined the Class of 1913, and has always taken a great interest in college affairs. In the Discussion Club she has shown such high ideals and strength of purpose that it is certain she will leave humanity a little better than she found it, especially since she follows her motto, "Because right is right, to follow right."

JESSIE ELSPETH WILSON.

"Her lively looks a sprightly mind disclose."

ELSPETH was born at Niagara Falls, Ontario, and, after receiving her preparatory education at the collegiate there, came to Toronto and to the University in 1908. Recognizing the abounding merits of the Class of '13, she determined to ally herself with it, and, after a year out of college, joined the fated throng. Her personality, however, has not been submerged in the madding crowd, but has localized its interest in the Dramatic Club.

MARGARET GRANT WILSON.

"Dark my mother was in eyes and hair,
And dark in hair and eyes am I."

MARGARET G. WILSON attended the public and high schools of Brampton. She matriculated 1909, winning the First Edward Blake Scholarship in Classics and Mathematics and the Second William Dale in Classics. She registered at University College in Classics and in English and History, which latter she continued for two years. In her third year she was vice-president of the Classical Association. "Artes honorabit."

MALCOLM JAMES WILSON.

"Who can foretell for what high cause
This darling of the gods was born."

MALCOLM was born at Niagara Falls, Ontario, but, arriving at years of discretion, came to Toronto to study Medicine, entering the P. and B. Course. He has consistently refused to allow lectures to interfere with his college education, but yet has somehow managed to evade the falling stars.

MELVILLE WILLIAM WILSON.

"And Melancholy marked him for her own."

THE genial "MEL." first exercised his vocal organs at Sand Hill, Ontario. After attending Brampton High School, he spent four years in imparting some of his vast store of learning to the youth of his home county. At 'Varsity he has devoted his energies to assimilating the elements of Political Economy, incidentally serving upon many executives and committees. A brilliant future in law and in politics awaits him.

ROGER P. WODEHOUSE.

"It is not wealth or ancestry, but honorable conduct and a noble disposition that make men great."

ROGER was born in 1889 in Toronto, and received his education at St. Albans Cathedral School and at Upper Canada College. Always having manifested a deep interest in the study of Nature, he entered the Department of Forestry and later continued with the Arts Course in Biology. His abilities, also, as an athlete and a musician mark him as an all-round man.

GLADYS INGLESON WOOKEY.

"I'll be merry and free, I'll be sad for naebody.
If naebody care for me, I'll care for naebody."

GLADYS INGLESON WOOKEY was born in Manderville, Jamaica. At an early age she came to Toronto, where she received most of her education. In 1908 she graduated with honours from Moulton College. She enrolled in Moderns at University College with the year of Onety-Three, to which Class she has always been a credit.

GERTRUDE WRIGHT.

"Plays well the game, and knows the limit,
And still gets all the fun there's in it."

SUCH may be said of Gertrude Wright, who won the First Edward Blake Scholarship in Moderns at Parkdale Collegiate in 1908, and entered Household Science in 1909, winning first place every year. She has served on the Literary and Athletic Executives, and has been an ardent worker for the University Settlement.

HAROLD VERSCHOYLE WRONG.

"Too much he talks, and over little thinks."

HAROLD WRONG was born in 1891. After being educated at St. Andrew's and Ridley Colleges, he enrolled in the Classics Course. In his third year he won a University College Scholarship. He won the University Tennis Championship and his colours in 1911, and for four years played on the tennis team, which he captained in 1912. He was a member of the Historical Club and of the Thirteen Club.

Victoria College

AMONG the federated groups of Colleges comprising the University of Toronto, none is more justly proud of her traditions, position and college spirit than Victoria. A long honour roll of successful graduates, many of whom are now national figures, testifies to the worth of her training. The opportunities she offers to-day are greater than ever before. The new library, the numerous interior improvements, the men's residence in course of erection, all testify to the loyalty of her friends and their faith in her future.

Victoria's staff and students are worthy of the University, as a liberal list of honours in each succeeding class list shows. Her social life is the most brilliant and enjoyable in the city. Year by year she wins a premier place in athletics and contributes of her best to the University teams.

CHANCELLOR BURWASH

A denominational college, the training of the ministers and laymen of Methodism together, augurs well for the future success of great missionary, philanthropic and moral reform movements. The inspiration for much of this comes from Chancellor Burwash, a brilliant teacher, a careful author, a constructive statesman, an inspiring leader, a man of God. Victoria's history for many years is the record of his achievements.

VICTORIA COLLEGE

History of '13, Victoria College

Thirteen was thought unlucky, incurably unlucky,
Till there came a year that broke this evil spell;
For when they came to college, to augment their wealth of knowledge,
Fortune smiled on Onety-Three and wished them well.

WITH the coming of lucky '13 Victoria's golden age dawned. Unlike most freshman classes, they came in sackcloth and ashes to do penance at the shrine of knowledge. The Bob Committee trembled and later screamed with terror, when subjected to a vigorous course of cold and hot water cures. Long will the Bob of 1909 be remembered. The freshmen sang right lustily, and later gained fame by repelling an onslaught of the Toike-Oikes, who sought to break up the entertainment. In this same year did Victoria win great fame in athletics, capturing the Mulock Cup, Soccer Championship, and the Jennings Cup. Besides winning the inter-year championship on Charter Day, freshmen acquitted themselves nobly on all inter-faculty teams.

Despite the fact that forty succumbed in May, one hundred and twenty answered the roll-call as sophomores in the fall of 1910. Owing to the death of "Robert," the freshies were spared the tortures of the Bob, an event which everyone regretted. "Ye evergreens of '14" were initiated in the memorable scrap on the alley-board, where paint and water washed their sins away. Peace was restored at the sophomore reception, where snow apples, pumpkin pie, and milk brought back visions of the dear old farm. In the winter the hamlet of Downsview was rudely awakened from its slumber, when the tinkle of sleigh bells announced the visit of '13. The concert was great, but the supper was greater, and it was with sad hearts the little red church was left behind.

In the junior year the members of the Class paid marked attention to cultivating the social aspect of college life. All the hidden mysteries of Annesley Hall were revealed when the Co-eds. of '13 entertained at a most successful Hallowe'en party. When it was time for the annual sleigh-ride, the mercury was fifteen below zero, but that did not chill the enthusiasm of this irrepressible crowd. The senior dinner was the climax of a most successful year.

When, as grave and reverent seniors, four years of work and play are reviewed, the members of '13 may well feel proud of their record. In academic honours the Class has particularly distinguished itself every year. The re-organization of the Literary Society on party lines has been greatly due to its influence. Judging from the great interest displayed by members of '13 in athletics, the success of the Class in the great game of life seems assured.

Individual Biographies

FRED AINSWORTH.

"His life was gentle and the elements
So mix'd in him that Nature might stand up
And say to all the world, 'This was a man'"

Fred was born in Dundas. After a successful business career he matriculated at Hamilton Collegiate. In his academic pursuits Fred has shown intellectual acumen, and throughout his course in the department of Orientals has evinced a mind for marshalling particulars necessary for success. We assure him a place among the leaders of our Church.

ROWENA ALLISON.

"I'll be merry and free; I'll be sad for naebody"

Rowena Allison is a Toronto girl and received her preparatory education at Harbord Collegiate, whence she migrated to Victoria, entering the Honour Moderns Course. In spite of her youth, she made a charming old lady in a French play in her second year. She has a laughter-loving nature and is the Enfant Gâtée of the Class, beloved by all.

GORDON WILSON ARMSTRONG

"A useful life must needs be one
That lives to help his fellow man."

His past began in Toronto. His ambitions early turned to the field of Medicine, and with this in view he passed his Senior Matriculation in 1906 at Jarvis Collegiate and entered Victoria the following autumn. He has taken a worthy place in College sports, successfully combining athletics with studies; an all-round man with an outlook that holds bright promise for the future.

ARTHUR DIGBY BANTING.

"Hence, loathed Melancholy"

Digby first assimilated the fact that two and two make four in Woodstock and straightway decided to be a mathematician. Entering the M. & P. of '13 he brought a cheerfulness of spirit and an easy-going disposition which saw him safely through the tortuous paths of his exacting studies. In his third year he served on his Class Executive, and in the final year the Torontonensis Board recognized his worth by admitting him within their august precincts.

WILLIAM WRAY BARRACLOUGH.

"Strongest minds are often those of whom the noisy world hears least."

In 1892 Wray began life in a Methodist parsonage in Ontario, spent his childhood in Victoria, British Columbia, and his boyhood in Dawson, Yukon, where he entered the High School. Matriculating from Columbian College, New Westminster, he has since secured enviable standing in Physiology and Bio-Chemistry. "Barry" is a close student, a clear thinker, somewhat reserved but popular with those who know him

KENNETH JOHN BEATON.

"A life that moves to gracious ends."

Ken first opened his eyes and wondered what it was all about on a farm in Bruce. The Clinton Collegiate and Model School gave him preliminary mental culture. After three years' wielding the birch in a country school, and two years' sky-piloting, he registered at Vic. in Philosophy. His face is set toward the Orient, upon graduation.

RAY THORNLEY BIRKS.

"And 'tis much pride for fair without the fair within to hide."

Born 1893, joined 1T3 in the second year, gave Political Science its due attention, and remained throughout his course a shining light among his fellows; a good comrade, amiable and sincere; a ray of light to "Acta," and as Leader of the Opposition to the "Lit." With his business acumen and eminent social endowments we predict for Ray a prominent position in the business world.

FLORENCE MARIE BLATCHFORD.

"A mien that neither seeks nor shuns
The homage scattered in her way."

After various vicissitudes as student and teacher, Florence entered Victoria with the purpose of plucking apples from the knowledge-tree But scholastic pursuits and attainments were only one phase of her college life. She performed praiseworthy services not only as Vice-President of her Class and of Y.W.C.A., but also on the University Settlement Committee. Her popularity proceeds from her ready sympathy and loving disposition.

CLIFTON GILBERT BROWN.

"Large was his body, and his soul sincere."

"CLIFF" first peeped into life in 1890 at King's Ferry. Released from Chatham Collegiate, he entered Vic's General Course. Like a broad-minded college man he went to lectures when not otherwise engaged, being distinguished from the common every-day Browns by the title "Big Brown." Cliff showed energy as First Government Whip of the Independent Party and as member of the 1912 Conversazione Committee. Future in B.C.

FRANK GORDON BUCHANAN.

ENTERING College in 1909 from Alberta, Buchanan's aspirations turned mainly in the direction of the Literary Society, where in the course of four years his fellow-students bestowed upon him all the honours in their power to give. Gaining thence an insight into things present, and from the arduous study of the Classics a knowledge of things past, he may be truly said to possess a combination which will make success inevitable in some future sphere of usefulness.

PERCIVAL BECKETT BROWN.

"He keeps good nature still, whate'er he lose."

FIRST showed the strength of his lungs in Toronto twenty-three years ago. His early education was obtained at Toronto Church School and Jarvis Collegiate Institute. After three years in the business world, he decided to enter the Medical profession. The B. and P. Course offered the best means whereby his ambition could be realized. His immense popularity in Rugby and Hockey circles, however, does not exclude him from the social world.

WINNIFRED BUNTING.

"A little, tiny, pretty, witty, charming darling, she"

WINNIFRED received her primary education in St. Catharines. The Vice-Presidency of the Class headed the long list of executive offices which she has held, being Secretary of Lit. in her third year, Leader of the Opposition and on the Cabinet of the Y.W.C.A. in her fourth. Her determination has served her in good stead, and all her friends appreciate her forensic ability.

JEAN BURNS.

"The best condition'd and unwearied spirit
In doing courtesies."

JEAN left her happy home in Brantford, her much loved city, to bring sunshine to the Class of 1913, smiling especially on the Moderns course. Her good sense has won her the position of adviser-in-chief to her many friends, while her unfailing thoughtfulness for others and ability to see the funny side of things have brightened the lives of all who have come in contact with her.

HAROLD CHAMBERLAIN BURWASH.

"Known for deeds, not words."

THE subject of this sketch spent his early years amid the rural joys of Baltimore, Ontario, and pursued the path of learning through the Cobourg Collegiate. After two years in the West, a thirst for knowledge led him to the University of Toronto. His fourth year finds him a successful student, President of his Class, Treasurer of the Athletic Union, a member of Rugby, Soccer and Hockey teams.

MIRIAM LAURA BURWASH.

"I could not in a palace find
A truer heart."

THE Class of 1913 rejoiced when Miriam "came down from New Liskeard—a maiden pioneer"—to Victoria, bringing in her manner the freshness and breeziness of New Ontario. She has proved a happy participant in all phases of college life, and was Vice-President of the Class in her third year. Her cheery manner and ready sympathy have endeared her to all who know her.

ISABELLE EDNA CLEMENS.

"We saw her charming, but we saw not half
The charms her downcast modesty concealed."

AFTER a course at Berlin Collegiate Institute, Belle entered Victoria College, where her researches in English and History and Moderns have been enlivened by participation in various pleasures and activities. She has neglected no side of college life, being an active supporter of the Literary Society and Athletics, and serving on the Y.W.C.A. Cabinet.

JESSIE MARTINA CLEMENT.

"Her own thoughts
Are her companions."

DESERONTO was the scene of Jessie's childhood. Nothing daunted that no Deseronto girl had ever come to the University of Toronto, she entered Victoria. With determination she attacked English and History. In her fourth year she served on the Executives of her Class and the Athletic Club. She has always responded to the many demands made by college life and friendship upon the time of a true-spirited college girl.

ELSIE EVELYN CLOKE.

"Her air, her smile, her motions tell
Of womanly completeness."

FROM Hamilton came Evelyn Cloke, who contributed so much to the best things of college life. A strong personality, the charms of a beauteous mind and virtuous heart, enhanced by rare natural beauty, won for her both love and leadership. In her senior year she was Vice-President of her Class, Social Service Convener of Y.W.C.A. and Councillor on the Modern Language Club Executive.

MARJORIE MAUD COLBECK.

"There studious let me sit,
And hold high converse with the mighty dead."

FROM West Toronto Marjorie came to Victoria on time—as regards family sequence—with scholarships in Moderns and Classics. Although registering in Classics, her interest in the Ancient World did not blind her to the enjoyments of the Modern, and she has given to college activities their proper share of attention. Very many have found in her an interesting companion and a sincere friend.

ALTA-LIND COOK.

"A woman of an independent mind."

IN following the romantic course of the Methodist itinerancy, Alta-Lind graduated from Ridgetown Collegiate and came to Victoria, where she registered in Moderns. However, her energies have not been limited to her course, and the Literary Society, Modern Language Club and Class Executive have benefited by her interest. Her sense of humour, breezy optimism and musical ability have endeared her to many. Her talents should distinguish her in the literary world.

WILLIAM COUTTS.

"Merit was ever modest known."

WILL began his earthly career among the wilds of Muskoka. After his Public School training he spent several years in agricultural pursuits. In the midst of this quiet life he was awakened to a knowledge of wider opportunities. This brought him to Toronto, where he matriculated from the Dominion Business College, and entered Victoria with the Class of 1T3. In his second year he chose Semetics, which course he has followed with great zeal.

LESLIE C. COX.

"Whence is thy learning? Hath thy toil
O'er books consumed the midnight oil?"

THE town of Bowmanville claims the hero of this tale. During his Collegiate training he received his fondness for Classics that have enabled him, despite his ambitions on the Soccer field and rink, to distinguish himself in his Academic work. His easy manner and witty conversation have won him many friends, who wish him success in his further studies.

GEORGE ALEXANDER COYNE.

"More things are wrought by prayer
Than this world dreams of."

HE was born in Trafalgar, Ontario, on March 30, 1889. After matriculating at Oakville, he taught school in 1908 and 1909 and entered Victoria in the following year. He has been a member of the Modern Language Club ever since that organization was founded.

ALMA WHITNEY CRAWFORTH.

"To see her every day that came,
To find her every day the same,
In pleasure's smile or sorrow's tear
The same benign, consoling dear."

ALMA WHITNEY CRAWFORTH, known as "Dove" to her intimate friends, was born in Whitby, Ont., receiving her preparatory education at Whitby Collegiate Institute. After spending a short time teaching, she entered Victoria College in the fall of '09. She was noted for her genuineness and sincerity, which gained for her the love and respect of all.

BEATRICE CRAWFORTH.

"Smile and the world smiles with you."

BEATRICE CRAWFORTH, born at Whitby, early matriculated from the Whitby Collegiate Institute. She decided to come to Victoria College, where her good judgment, power of concentration and originality of thought showed the possession of marked ability. Frank and impulsive, she yet possesses the happy faculty of inspiring confidence. Interested in matters social as well as scholastic, she leaves Victoria Halls with a firm grasp on life's most beautiful essentials.

GERTRUDE CRUIKSHANK.

"Her eyes as stars of twilight fair;
Like twilight's, too, her dusky hair"

AFTER graduating from the schools of Wingham, Gertrude turned her thoughts and steps toward Victoria, entering with the Class of '13, of which she has been, through her entire Course, a most worthy member. Her graceful, sweet and lovable manner, which is but an index to her strong deep character, has won for her many staunch friends among her college associates.

MARGARET LOUISE CUTHBERTSON.

"Sweet lips whereon perpetually did reign
The summer calm of golden charity"

BORN in Montreal, reared in Toronto, Margaret Cuthbertson, with quiet ease, worked her way through Harbord Collegiate. Her fairy godmother led her to choose English and History for her profession and Classics as her hobby. Her spirited hockey playing has been recognized in the Athletic Association, as the positions of Hockey Captain and President testify. Those who know her best shall tell of her innate worth.

WILMOT ALVIN DAVIDSON.

"He hath a goodly eye"

DAVY'S cherubic face, which first saw light in Simcoe County, was later pointed out to tourists as one of Barrie Collegiate's attractions. After successfully filling Ichabod Crane's shoes for four years, he placed the scarlet and gold in his hatband and rooted with the Class of '11. The aesthetic element was lacking there, so Davy dropped out for two years and now graduates with the entire good-will of the Chemistry Course.

GEORGE ALBERT DAVIS.

"Up! up! my friend, and quit your books,
Or surely you'll grow double."

THE world obtained its first view of Bert during the nineteenth century, in Toronto. After graduating from Jarvis Collegiate he spent a year in business. In 1909 he registered in the P. and B. Course, and his intentions now are to enter the '16 Class of Medicine and become a surgeon.

JAMES CHENEY DEMPSTER.

"The better part of valor is,—discretion."

As an undergraduate he has proven his mettle, obtaining General Proficiency at every examination. He possesses the happy faculty of practising his education, as is shown by his work as Historian of the Junior year. Around the Halls he is known as "Jim"; to meet him means to greet him. His thoughtfulness and aid to his fellows will assure him a place in the future world surely to be envied.

S. GIRVIN DEVITT.

"He works his work; I mine"

CARTWRIGHT township had a baby with an ideal when "Girvin" first arrived, for ideals are part of his nature. He followed "the gleam" through the Lindsay Schools; it lured him from "the birch" in Eden; in its pursuit he has surmounted even the Classical option in English and History. High as he may follow it he will not forsake his ideal; it is his own and he will seek it.

WALTER EDWARD DONNELLY.

"Words of learned length and thundering sound
Amaz'd the gazing rustics rang'd around."

WALTER first found his voice in Kent County, and, after graduating in Theology from St. Thomas High School, he decided to enter Victoria. His popularity and peculiar ability made him a mark for offices in the Probationers' Association and in a cheese factory. Walter will have ample opportunity to exercise his eloquence, clearness of thought and soundness of character in the ministry.

LEILA ISABEL DOUGLAS.

"There is a quiet grace
In all her actions, tokening gentleness"

THE charms of Victoria College lured Leila in her second year from the precincts of Western University to enter the ranks of the Moderns Class of 1913—a welcome late-comer. Her sweet and unaffected modesty only showed up to greater advantage her intellectual qualities displayed in her Academic standing. She possessed, too, the fascination of a loving, unselfish disposition.

ROBERT BRODDY DUGGAN.

"Ich dien"

"MIKE" made an August debut in Brampton, in 1892. Four years in the local High School fitted him for the strenuous life in Political Science Onety-Three. His happy disposition has won him many friends at Victoria. Social functions, Athletics, Literary and Academic duties have in turn engaged his attention, and his honours include the Rugby Captaincy and President of his Class.

CORA McRITCHIE EAKINS.

"A gentle maid and of good conscience."

HAVING completed her high school education in Harriston, Cora came to Victoria with the Class of 1913, choosing the English and History Course. Her kindness and sincerity have won her many friends. Modest and retiring, but deeply interested in college life, she has enjoyed its many pleasures and benefits. In her fourth year she was a member of the Y.W.C.A. Cabinet. Here, as elsewhere, she has proved her worth.

RENNIE MABEL EVANS.

"Blest with a temper whose unclouded ray
Can make to-morrow cheerful as to-day"

A TORONTO and a Harbord girl, Rennie entered Victoria in 1909 with Honour Matriculation standing, enrolling in Mathematics and Physics. In her fourth year she chose to specialize in Physics, and, though always holding First-Class Honours, yet was interested in much outside of college life. Her bright smile and cheerful disposition have made her a general favourite with her classmates.

ILMA MAE FINCH.

"How near to good is what is fair and jolly."

MAE merrily fluttered away from Hagersville to take her place on the 1913 bough of our tree of knowledge. With her inborn musical talent, she has made happy many an hour, and efficiently served as pianist in the Literary Society and Y.W.C.A. Possessing a keen sense of humour and a generous sympathy, Mae has cheered many hearts by her never-failing sunshine and her contagious smile.

FLORENCE M. FLANAGAN.

"We never crossed her threshold with a grief,
But that we went without it"

CAME to Victoria from Paris. Notwithstanding her natural ability for English, with characteristic courage and broad-mindedness she chose the Biology Course, in which she has obtained a high standing. Despite comparative isolation, due to her course, she has missed little that college had to offer, showing a keen enthusiasm in all branches of student life. She has the distinction of being head of Annesley Hall.

HARRY MILLS FORD.

"I saw young Harry, as full of spirit as the month of May, Rise from the ground like feathered Mercury"

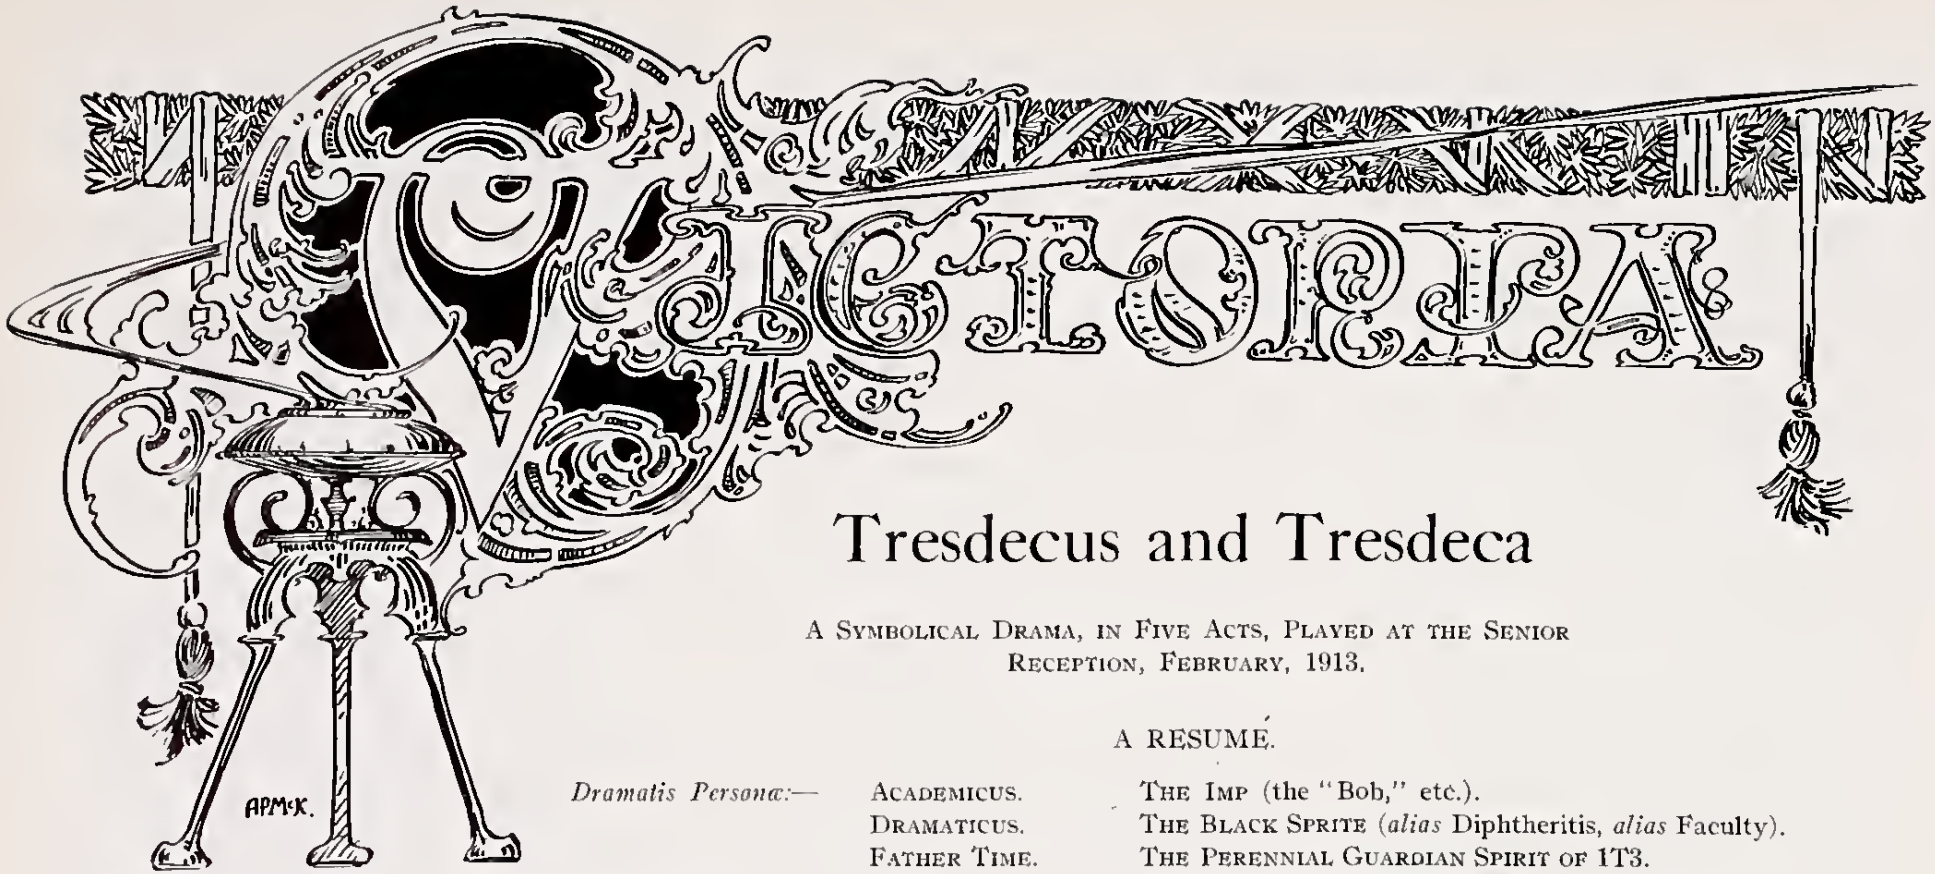
HARRY announced his visit to earth at Corinth in 1889. His high school days were passed at Aylmer, whence he came to Victoria, entering his second year. His frankness of manner and jovial disposition have won for him many close friendships and general esteem. He chose Political Science for his course, and will choose, we hope, the Law for his profession: when Harry rises, let the court beware!

HARVEY GEORGE FORSTER.

"And ever with a frolic welcome took,
The thunder and the sunshine"

BORN 1892 on the banks of the Grand River near Caledonia. You can call "Harv." a freshman, a poet, or an experienced man of the world. It depends upon the mood in which you find him. Breaking a leg on the Rugby campus, saying his prayers at Y M., getting after his man in philosophic argument, he's always in love with life.



Tresdecus and Tresdeca

A Symbolical Drama, in Five Acts, Played at the Senior Reception, February, 1913.

A RESUMÉ.

Dramatis Personæ:—

	Academicus.	The Imp (the "Bob," etc.).
	Dramaticus.	The Black Sprite (alias Diphtheritis, alias Faculty).
	Father Time.	The Perennial Guardian Spirit of 1T3.
Tresdecus.	Society.	The Three Weird Sisters; also
Tresdeca.	Plug.	The Bird of Genius (a green parrot); and
Rusticus.	Magicus.	Dignity (a palm tree which grows marvellously from act to act).

ACT I.

An Island in the Caribbean Sea.

Sc. 1. Enter Tresdecus and Tresdeca in company with Rusticus (dressed as a country clown). They have pierced the concentric reefs and are arrived upon the island of their search. While they conjecture as to the nature of this island and its inhabitants, a Black Imp rolls upon the scene. He comes to rest upon his haunches and regards Rusticus quizzically; then, fixing him with a baleful eye, casts a spell upon him with amusing results. With a laugh of diabolical satisfaction, the Imp breaks the spell; Rust., however, has lost somewhat of his pristine assurance.

Sc. 2. Enter Academicus, a black and sinister Arab, wearing an immense Mortar-Board, attended by the faithful and bespectacled Plug. A pompous and learned discourse on the habits of the Tree Crab is interrupted by the entrance of the Imp with his three companions. Rusticus becomes a comedy character. Sporticus and Society—an old friend of Tresdeca—appear. Introductions.

Sc. 3. Academicus and Plug frown on the immediate and evident popularity of Society, an old enemy. Plug is set to watch over Tresdecus and Tresdeca.

Sc. 4. A Flamingo Ride through the swamps is proposed. Tresdecus stays at home, and Tresdeca and Sporticus take the ride together.

Sc. 5. A falling out between Plug and Sporticus re Tresdeca. Plug victor in the end, though much damaged.

ACT II.

Sc. 1. A shocking flirtation between Tresdecus and Society.

Sc. 2. Academicus is distracted, and introduces Dramaticus to assist Plug. Dramaticus, however, ousts Plug and becomes immensely popular.

Sc. 3. Society approves of the ascendency of Dramaticus and strives to help matters along.

Sc. 4. Dramaticus makes love to Tresdeca in very bad Anglo-Gallic-Teuton verse. Plug is snubbed.

Sc. 5. Tresdeca and Sporticus promise to help Tresdecus and Society to elope. This episode is to take place at a gathering planned by Dramaticus.

Sc. 6. Dramaticus, master of ceremonies. A sound is heard like unto the rustling of a myriad dry leaves in the autumn wood. The white Phrase and Topic Guides flutter. But, while curious polyglot noises pervade the air, the plot develops. The elopement takes place.

Sc. 7. Plug and Academicus frantically pursue—with success.

ACT III.

Sc. 1. Tresdecus (solus) imagines himself disillusioned re Society—feels remorseful towards Academicus

Sc. 2. Tresdeca (sola), angry at Plug's assiduous attentions, determines to appeal to Magicus for help.

Sc. 3. Plug presses his suit and is snubbed.

Sc. 4. The Cave of Magicus—unearthly sounds, spectral fires. Magicus summons the Black Sprite to assist Tresdeca.

Sc. 5. Academicus troubled at atmospheric disturbances and commotions under the earth. Magicus must be at work. (Advent of steam heat).

Sc. 6. Tresdeca introduces the Black Sprite by strategy. Plug recognises in him "Diphtheritis," and beats a hasty retreat.

ACT IV.

Sc. 1. (High Comedy.) Differences between the Imp and the Black Sprite.

Sc. 2. Tresdeca arrives. The Imp, filled with despite, tears off the Black Sprite's disguise, and Diphtheritis is discovered to be Faculty. Tresdeca, recovering from astonishment, tolerates him. The other suitors depart.

Sc. 3. Touching re-union of Tredecus and Society. Society consumed with indefinable fears. He is assured, however, that she will always be with him in some form.

Sc. 4. A Gloomy Subterranean Place—ghastly lights. All the attendant Spirits except Faculty are present. Some are stoical, some sigh dolefully. Enter Father Time. If they would wish to follow Tresdecus and Tresdeca into the world beyond, they must change their form. Mutually exclusive tendencies must disappear. As he passes his sickle over their heads, a new and radiant Spirit arises in a glow of light—the Spirit of 1T3, the embodiment of the essential qualities of those attendant Sprites that have passed beyond the gloomy wave into the night.

Sc. 5. Father Time bids the Guardian Spirit lead Tresdecus and Tresdeca to the Three Weird Sisters, where they may learn of the future.

ACT V.

Sc. 1. The Green Parrot of Genius is much in evidence in the haunt of the Weird Sisters. Tresdecus and Tresdeca learn their fate as it is disclosed in its many manifestations.

Epilogue of the Guardian Spirit of 1T3.

THE CURTAIN.

HARRY ARTHUR FROST.

"A man must serve his time to every trade,
Save censure—critics all are ready made."

HARRY is a Northumberland farmer's son. After taking his preparatory work at Albert College, he came to "Vic.," joining the illustrious Class of 1913 as a "fresh Soph." Here he has taken an active interest in college life, especially in the Y.M. and Lit. societies. He has made many friends among his fellows by his geniality.

JAMES ROBERT FRYER.

"If aught of prophecy be mine,
Thou will not live in vain."

"JIM" was born on a farm near Brantford, and there spent his boyhood and youth. He matriculated at Brantford Collegiate Institute in 1906, and then taught school until he entered University. In Honour Biology he has been a careful, thorough student. In college activities he has rendered cheerful, faithful service whenever called upon to do so, winning a warm place in the hearts of all.

ROBERT JAMES PERCIVAL GAULEY.

"Never elated when one man's oppressed,
Never dejected while another's blest."

THOUGH of a retiring disposition, no college wit could ever direct his shaft at Bob's verdancy during his freshman days. He had taught school and sampled the primeval wilds of New Ontario before entering on his chosen Mathematical Course. There is something definite about him that has been instrumental in developing a spirit of good-fellowship among his classmates.

EMILY IRENE GILROY.

'Her stature tall—I hate a dumpy woman"

EMILY came to Victoria from Mount Forest. She has crossed the deserts of English and History without the aid of a "star." She has held different positions on many of the college executives, and has been a member of the tennis team for two years. Her frank, happy nature won her popularity in her Class and the Senior Stick in her final year.

JOHN EWART GLOVER.

"Greatness and goodness are not means, but ends."

"JACK," a son of the soil, was born near Queensboro, Hastings County. He attended high school at Madoc, and then spent four years enlightening youth. He joined the Class 1913 as a "fresh Soph." in the Michaelmas term, 1910. Since entering "Vic." he has made many friends through his genial manner and good nature. Surely this is a good omen for his future career as an itinerant.

HEDLEY JOHN GOODYEAR.

"Veni, vidi, vici."

To the Eastern coast of Newfoundland came Hedley, this Viking bold. The household capitulated. After varying adventures in public school, his ambition landed him in the principal's chair. For diversion he fought the monsters of the deep. But St. John's College attracted him as portal to the vaster realm of learning. Then the splendour of "Vic." lured him to Toronto, where his victories with Latin, the Lit. and the ladies are duly recorded.

FRED TAYLOR GRAHAM.

"Soronynge in moral vertu was his speche,
And gladly would he lerne and gladly teche."

BORN at Richmond Hill, Ontario; a son of the farm; a graduate of Richmond Hill High School and Newmarket Model in 1905; a teacher for three years; then in 1908 Fred entered Victoria. A favourite in and out of college, his pity gives ere charity begins. He intends entering the calling which passes rich on forty pounds a year.

THOMAS EARL GREER.

"He was a man, take him for all in all."

ON completing his preliminary education at Moose Jaw, Earl enrolled in Moderns at "Vic." With the dawn of mature wisdom, he transferred to Political Science, 1T3, winning the Mackenzie Scholarship in his third year. His executive ability, as revealed in his successful term as business manager of "Acta," and the high regard of his fellow students are unmistakable indications of a successful career in law.

GEOFFREY LOOSMORE HAGGEN.

"Sic itur ad astra"

NOT that he has "hitched his wagon" to pass Mathematics or Psychology. Indeed, in English and History he has shone and without satellites. But the Alpine Club motto suits a member who takes naturally to "air, rarer, intenser." A schoolboy, he trapped around Revelstoke; a youth, he taught by the Arrow Lakes; a student on vacation, he used surveyor's papers in mountain fastnesses. Victoria College stands arrectis auribus to his career.

ARTHUR CLIFFORD HAZEN.

"Finds sermons in stones and good in everything"

HE was born in 1887, near Port Rowan. In due course he graduated from the high school there, and then taught for several years. Seeking new fields to conquer, we next see him enrolled in '13 G. and M. at old Victoria, gathering in friends and honours with equal facility. His chief ambition for the future is to assist in unravelling the tangled skeins of the geology of Canada.

EDITH MAY HENDERSON.

"Heart on her lips and soul within her eyes."

BORN in Winnipeg, Edith came to Victoria from Harbord Collegiate. She has successfully pursued English and History, without the aid of midnight oil. She held office on Literary, Athletic and Class executives, and for the last two years was a member of the tennis team. Her enthusiastic, lovable disposition won her many friends. She will be greatly missed, especially in social and athletic circles.

AURDY B. HOLMES.

"Misce stultitiam consiliis brevem
Dulce est desipere in loco."

A. B. HOLMES was born in New Westminster, B.C., where, at Columbian College, he received his early training. Coming to Toronto in the fall of 1911, he enrolled in the third year. He has always exhibited a fondness for Physics and German. For the most part his past is shrouded in mystery, and nobody would attempt to predict his future.

MARGARET HOLMES.

"Comfort have thou of thy merit,
Kindly, unassuming spirit"

THIS graduate of the Morrisburg Collegiate pursued further lines of study at the Ontario Ladies' College, where she also took up First Year University work. Margaret then came to Victoria, entering the second year with 1912, but completing her Course '13. Her character, governed by noble ideals, is one of strong determination, while her willingness and generous thoughtfulness are a source of joy to those who know her.

THORA EVELYN HUTTON.

"A kind true heart, a spirit high,
That could not fear, and would not bow."

THORA HUTTON received her perparatory education in Guelph, then came to Victoria College, registering in Moderns, in which she has always maintained a high standing. She was vice-president of the Modern Language Club in her third year, and has served ably and well on various other executives throughout her course.

WILLIAM EDWARD WELLINGTON HUTTY.

"Shall we say that what Heaven gave Earth has taken?"

WELLINGTON breathed his first guttural at Innisfail, Ont., and latterly he has continued this exercise in the Oriental Course. Following public school, a few years were spent in agricultural pursuits. Restless ambition drove him to Weston High School, whence he graduated to enter Victoria with the Class 1T3. His fidelity to his work and his knowledge of the fundamentals augur well for his future success.

WILFRID FIELD HUYCKE.

"A bettre felawe sholde men noght fynde"

RECEIVING both public and high school training at Cobourg, he entered Victoria College, enrolling in Classics and English and History, both of which courses he has very successfully carried throughout. Wilfrid is a serious student and a genial companion, fitted for any place, be it club or camp, and capable of taking part in any discussion, grave or gay. He reverences the past, is hopeful of the future, and makes the most of the present.

NORVAL JOHN IRELAND.

"The elements so mixed in him"

THE subject of this sketch first expanded his lungs in 1887 on a farm near Trenton. Matriculating from Brighton High School in 1904, he spent three years as a country school-teacher. He then entered Victoria College, choosing the Chemistry and Mineralogy Course, to which he has been a credit, and we feel sure that his ability, geniality and good nature will win him success.

PRINCE EMMANUEL JAMES.

"But strong in will
To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield"

NATIVE of St. Thomas, and educated in its public schools and collegiate, "Bill" spent two years on circuit before coming to Victoria. Oriental Languages have since shared his time with quartettes and glee clubs. His marked musical talent, enthusiasm and energy have made him a highly-valued member and officer of various student organizations. A host of friends predict a most successful career.

HAROLD CLAYTON JEFFRIES.

"His years are young, but his experience old."

"JEFF" was born in Peterboro, but acquired his later knowledge at Jarvis Collegiate. In 1909 Victoria claimed him as a willing victim. His genial disposition and executive ability have won him many honours, including the athletic stick. High standing in Political Science ensures him success in law.

JOHN WESLEY FLETCHER KERR.

"Dolce Far Niente"

GRADUATING from Harbord Collegiate, Fletcher entered Victoria with an infectious laugh and a Muskoka smile. Horace, Homer and History did not remove a taste for phrenology and "black magic," while a soaring ambition gained him a seat in the students' council. His ability to mix, acquired on the rink and in every corner of the college (not on a reception night), augurs well for a successful career in law and public life.

MARGARET BEATRICE KETTLEWELL.

"A child of nature, fearless, frank and free."

NORWICH is Beata's birthplace, and, being a child of the itinerancy, many schools claim her during her pre-university career. Alma College, in 1907, placed her name among its M.E.L. honour graduates. In '09 she entered Victoria, where, a friend—but not a slave—to books, she has ever evinced keenest interest in all college activities, and has most ably filled several positions on the Class and V.C.A.C. executives.

JOHN LINE.

"Mind is a kingdom to the man
Who gathereth his pleasure from ideas."

JOHN is one of England's sons, of whom she may well be proud. In his undergraduate work he has devoted himself to the study of Philosophy, and has never failed to reveal great talent in this department. He is far above the average student in his keen appreciation of the most intricate metaphysical problems and in his capability of stating them in good, intelligible English.

WILLIAM JACKSON LITTLE.

"Oh, 'e's little but 'e's wise,
'E's a terror for 'is size"

VICTORIA'S pioneer graduate in C. & F. is a product of the West of Ireland. Apprenticed at Harbord C.I., he has varied interests, having served on "Acta" Board, the 'Varsity Track Club Executive, and countless committees. Goodly slices of the prize melon have been his. Recreations—skating, essay writing and freshman baiting. A hustling executive man and a good fellow, the business world awaits him.

ARTHUR PEARSON McKENZIE.

"Describe him who can,
An abridgement of all that is pleasant in man."

OLD SOL first shone on "Mac" in Tokyo in 1890. The delightful shocks which constantly surprise his colleagues are undoubtedly due to mystical Oriental influences. His quest for the "ideal culture" has been pursued in English and History, also in the Modern Language Club, and in tennis. He was the first president of the M.L.C., and in tennis was college champion for '11 and '12.

EDNA HOWARD MATTHEWS.

"She'd mak' a wretch forget his woe"

A TORONTO girl, Edna came to Victoria from Harbord Collegiate. She has been a leading spirit among the women of her college and sought after in all branches of college activity. A real worker in the Literary Society, ioterested in the Y.W.C A and in athletics, she is an example of the capable girl, who leaves college with assured success ahead of her.

ANNA MERRITT.

Charms strike the sight and merit wins the soul."

"NAN" was born in China, brought up in Clifton Springs, and graduated from Whitby College. For four years at Victoria she proved indispensable to the athletic executive, and for the last three was tennis champion. Her great musical ability was always generously at her friends' service. Infectious gaiety, versatility, and warm-hearted impetuosity gained ready admiration from everybody, and an underlying sweet seriousness won her many friends.

WILLIAM JOHN MUMFORD.

"His mind, as a master-key,
Can open with intuitive address
The treasuries of art and science."

BORN in Grays, Essex, England, Will's career had been more than ordinarily distinguished before his genial smile began to illuminate the corridors of Victoria. The promise which he gave, the hopes which his friends entertained respecting him, have been abundantly realized in his Academic Course, in which he has achieved a multiplicity of honours and distinctions.

LEE GORDON McAUDLESS.

"Disdainful of the spoken word,
Exultant in the deed."

"MAC" was born at Ilderton, Middlesex County, in 1889. Having completed his public school course here, he went to Lucan for his collegiate training. With senior leaving from that place, he went in 1906 to "pedagogy" at Hamilton, following which he laboured as public school principal for two years. In 1909 Lee entered Victoria in M. and P., in the Mathematics branch of which course he graduates this year.

BESSIE McCAMUS.

"A heart within whose sacred cell
The peaceful virtues love to dwell"

BESSIE set out from Bethany upon the nomadic life of a minister's daughter. After varied experiences along scholastic lines, she entered our Class, a welcome sophomore. Ready sympathy, combined with high intellectual gifts, have made her an invaluable friend and adviser. Her college life has been characterized by untiring usefulness and service, culminating in the unsurpassed honour of the Y.W.C.A. presidency.

JOHN GLADSTONE McKEE.

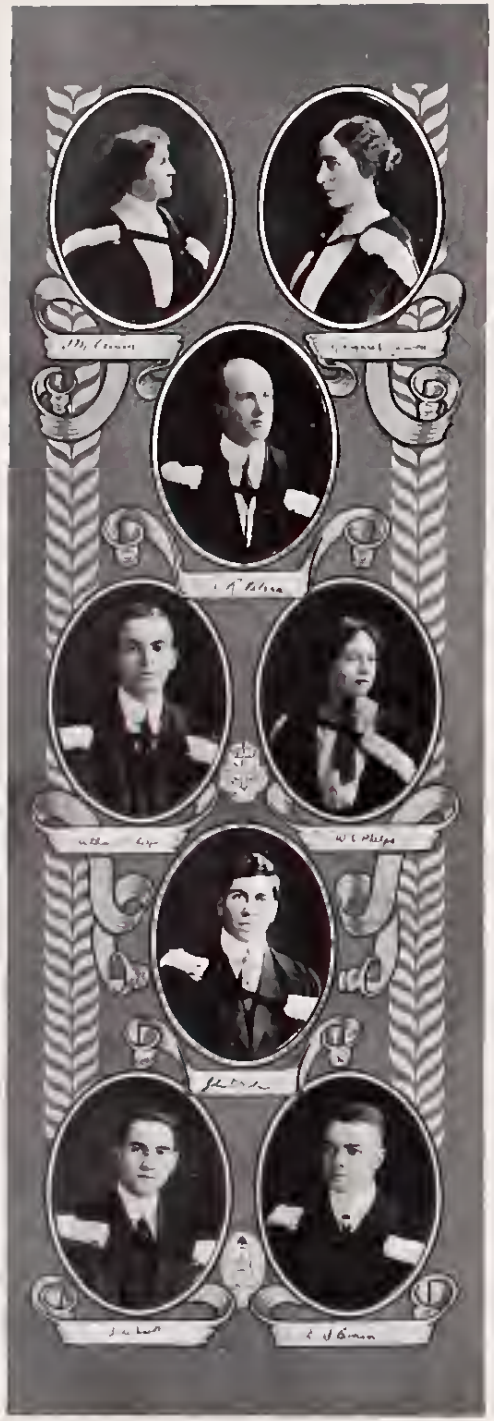
"A man he was, to all his country dear."

ONE bright Sunday afternoon "Glad" came to a parsonage in an obscure, though picturesque, hamlet in Victoria County. He wrestled with fate in Brighton High School, and came out determined to preach. He has been enthusiastic in all the interests of college life, especially in the sports. His optimistic, unselfish spirit assure him a useful place in the service of humanity.

RUTH K. NEFF.

"A winsome lass, she's fair and sweet,
Her heart is true, she's trim and neat,
But best of all, her pies and cake
Are such as mother used to make."

HOUSEHOLD SCIENCE claimed Ruth Neff when she graduated from Parkdale Collegiate in 1909. She has always enjoyed her work without missing any of the good times of college life, and her cheerful disposition has made her a general favourite. We "wish her all the joy that she can wish."



IDA M. OLDHAM.

"A noble type of good,
Heroic womenhood."

After receiving her preparatory education at Markham, Ida entered college with 1913. Her fellow students showed their appreciation of her real worth in making her vice-president of her Class in her sophomore year and vice-president of the Women's Literary Society in her senior year. During her college course she has won many firm friends, for her character is such stuff as true friends are made of.

MARGARET FRANCES OWEN.

"And her gentle mind was such
That she grew a noble lady"

Margaret Frances Owen was born at Thornton, Ont. Although never in attendance at a high school, she matriculated at Barrie in '07, which fact alone implies a noble ambition and a persevering nature. When she entered Victoria in the fall of '09, these qualities were still more marked. Throughout her course her kind sympathies, together with a quiet and unassuming manner, impressed all who knew her.

JOHN ROBERT PETERS.

"Perversity's sweet milk—Philosophy"

John Robert Peters gave early evidences of philosophic tendencies at Brunner, Perth Co , Ontario. His fondness for disputation—first indicated by questioning his mother's right to spank him—has developed, and is still seen in his general opposition to the present order of things, both in church and state. Honour Philosophy is the only thing he accepts without a murmur, and in that his "soul delighteth."

ARTHUR LEONARD PHELPS.

"He hath a daily beauty in his life."

Arthur began to have the daily beauty in the parsonage, Columbus, Ontario. He graduated from Lindsay Collegiate, spent probation in Bobcaygeon, then joined '13 Philosophy, Victoria. Finding beauty everywhere, he has imprisoned much in verse, and his work has graced many publications. Class president, president of the Gooseqnill Club, his popular leadership gave the Independents their first victory. For two years minister at Ashury, now Social Union president, he is almost ready for a "beauty" in his own parsonage.

WINIFRED ELIZABETH PHELPS.

"There be none of Beauty's daughters
With a magic like thee."

Winifred, after attending Lindsay Collegiate, entered the Moderns Course with the Class of 1913. Her histrionic and linguistic abilities were shown in Italian and French plays. She held office as treasurer of the Class in her second year and as vice-president of the Victoria Modern Language Club in her fourth. Her love of all that is true, beautiful and good reveals a heart and mind of genuine excellence.

JOHN DANIEL ROBINS.

"Est animus, tibi sunt mores, est fidesque."

John D. was born in Essex County, Ontario. After the usual process of education, ending with a year and a half at Albert College, he taught school for a year and then entered Vic. with '13, registering in English and History (Moderns Option, of course) He has served on Class executives, on the Bob Committee, as editor-in-chief of "Acta," and has also carried the senior stick.

SHERMAN MANLY SCOTT.

A thirst unquenchable for higher culture drove this precocious youth into Picton High School, where he obtained his senior matriculation—in spots. Proud parents decided that a winter or two in the Metropolis would help. Accordingly the future dope-mixer adjourned to Toronto. There he assiduously cultivated a taste for concert music and an amazing knowledge of bridge-whist, between times absorbing sufficient of Arts and Medical lore to make annually a creditable May showing.

JOHN AUSTIN DUFFERIN SLEMIN.

"Ay, every inch a man"

Home and school instruction in Toronto and Brantford adequately developed "Duff's" inherent capabilities for prominence with Onety-Three. Beneath an inexhaustible, though unobtrusive fund of humour, a sterling quality rings true on all occasions. His Academic Course has been consistently successful, and that, too, with considerable time devoted to social duties and official responsibilities, the latter culminating in those of Athletic Union President.

WILLIAM EMERSON SLOAN.

"Still moving after truth long sought
Will learn new things."

A MAN to argue with—to disagree with completely—to agree with as completely later on. As a student he has appreciated the best things and let the trivial pass. Though endowed with a fearless instinct for truth, remnants of his orthodoxy occasionally came to the surface. "Bill" taught a little, preached a little, and will ultimately teach.

ALFRED LLOYD SMITH.

BIRTH in a parsonage at Varna in '86, collegiate days, banking experience, a freshman year with '11, and two years on circuit, fitted Lloyd for 1T3 sophomore company. As a winner of scholarships in Philosophy, a debater for his college, a decoration of senior dinner and Conversat committee groups, a man on the campus and in the Y.M.C.A. presidential chair, always a little smiling, a little debonair, a great deal in earnest—we like Lloyd!

JOSEPH REGINALD SMITH.

"Who never sold the truth to serve the hour."

PART of "Reg's" boyhood was spent in a sawmill village near Tilbury, Ontario, and part in Frensburg, N.Y. After working six years, he re-entered school, matriculating at Harrow, Ont., in 1909. While taking First-Class Honours in P. and B , he has also been interested in college activities, serving on "Acta" Board in his final year. His sincerity and frankness have won him a high place in his fellow students' esteem.

LEDA SNIDER.

"In action faithful,
And in soul sincere."

As a daughter of the parsonage, Leda received her early education at various places, graduating from the Berlin Collegiate. After having been initiated in the mysteries of the F.O.E., she entered the sphere of college life in the Class of 1913. Leda has maintained General Proficiency standing, in her third year winning the English prize, and has taken a keen interest in all college activities, especially Y.W.C.A., as a member of the Cabinet.

RUTH ELIZABETH SPENCE.

"I bun living ray of intellectual fire."

"BESSIE," born and brought up in Toronto, came to Victoria after preparing at Jarvis and Harbord Collegiates. She immediately displayed executive ability and persuasiveness in debate, which only enhanced her genuine, yet unaffected, modesty. Not only her superior scholastic attainments, but her inimitable personality, fitted her admirably to assume the presidency of the Literary Society. Jollity, seriousness, sincerity, are not the least of the charms which constitute her fascination.

EDNA GRACE STENTON.

"O, she will sing the savageness out of a bear."

EDNA was born in London, but at a tender age she moved to St. Thomas, where she attended Alma College, graduating in '07 with Honours in both Vocal and Arts. At Victoria her sweet voice has made her popular in social gatherings, both in college and elsewhere. Her interest in athletics is shown by her "ever-presence" on the rink.

JOSEPH WILLMOTT STEWART.

"A little nonsense now and then
Is relished by the wisest men"

"JOE" first saw the light at Portal, Ont. Public and high school training being completed, he wielded the "birch" for two years. Finally he landed at "Vic." in 1908, and showed his wisdom in choosing the Oriental Course. However, even those weird characters failed to cbill his genial spirit or mitigate the sincerity of his friendship, so we predict for him success in the ministry.

JAS. JEROME STILLWELL.

"He, like a diamond in the dark, retains some quenchless gleam of the celestial light"

JAMES was a little fellow when, one October morn, he came to the parsonage at Epsom. Grown somewhat, he began a ubiquitous school life, to the iniquity of which Brampton, King and Woodford contributed. Graduating from Meaford High School, he taught three years and preached two, before entering Victoria College, where he has proven himself an adept student in Philosophy and Theology.

JOHN HERBERT ADAMS STONEMAN.

"Banish lusty Jack, and banish all the world."

BORN at Hensall in 1893, "Stoney" attended Exeter and Clinton Preparatory Schools, entering Political Science as fresh soph. Soon he won distinction in all activities, was manager of Vic.'s first water polo team, and 125-pound boxing champion of the University, becoming the logical choice for War Minister in the first Independent Cabinet. In future legal battles his courage, industry and good humour guarantee new "V's" and laurels.

NEWTON OSCAR THOMAS.

"To know is to respect him."

ON matriculating from Walkerton High School in 1904, he entered business, but the craving for more knowledge led him to Victoria with '13. In him we meet an industrious student of firm character—one who can appreciate college life and knows the value of work. In P. and B. he has obtained First-Class Honours, and we look to see him attain a position of prominence in the world.

CHARLES H. WARRINER.

"Beside, he was a shrewd philosopher,
And had read every text and gloss over;
Whate'er the scrabbed'st author hath,
He understood b' implicit faith."

"CHARLIE" made his first appearance in Toronto. He also obtained his public and high school education in Toronto, graduating as a member of the famous 3C Class of Harbord Collegiate in 1909. He entered 1T3 Class in P. and B. Course with intention of becoming a "Doc" of '16.

THOMAS DIGBY WHEELER.

"Ungeheure Heiterkeit Ist seines Lebens Regel."

"DIG" now comes from Winnipeg, but was born in Brantford in 1892. There he received his early education, matriculating in 1907. In Biology and Physics he has been a careful and successful student. In college activities he has taken a live part, serving his Class as chairman of the Senior Dinner Committee. His genial disposition and constant readiness to serve his class and college have won for him the esteem of all.

VIOLA LEONE WHITNEY.

"With rarest gifts of heart and head."

NATURE makes Atherley beautiful, "Vi" makes it famous. After brilliant success in Orillia schools, she joined Victoria Co-eds. Her various executive positions proved her popularity and capabilities. She has shared in Victoria scholarships, and last year won first place in two courses. Her life of sunshine, heart of sincerity and mind of magic power held the friendship of classmates and professors. Truly "of her may Vic. be proud."

BERTHA HAZEL WILSON.

"Age cannot wither, nor custom stale
Her infinite variety."

HAZEL, consistent with her principle to choose the most difficult work and then to do it the best, registered at Victoria College in "Physiology and Bio-Chemistry." From her prowess here we predict a brilliant medical course, and, later, her establishment as a bright and shining light in the medical profession. "Dr." Hazel, Gananoque, in sweetness and gaiety of disposition is "nonpareil."

ANDREW MILFORD WISE.

"We will na' see his like again!
It's sair to part."

ANDREW MILFORD WISE was born in Fesserton, 1889. A brief business career after matriculation from St. Kitt's Collegiate in '06 prepared Andy for a good "Bobbing" at Vic. with '13. Theologically inclined, jovial, a stalwart of the "Lit.," prominent in "locals" of "Acta," yet a true philosopher. Knowing Andy, we know also that his philosophic propensities will only make him readier to glorify the common task.

The Theological Faculty of Victoria College

VICTORIA UNIVERSITY in its conception had no relation to Theological Education. This is emphasized by Dr. Egerton Ryerson in his letter to Sir George Grey (February 12th, 1836), in which, referring to the Upper Canada Academy (the original name of Victoria University), he says: "It is not to be a Theological but a Literary Institution." While, however, from the beginning of its history in 1836, until the present time, the dominant interest of Victoria College has been in Arts rather than in Theology, yet its aim has ever been to promote higher learning under religious influences and in a religious atmosphere. Accordingly religious subjects, such as Christian Evidences, Biblical History and the Greek New Testament, formed part of the curriculum for all students. Many candidates for the Christian Ministry received their Arts training at Victoria, while their training in Theology was obtained elsewhere.

In 1871 the Faculty of Theology was established through the liberality of Edward and Lydia Jackson, of Hamilton. The present Chancellor, Dr. Nathanael Burwash, was appointed Dean of the Faculty. He mapped out a broad and liberal course of study leading to the B.D. degree, and received the assistance in Theology of certain Arts Professors, specially of Chancellor Nelles in Apologetics, and of Professor Reynar in Church History. Dr. Burwash himself taught both Greek and Hebrew Exegesis.

From the first the tone of the Theological work of Victoria has been decidedly biblical. The historical method rather than the dogmatic has prevailed. A warmly evangelical spirit has gone hand-in-hand with the modern scientific temper; and Victoria men have thus been well prepared to adapt themselves to all reasonable changes in the formulation and presentation of the Christian faith. Many men throughout the Dominion look back with gratitude to the great work done for them by Professor Burwash.

When Dr. Burwash became Chancellor, and Victoria entered into federation, the opportunity was seized to extend the work and increase the staff in Theology.

At the present time Rev. Professor F. H. Wallace is Dean of the Faculty, and a staff of ten Professors and Lecturers covers the various departments in Theology.

The number of students enrolled in 1911-12, including Arts Students taking partial work in Theology, was 247.

History of Class '13, Victoria Theology

HISTORIANS have given the year 1910 a place of no small importance in the annals of the past. It was a year remarkable for great events and mighty deeds. Edward, the Peacemaker, passed away very quietly at his residence at Windsor; while Jim Jeffries, the white hope, suffered ignominious defeat at Reno. Halley's comet made its appearance, and created quite a consternation: but a body not less luminous arrived at Victoria College, in the form of the noble theologs who graduate this year. Such a sight in the immediate vicinity had never been witnessed before, and we can safely predict that the like will never appear again. This Class was composed of children of many lands, the offspring of many peoples, and the inheritors of many peculiarities, yet this heterogeneous mass was soon merged into a homogeneous whole. A unique record was immediately established. For the past thirty-seven years it had been found necessary, in order to initiate and edueate the incoming freshmen, to make good use of the noted Bob; but such was the wisdom and so many were the excellencies of this glorious Class, that an initiation of this kind was deemed inexpedient. Although we escaped the humiliation and caricatures of the Bob, our physical powers were soon called upon to engage the enemy in mortal conflict. A few slight skirmishes took place, but on the morning of the twelfth of October, assisted by our allies, the freshmen of the Arts Class, we outfought and silenced forever the bewildered army of the sophs. After proving ourselves to he mighty in battle, as well as perfect in character, we were given "a place in the sun," which we have nobly retained.

Our primary object in coming to college was to better equip ourselves for future work. The gates of wisdom were opened to us, and we took full advantage of the opportunity. Although some have seen stars, the majority have been content to travel the road of "industrial mediocrity," and as a class we have no reason to be ashamed of our record. Despite the fact that our academic work has received our preference, we have not been indifferent to the various activities of college life. We have had representatives upon our different athletic teams, who have given quite a good account of themselves. The Literary Society and the Y.M.C.A. have also received our attention and support.

It is with deep regret that we refer to the death of W. P. Scarth, a member of our Class, who died at Gravenhurst, April 28th, 1912. He was a diligent student, earnest worker, and faithful friend. His life seemed full of promise, and we had hoped to hear much of him in future days.

Very soon we will have to bid farewell to "old Vic," and the question arises, What have the last three years meant to us? In such a brief account as this, it is impossible to adequately set forth all that we would desire. We have received untold benefits. What a vivid recollection we have of strenuous hours spent on trackless wastes without a guide, before our faltering footsteps were directed college-wards. It is true that conceptions which we once held dear have been allowed to go, yet our experience at college has given us a foundation, upon which we can build a good superstructure. It has enabled us to think more accurately, supplied us with intellectual tastes, confirmed our habits of study, and helped to develop certain traits in our characters. With the realization of these benefits, we are also conscious that our education has but begun, and with better trained faculties and a truer appreciation of things, we are determined to apply ourselves persistently and intelligently to the work which our calling enjoins.

The social life of the college has also proved to be a very helpful factor. It has widened our outlook and given us a better knowledge of human nature. The memories and associations of the past have become part and parcel of our lives. In our future work, whether it be in the crowded city or quiet village, the far-flung prairie or the rugged coasts, the echo will be heard again and again of songs sung, yells given, battles fought and victories won.

At a time like this however although the past is rich in memories, we are more concerned about the future. The call is: "I set before thee an open door." The need of the age is our opportunity. We leave college to enter into the field of earnest endeavour. In our calling we believe there is abundant scope for largest thoughts, noblest aspirations, and most strenuous efforts. We feel assured that the members of this Class will buy up every opportunity in order to serve their day and generation well. It does not need a prophet to outline their destiny, for it is self-evident. They are bound to achieve success, and to rise in the scale of influence and service by their force of character, sound principles, and cheerful diligence.

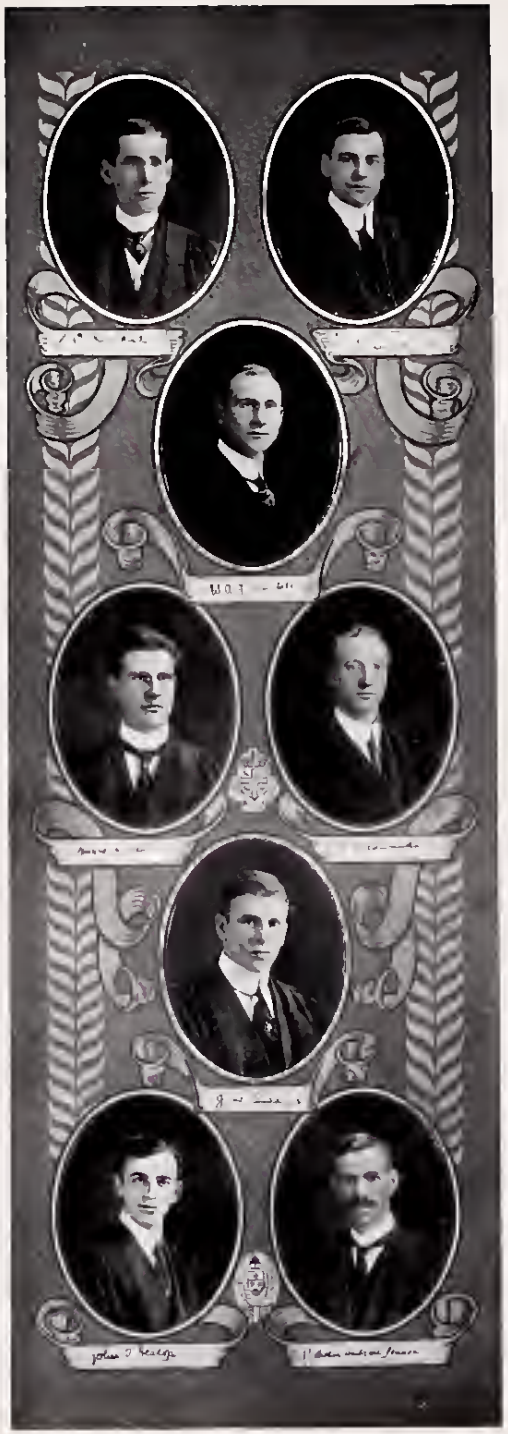
JOSEPH JONES



JAMES EDWIN BECKEL.

"Never say die."

THIS adage expresses the real source of Jim's success. Having decided to give his life to the work of the Christian ministry, he entered Oshawa High School for matriculation. After two years' probation, he found his way to "Vic," there to battle with books, mission work and ill-health. He is far from dead yet, and now leaves his Alma Mater to impress this lesson of perseverance by his life as a Methodist parson.

ALBERT BUSHELL.

"Live for something."

WAS born in Kent, England, and migrated to Canada in his seventh year. Was educated in Toronto Junction Public Schools, and matriculated from the Collegiate Institute of the same town. After working at his trade as gasoline motor expert for nine years, he enlisted in the army of Methodist preachers. After two strenuous years in the backwoods of Ontario, he spent three more years at old Victoria, and was ordained this year.

WILLIAM ALEXANDER FLINT CAMPBELL.

"Besides, he was a true philosopher."

BORN at Port Perry, Flint received his public school training at Cobourg and matriculation work at Stanstead College. Entering college, 1908, after two years' work in Arts, Theology claimed him. He was one of the college Rugby champions of 1908, and last year managed the hockey team, winners of the Jennings Cup. Social and philosophic problems engage his deepest interest. Flint has a genius for friendship.

HOWARD F. DELLER.

"Tho' vanquished, he could argue still"

HOWARD began life as a Quaker on a farm near Norwich, 1885. After leaving public school, he became a farmer; but, outgrowing his bluejeans, we find him forging his way at Woodstock College, bound for the life of a Methodist preacher. Besides graduating at Victoria, he completes his Arts Course next year in McMaster. He excels as an orator, and his friends are warranted in prophesying a brilliant future for him.

SIMON EDWARDS.

"Brings hope with him, and forward-looking thoughts."

EDWARDS was born in Staffordshire, England. So far as his parents were concerned, he was early dedicated to the work of the ministry. Passing successfully through elementary and secondary schools, he thought of the matter himself, and finally decided that way. For two years he worked in Newfoundland, then studied for two years at Mount Allison University. Finally he came to Victoria—"the best place," he says.

JOHN GARFIELD GODDARD.

"A proper man as any one shall see in a summer's day."

JACK became a citizen of Canada on St. Patrick's Day, 1884. He attended public school in Galt, and matriculated from Albert College, Belleville. After spending two years as "sky pilot" in Alberta, he entered Victoria College in the fall of 1909. Jack has been prominent in Y.M.C.A. work and athletics, being especially interested in basketball and lacrosse. He won the coveted "T" in lacrosse.

JOHN T. HESLOP.

"A man he was to all his college dear"

JOHN was born at Ovington, Northumberland, and received his early education at St. Mary's C. of E. School. Later he entered Cliff College, in preparation for the ministry. Owing to ill-health, John came to Canada, and, after an interval, entered Victoria with '13. He was par excellence at the exams., and held his place on the Class executive, soccer team, etc. Success is his in the ministry.

ARTHUR AMBROSE JENNER.

"Like an emigrant he wandered, seeking for the Better Land"

ARTHUR AMBROSE JENNER was born in Kent, England, and spent his school days at Penshurst National Schools. At sixteen years he went to London, and there and in Kent followed the fruit business. Emigrating to Canada, the work of the ministry opened before him. After three years on circuit, the problem of Victoria was tackled, with some hopes and many fears.

JOSEPH JONES.

"May his popularity never wane"

Joe hails from the county of Durham, England. After receiving special training at Cliff College, he spent two years on the most northern mission in Newfoundland. Like one of old, he can say, "In perils often." On entering "Vic.," Joe soon became popular by reason of his genial disposition and recognized ability in sports. His untiring zeal, unbounded optimism, and application to study promise success in the work to which he has been called.

WALTER MORRIS KITELEY.

"Books! 'Tis dull and endless strife"

Walter was born near the village of Draytou, Ontario. All his early life was spent there—first at the public school and afterwards for some years on the farm at home. After graduating from Albert College, he spent two years on a circuit, and in 1910 he found his way to Vic. Walter has held many offices, which proves he had many friends among the students.

HERBERT JAMES LATIMER.

"Nature made him what he is and ne'er made such another"

Herbie was born near Ottawa, and, after attending the Ottawa Collegiate Institute, learned a trade. He responded to the ministry's call, and laboured successfully for two years near Peterboro, matriculated at Albert College, and in 1910 came to Victoria. Here he distinguished himself—a diligent student, a ready wit, and in sport second to none.

JOSEPH J. MELLOR.

"One who never turned his back but marched breast forward"

Joe first saw light of day in Childwall, North Wales. He came to Canada when nine years old, and settled near Corbyville. Secured his matriculation at Albert College; entered Victoria in 1910. He has been actively engaged in different branches of college work, serving on the famous Bob Committee of 1911. Those who knew him best will not soon forget his genial spirit.

E. MILTON MORROW.

"Blessings on thee, little man!"

E. Milton Morrow first smiled upon this world at Hawkestone, Ont. That honoured place, Hamlin University, St. Paul, Minnesota, and Albert College, Belleville, have shared in moulding his career. He entered Victoria College in 1910. Milton's history is notable for its musical nature. Possessed of a very fine tenor voice, he has been an invaluable member of the College Quartette and Glee Club. He is a man of refinement and an able preacher.

ARTHUR SINCLAIR.

"Let me have virtue for my guide,
And wisdom always at my side"

Arthur seems to think that Sarnia is the only place in which one can get an early training, for there he attended the public school, the collegiate, and also the Model school. After teaching for three years, he came to Vic. in 1910. He has made many friends, and, whenever we talk of old times in the days to come, Arthur will always be in the forefront.

JOHN THOMAS STAPLETON.

"The one thing in the world of value is the active soul"

John first saw the light in Nottinghamshire, England. After a thorough training, he entered upon a successful business career. He afterwards attended Cliff College, and then laboured for two years in Newfoundland with much acceptance. Since coming to Vic., he has figured on the Bob Committee. His executive ability, clear thinking and straightforward dealing were indicative of his future success.

FRANCIS GRAHAM STOTESBURY.

"Go forward"

He first saw light in the city of Toronto. When he was very young, his parents migrated to the United States, where he received his early education. In 1902 he returned to Toronto, and, with the ministry in view, continued his studies at the Toronto Bible College; then at Albert College in Belleville. He was stationed on circuit for three years, after which he received three years' academic training in Victoria University.

In Memoriam

William Pickering Scarth

"He lived in deeds, not years"

William Pickering Scarth was born at Pickering, Yorkshire, England, on May 18, 1883. While quite a boy he consecrated his life to the service of Christ, and eventually became a local preacher. In this capacity he worked acceptably for some years, and in 1907 he entered Cliff College, Sheffield. After due preparation, he was accepted for the ministry of Newfoundland, where he laboured successfully for two years. He came to "Victoria" in 1910, and entered upon his studies with zeal, hoping to realize the ambition of his life. Unfortunately, he had paid too great a price; his constitution had been undermined, and, after a short illness, he passed away at the Muskoka Hospital on April 28, 1912. He was an original, yet painstaking, student, and his determined and heroic spirit won him a place in the hearts of all who knew him. Our hopes for him were blighted, but may we not pray that his example may lead us to deeper devotion and greater self-sacrifice.

PETER TILLER.

"Be to the best thou knowest ever true,
Was all his creed."

On the wild and rocky coasts of Newfoundland, Peter spent his early life as a fisherman, but, like his illustrious namesake, he was called from his nets to preach. He did noble work as a captain in the Salvation Army, and since he joined the Methodist Church has distinguished himself. At Victoria he has proved himself an industrious and courageous student.

REV. THOMAS CLARK STREET MACKLEM, M.A., O.D., D.C.L., LL.D.
Provost of Trinity College

Trinity College

SIXTY-ONE years have gone by since Bishop Strachan founded Trinity College as an institution where the truths of the Christian religion and sound secular learning were to flourish side by side. We believe that Trinity is still true to the purpose of her noble founder. As an Arts College she strives to develop in her students a broad and generous culture that will fit them, not to be doctors or lawyers or engineers (that she leaves for the faculties devoted to these professions), but to take their places as citizens of Canada. And as the great means to her end she has always laid emphasis upon residence life, where intimate association between man and man rubs off the narrow corners of one's character and broadens and expands the point of view. Keeping her numbers within the bounds of the Oxford or Cambridge College, Trinity is able to bestow upon nearly all of her sons some office and position in her manifold organizations, so that to her training—scholastic, athletic, and social—is added an executive experience that is invaluable.

Distance from Queen's Park has in the past proved no bar to our loyalty to the University of Toronto. Our representatives serve upon her Parliament, our orators debate for her, our athletes take their places on her championship teams. We now look forward to an even closer connection when the new Trinity shall be built. We believe we have something distinct to contribute to University life; we know we shall ourselves benefit from the new association, and we therefore look forward confidently to the future.

TRINITY COLLEGE

History of Class '13, Trinity College

NEARLY four years ago a number of men, destined to become famous, gathered in the historic halls of Trinity. Bravely casting aside all superstitious fears, we had made up our minds to become members of the Class of the year '13. A visit to the Registrar revealed to us the fact that there were still a few things which we did not know, and which we would be required to learn in return for the privilege of remaining at Trinity. Accepting the inevitable, we made each a more or less judicious selection from the list placed before us, and then turned to the more serious business of college life.

Our first year was spent in the Jag, sometimes called by a strange colloquialism, "Trinity House." There, far from the madding crowd of sophs and others, we learned to know each other, and formed friendships which promise to last through life. During that year '13 began to display some of that public spirit for which it is famous. Various works for the common good, such as rolling the cricket crease and tennis courts, flooding the rink and shovelling the snow off the same, and so on, were undertaken and carried out successfully. Perhaps the most notable instance of this public spirit, however, was seen at the end of our first year's residence. At that time the Jag was found to be in need of a considerable number of repairs, and these, at the suggestion of the authorities, were carried out at our expense.

The following year we took up our abode in the college building, and began to assume larger responsibilities. Perhaps the greatest of these was the maintenance of discipline in the year '14. Thanks to the efficient manner in which this duty was performed, '14 is now a thoroughly well-behaved year and a credit to its instructors. No doubt, in later life the members of '14 will look back upon these experiences with gratitude, and, with tears in their eyes, will bless the day when they came under the benign influence of the year '13.

The year has made an enviable record in athletics. The basketball championship of the college was won in our freshman year and has never been lost. In the second year we trimmed the rest of the college in cricket, and in the third year had the same success with hockey and baseball. We have won some games, have lost others, but have never once defaulted. More important than inter-year sports, our men have been prominent on the first teams in Rugby, cricket, basketball and hockey. Boddy has been one of the strong men of the 'Varsity basketball team. In the third year Clarke won the point cup for all-round championship, while in the fourth year the tennis championship was carried off by Martin. Boyle has demonstrated his ability to throw the hammer and do other similar stunts with the best of them.

In the various other activities of college life '13 has taken its share of responsibility and work. Manzer has presided over the Lit. with becoming dignity, often finding it necessary to pour the oil of his eloquence upon its troubled waters. In this society Martin has won fame as an orator, and has this year been chosen as one of the debaters for 'Varsity against McGill. The Missionary and Theological Societies and the Glee Club have also called on us for assistance in the management of their affairs, and have not called in vain.

Nor have we neglected the social side of college life. None have entered with more zest into Trinity's famous dances than the men of '13. And who can ever forget our year dinners? Then, besides these outstanding social events, there was the regular monthly "At Home" of the Bursar. In his invitation list we were never overlooked, and always came away from these functions with lighter purses and heavier hearts.

In the intervals of college work some time, of course, had to be found for study. This unpleasant duty, however, was discharged in a creditable manner.

And now our pleasant college days will soon be but a memory, and we shall have to carry our activities into wider fields. These four years have made an impress on our lives which will never be effaced, and we shall go out with higher ideals and broader views, better equipped in every way for doing efficient work in our various callings. We shall keep through life a firm loyalty to our Alma Mater. It will be a new Trinity that we shall visit from time to time, but we feel confident that it will be a Trinity animated by the old ideals and keeping up the old traditions, with a wider sphere of usefulness and better opportunities of carrying on the noble work.

BIOGRAPHIES

SINCLAIR MacLARDY ADAMS.

"Tho' this be madness, yet there's method in it"

LONDON is the home of one of the year '13's most distinguished members. Classics and tea are "Tape's" specialty, but during his stay at College he made himself famous by his cartoons and his ability to write either prose or verse in a very striking style. He filled the office of Editor-in-chief of the "Review" most capably, and was scribe of "Episcopon" in his last year.

RICHARD COULTON BERKINSHAW.

"Thou fair-haired angel."

RICHARD COULTON BERKINSHAW, a product of Upper Latimer School, England, and U.C.C., careened into Trinity with the Leonard McLaughlin Scholarship. He plunged successfully into the English and History (Classics) Course, the Glee Club, the coruet, athletics, Saint Hilda's, Evangelia, the Scout movement, and the hearts of his countrymen. He has neglected no side of Trinity life. '13 wouldn't be '13 without this happy candidate for Osgoode.

JOHN LEIGH BISHOP.

"Nemo me impune lacessit."

"TIM" is none the less formidable because he is small. In fact, one might say, "size is no object;" it at least has not prevented his getting on the hockey, cricket and football teams. He has served faithfully on dance and Lit. committees, and his popularity wherever he goes shows that he will make a success of his chosen profession.

ALBERT HAWLEY BODDY.

"This was a man"

BERT "got going" in Brantford in 1892. Coming to Trinity from Highfield, he chose the General Course. Frankness, humour, benevolence, executive ability, almost phenomenal aptitude for practically every game, explained Boddy's popularity throughout the University. Not enough the presidency of the Athletic Association, he was captain and for third season player on the University Basket-ball team, and played Rugby two seasons with 'Varsity II. From Trinity "Bert" goes to Osgoode.

VICTOR OSMUND BOYLE.

"Never give up, 'tis the secret of glory."

"V. O." first "got busy" at Port Colborne in 1892. Continuing so through school there and at Welland, that state became habitual. At Trinity his course was Greek and Hebrew; his intention, Theology. Remarkably versatile, he held office in Glee Club, lead Bible Class, played on first Rugby and basket-ball teams, and held several Field-Day championships. His sympathy, perseverance, and native ability guarantee a useful career in the Church.

ADA W. L. BREADON.

"With cheerful morning thoughts and quick service
To find the much in little."

ADA BREADON was born at Port Rowan and educated there, and later at Harbord Collegiate Institute. She entered in 1909, and has done good work in the English-History Course. She has been a member of the Trinity College Choir and of St. Hilda's Literary Society. Though the only non-resident of her year, she has always entered into the various interests of student life.

GERALD CAMPBELL CLARKE.

"For feat of strength or exercise Shaped in proportion fair"

WHILE acquiring a public school education at Trenton, Ontario, "Gerry" developed a love for athletics. At Trinity he made the first teams in Rugby, hockey, and basket-ball, and won the individual point cup in 1911. Gerry's popularity is not due to athletics alone, but to good qualities too numerous to mention. Divinity claims him next year, so we merely say "Au revoir."

PHILIP JOHN DYKES.

"I am a part of all that I have met."

DYKES is the personification of energy, possessing the will and ability to get things done. As an athlete, he has won his "T" for running, and taken an important part during his course in all Trinity sports. His business and executive talents secured for him the posts of business manager of the "Review" and dance secretary, while his sterling character increased the influence that these positions gave him.

K. F. ELLIOTT

"Æquam memento rebus in arduusu
Servare mentem"

Miss Kathleen Elliott is a native of Stouffville, and was educated in the Bradford High School, from which she matriculated in 1906. At Belleville she took Honour Matriculation, and pursued her course in Honour Modern Languages with special attention to the Teutonic division. She entered as head of her year, and has maintained that position throughout her course. She was head of college, president of the Literary Society, and a member of the hockey team.

MARTHA G. ELLIOTT.

"Es bildert sich ein Talent in der stille Sich ein Charakter in dem strom der welt."

Martha Elliott was educated at Bradford High School before coming to St. Hilda's, where she held the Dickson Scholarship in Moderns. Miss Elliott excels in sports also, for beside being an ardent horsewoman, she was mistress of the chase and captain of the hockey team which won the cup for two years in succession. She identified herself with the work at Evangelia House.

ERIC HERBERT GREGORY FLESHER.

"I am a part of all that I have met."

California first knew Flesher, but later the call of the wild came and he migrated to Vancouver. After having harassed the unfortunate preceptors there to his complete satisfaction, he came to Trinity. Here he wrote for the "Review" and went in for athletics. Measles and the philosophical Hately cured him of his wanderlust, while the Hibernian "Hos" kept him from toppling over the academic precipice.

EMMA AGNES GWYN.

"There's little of the melancholy element in her."

Emma Agnes Gwyn came to us from Dundas, where she received her preparatory education. On entering college she became at once an ornament and shining light unto the General Course, and has continued as such. Always enthusiastic for athletics, she has crowned her career with the vice-presidency of the Athletic Association and as a most efficient member of the college basket-ball team. "Gwynie" will leave behind her many warm friends.

JEAN HARSTONE.

"If I do vow a friendship, I'll perform it to the last article."

Jean Harstone came from Peterborough to Toronto, where she matriculated at Havergal. She was an invaluable member of the tennis, basket-ball and hockey teams, representative on the Inter-College Athletic Association, president and honorary president of St. Hilda's Athletic Association. In her senior year she was president of the St. Hilda's Causerie Française and editor-in-chief of the "Chronicle."

JOHN HATELY.

"Here's metal more attractive."

John is one of the many from Brantford among Father Episcopon's flock. Already nearly full-fledged on his arrival among us, he early took unto himself a "wife"—Gerry—a very important and significant factor in his career. Besides being a ponderous philosopher, he is an all-round sport, having been on the first teams in football, basket-ball, and hockey, as well as having done excellent work on the athletic executive.

DOROTHY LOSCOMBE HOIG.

"Was man nicht nutzt ist eine schwere Last."

Dorothy Loscombe Hoig was born in Oshawa. She received her earlier education at Bishop Bethune College and Oshawa Collegiate Institute. She entered college in the Moderns Course, and after two years transferred to English and History. She has taken a great interest in athletics, and has been on the St. Hilda's basket-ball team for three years, as well as a member of the "Chronicle" staff and the Lit. executive for two years.

GEORGE FREDERICK KINGSTON.

"Who does things for the doing,
Letting babblers tell the story."

Of few words, yet by example a power for good, "King" shines in everything, including philosophy. His fourth year has been especially marked by being Head of Arts, Trinity I.C.D.U. representative, and director of St. Andrew's Brotherhood. He has played for three years on the first football team, and filled executive positions galore. Prescott in 1889 produced this all-round man, whose future will unfold in the Anglican Church.

JOHN FREDERICK LUCAS.

"Eternal sunshine settles on his head."

MARKDALE and the Clinton C.I. sent John Frederick Lucas to Trinity with many laurels and great hopes, which have not been unfulfilled. He is a graduate in English and History (Moderns) by this time, but has for some time been a graduate of the piano, on which he wreaks the wildest Grieg and the most plaintive rags. He is some five feet six of temperament, necessary to all Trinity and St. Hilda's functions.

MAURICE IRVING MACHELL.

"Let knowledge grow from more to more."

MAURICE was born in 1891 in Toronto. Leaving U.C.C., he entered Trinity with '12, but next year repeated in Honour Classics, and has since been a member of the General Course of '13. Persistency and conscientiousness in his work relieve him of all fear of exams. He expects to enter the Church.

ROBERT HOWARD MANZER.

"Who doth both act and know."

"BOB" stands for the broader life of the University, and his activity has been felt in every phase of college life, including sport. His literary ability raised him to the presidency of the Lit. His eloquence represented Trinity in University Oratoricals. He has served four years on the Undergrads' Parliament, now being president of the I.U.D.L. His broad intellect will be of great value to his home Province, British Columbia.

EDWARD AUSTIN HAMILTON MARTIN

"Much labour is a weariness to the flesh"

"NEOWARD'S" theological tendencies at T.C.S. caused him to choose Trinity as his college. He is an all-round man, having acquired distinction as a debater and as a very valuable member of the cricket team, being also its captain in 1912. The "ring" knows him also, as he was a member of the college boxing team. For his future profession he has decided on the law

EDWARD FRANCIS MAUNSELL.

"No farther seek his merits to disclose,
Or draw his frailties from their dread abode."

REGINALD JOHN ORDE.

"Just for the sake of argument."

R. JOHN hails from "Bytown," and was educated at Ashbury College before coming to Trinity. In his four years here he has been noted for his excellent taste in clothes and his ability to run a dance. He has worked faithfully at athletics, none the less faithfully because he never got on the first team. He is an excellent host, and is popular with everyone as an all-round man.

ADA C. PONSFORD.

"Vivite fortes
Fortiaque adversis opponite pectora rebus"

ADA C. PONSFORD was born in St. Thomas. After a varied career spent alternately in St. Thomas, El Paso, Texas, and Belleville, she arrived at St. Hilda's. Although taking the General Course, she has specialized in athletics. Here she has been a rising star, figuring on the basket-ball and hockey teams ever since her entrance, and for the last two years has enjoyed the distinction of wearing championship colours in both.

BERTHA RICHMOND THOMSON.

"A sweet attractive kind of grace"

BERTHA THOMSON was born in Lowell, Massachusetts, where she attended the high school before coming to Hamilton to live. Graduating from the Hamilton Collegiate, she entered St. Hilda's. Of work, athletics, and the social side of college life she has taken her full share, bringing to them all that verve which characterizes her every action, as well as a concentration of purpose which enabled her to be head of St. Hilda's Sale in her fourth year.

A COLLEGE EXECUTION.

FREDERICK WILLIAM COLLOTON.

"Fervent and deep was the voice of the priest"

"FATHER" was born at Aylmer, Ontario, 1877, receiving his early education in Toronto. After some years in the mining regions of Ontario and Mexico, he came to Trinity to search for nuggets of knowledge. Always a student, he excelled himself last year by winning seven prizes, including the Boyle and Macdonald awards. Deep earnestness has made his example an undercurrent for good in our college life.

GEORGE THOMAS GOODHAND.

"And there's a hand, my trusty friend;
And gie's a hand o' thine."

GEORGE commenced life on a farm near Tillsonburg. Woodstock and Tillsonburg Collegiates are responsible for his preparation for the University. Two years' teaching in Hastings County drove his mind into theological channels. At Trinity he has taken a prominent part in athletics, excelling particularly in hockey, soccer, Rugby, and running. The best wishes of the men of Trinity follow him to Ontario Diocese.

THOMAS REGINALD HAUGHTON.

"The mind's the standard of the man."

"REG" HAUGHTON was born at Churchill, Ont., in 1882, and received his early education in Toronto and Goderich. Feeling called to the work of the ministry, he entered Nahshotah Seminary, Wis., in 1908, but transferred himself to Trinity in 1910, where he now completes the L.Th. Course. "Reg" is quiet, good-natured and unassuming, and all who know him realize his worth and wish him every success in his future life.

ROY SPALDING MONTGOMERY, B.A.

"His life was gentle: and the elements
So mixed in him that Nature might stand up
And say to all the world, 'This was a man'"

"MONTY" was born in Ontario, but became a staunch lover of the prairie. St. John's, Winnipeg, and Queen's, Kingston, combined in giving him his training in Arts; Trinity, Toronto, his training in Theology. He is a clean sport, a courteous companion, and a true friend.

ERIC ST. LUCIEN PERCY MONTIZAMBERT.

"A man he seems of cheerful yesterdays
And confident to-morrows"

ERIC's career began in 1888 at Port Hope, where he received his early education. From Trinity College School he came to Trinity College, where his many good qualities have made for him firm friends. A clear thinker, he will be able to present his message in a form that will command attention. After ordination, he goes to Algoma, in which diocese he has already done successful work.

WHITE BURTON MORGAN, B.A.

"Who through long days of labour,
And nights devoid of ease,
Still heard in his soul the music
Of wonderful melodies."

BORN at Hartland, N.B., where he received his early education. After studying at St. John High School and Fredericton Normal, he entered Queen's University, graduating in 1910. For four years he was on the staff of the International Boundary Survey. His Divinity Course completed, he goes to Ottawa Diocese with the best wishes of his Trinity friends.

HAROLD SNARTT.

"None but himself can be his parallel."

HAROLD entered college with the Class of '12, but the lure of the wilds of North Hastings prevented him from graduating with his year. A dislike for logic and a passion for verse are his chief characteristics, but time and a parish will modify both. English Lincoln was his early home, and it and all things mediæval have moulded him to what he is—an English gentleman, a mystic, and a churchman.

SEYMOUR FOSS TACKABERRY, B.A.

"Thought is the measure of life."

"TACK" is an Easterner by birth, but a Westerner by adoption. He is a Trinity Grad. of '10. During his Arts Course he served his college faithfully, sitting for four years in her "Lit." councils, while in last year of Divinity he was president of the Theological Society. He is an ever cheerful companion, who mixes philosophy with mirth, and both with good-breeding.

ERNEST TESKEY, B.A.

"A man of sense."

ERNEST TESKEY was born in Addington County, and received his early education there. In '07 Teskey entered Queen's University. He spent one and one-half years in Science and two and one-half years in Arts, graduating in '11. The same year Trinity claimed him and he enrolled as a student in Divinity. His consistent work has brought success, and his excellent personal qualities have won the esteem of his associates.

FREDERICK WILLIAMSON.

"Half the lies they tell about the Irish aren't true."

FREO began his career at Lisburn, County Antrim, Ireland, and there received his early education. After studying at New College, Edinburgh, and Glasgow University, he came to Canada and entered Trinity, which always has a welcome for the sons of Erin. He has the qualities which make the Celts popular wherever they go, and his Trinity friends predict for him a successful future.

History of St. Michael's College

IT is now three-score years since St. Michael's College had a humble beginning on Church Street, and, although in following the purpose of her foundation, her sphere has been too limited to permit that rapid increase which other colleges have manifested, and which the high quality of her training and teaching deserved, the time has been well used in building up the strong and permanent foundation necessary for a University college. She has now sent forth four classes of University graduates, small in number, yet exhibiting a steady and consistent increase that bodes well for the future.

Hitherto her efforts have been entirely centred in the Honour Philosophy Course, and they have certainly met with success. Of this success a wonderful influx into the lower classes in the last few years, and the gratifying results as seen in the graduates themselves, are abundant testimony. During the past year several other Courses have been added, including General, Moderns, and English and History.

We extend to our University our heartiest wishes for continued prosperity, and express the hope that the field of its usefulness and endeavour will steadily broaden.

ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE

History of Class 1913

"Let others hail the rising sun,
We bow to that whose course is run."

VIRGIL sang of a hero. We shall go the venerable songster one better and sing of heroes, men of destiny, wielders of power, makers of history—the Class of '13, the brightest constellation in the philosophical firmament of this old University. So promising had we been in our last three years that immediately upon our return the privilege of managing the entire College was offered us. Humility is a mark of genius, and being geniuses, of course, we refused the honour—a great blow to St. Michael's.

Our house was soon set in order. Who was to be the Honorary President? Great and distinguished, indeed, must be the mortal worthy of such a dignity! Surely Rev. John Purcell, S.T.L., was the man.

Whether the election of J. Augustine Mogan to the Presidency was due to the foresight of the Class or to his own intriguing sagacity has never been decided. Whatever the answer, no insurgents have arisen, and all stood "pat" in endorsing his administration.

Mindful of "Vox populi" we elevated our own smiling Leonard Forristal to the Secretary-Treasurership, and entrusted to him the duty of preserving for posterity the records of our wordy conflicts and the fiscus of our Carnegie contribution.

"Many a flower is born to blush unseen,
And so it is with Class Thirteen."

Apologies to Gray.

While each and every member has duly qualified for a volume of panegyric and "A Crown of Wild Olive," still we wish to concede a page or two to the other Classes. Suffice it to say, then, that thanks to the leniency of the County Crown Attorney, Culliton, Garvin and Black have escaped indictment for any infamous crime. The Mirabile Dictu satiric chorus now breaks upon the ear.

Of course our Class would be uninteresting if there were not amongst us some handsome Apollos. We are all handsome—we believe—but in our gentle, modest way we bestow the laurels of perfection upon the classic brows of Forestell, Quarry and O'Leary. It would be hard, indeed, to duplicate the manly beauty of this fair trio, especially that of "Dan." The boyish innocence displayed in that blushing countenance would never do for a University Professor. Some say he will probably go in for real estate—and "fussing." Thomas J. McGwan will doubtless mount the Presidential chair of some herpicide concern with a fabulous salary his. He can tease the worries into tenderest effusion; throw off a piece of classic or ragtime vocalism, or imitate anybody's cant and sham. Tom loves an arm-chair, a sinecure job and a high-brow book. Yet Vandeville may outbid him yet.

Michael S. O'Brien—from Peterboro, if you please. Well, for a man with a baritone like Mike's and an awful penchant for pernicious puns (quibus ab omnibus libera nos) there is no fear but that Shea's big offer will land him yet. He will go back to his native heath and that lift-lock town with a Quaker Oats diet, and an æsthetic discrimination will soon begin talking of its illustrious progeny. Long may Mike thrive! Remember he is the only man in the Class to own an "M" and a "T".

High up in the Debaters' Roll of Honour Ed. Brennan, from St. Kitts, and Basil Kingsley, from Lindsay (cries of shame), have written their names in indelible letters, while as leaders in Parliament they have flayed callow freshmen, awed cynical sophs, and belaboured carping juniors with thundering phrase, blazing irony and irrefragable argument, on trivial technicalities.

Like true progressivists and large-club Theodore, we have striven to ignore all precedent. We determined to have a graduating dinner. "Nihil obstat" said the caput. "Fiat" said the prospective guests, and even Father Carr was satisfied with the way these coldwater athletes of ours made their yards at table.

CHARLES J. BLACK.

"Enough of Science and of Art,
Close up those barren leaves."

CHARLES' High School education was received at Stirling and Campbellford. Thirsting for higher knowledge, he betook himself to Toronto, enrolling with Onety-Three. Success has attended Charlie in studies and also in literary pursuits, he having capably filled the Deputy Speakership and the portfolio of Minister of Publications in the Students' Parliament. As for the future, he hopes "The best is yet to be."

EDWARD M. BRENNAN.

"A man of pleasant yesterdays and confident to-morrows."

BORN in the Garden City, our hero passed successively through St. Nicholas Separate School and St. Catharines Collegiate Institute. In due time he registered in Onety-Three. His executive ability gained for him the offices of Premier of the Students' Parliament and business manager of the Year Book. His able manner in filling these offices warrants him a brilliant career in the field of his future endeavours.

DANIEL LEO FORESTELL.

"Semper Fidelis."

MARMORA in 1890 received a new citizen in the person of Dan, but, realizing it was too small a "burg," he moved to Campbellford. After imbibing all the knowledge of Campbellford's Primary and High Schools he came to St. Michael's and entered the Onety-Three Class. Dan has been a faithful student and valuable member of St. Michael's Lit. He leaves his Alma Mater with the heartiest good wishes for success in life.

LEONARD M. FORRISTAL.

"Suaviter in modo, fortiter in re."

LEONARD M. FORRISTAL was born in London. After graduating from the Separate School, he spent three years at Assumption College, Sandwich, where he "got wise" and came to St. Michael's. Upon completing his Sophomore Year, he bade adieu to academic pursuits for two years, returning to join Class '13 "Len" has always been a favourite, a good sport, an excellent student. His unassuming disposition has won him universal regard.

LAMBERT BENEDICT GARVIN.

"The child is father of the man."

LAMBERT entered the arena of life in the pretty village of Westport. Having met with brilliant success in St. Edward's Separate School, he resolved to quench his intellectual thirst by a "draught of philosophy." Endowed with a sparkling humour, offset by a staunch will—as is evidenced in the "Lit," where he holds the portfolio of Minister of Finance—Dame Fortune is bound to smile propitiously upon him.

BASIL THOMAS KINGSLEY.

"Apt for all affairs."

BARRIE is honored as his birthplace, Lindsay gave him his primary education, Ottawa and London Military Academies saw him depart with graduating honours, while at S.M.C. he has taken a brilliant course and shown rare literary and executive ability. As Opposition leader in the Lit. he has acquired an aggressive eloquence, and represented S.M.C. in the 1912 Inter-Collegiate debate. With his wonted energy, he is this year editing S.M.C. Year Book.

JAMES AUGUSTINE MOGAN.

"Nemo me impune lacessit."

BORN in Toronto in 1891, Gus received his primary education in St. Paul's School and De La Salle High School. Matriculating from St. Michael's in '09, he entered Class Onety-Three. He has ever taken a keen interest in literary work, having won the Class debate in his junior year. Handball is his favourite sport. If the past is any criterion of the future, his will surely be a smiling one.

THOMAS J. McGWAN.

"Fari quae sentiat."

HE was born in lovely Cobourg, and even in the Separate School there showed unmistakable signs of intellectual power. His higher education has been taken exclusively at St. Michael's. An extraordinarily keen observer and critic, he bids fair to be the Johnson of the twentieth century. Remote examinations are no menace to his equanimity, and he is wont to ignore preparatory tactics until they are practically at hand.

MICHAEL STEVEN O'BRIEN.

In 1910 there came into our midst a prodigy of that ever-more famous city, Peterboro. Born at Lindsay, "Mike" received his early education amid electric currents, but, finding no outlet for his genius, he came to S.M.C. He was manager of S.M.C. Rugby and Hockey teams, and, competing for 'Varsity in the Inter-Collegiate games, was awarded the coveted "T." Good also in Class, we have no doubt as to the brilliancy of his future.

F. CHARLES O'LEARY.

"At pulchrum est digito monstrari et dicier, Hic est"

Charles is an American, Buffalo claiming him. After receiving his primary education there, he later sought peaceful domicile in Toronto, where he founded his interest in life. In the Queen City, Charles attended De La Salle High School and St. Michael's College, from which he now graduates. He is very prominent in oratory and athletics, and for "Charley" we foresee a bright and brilliant career.

VINCENT C. QUARRY.

"Describe him who can,
An abridgement of all that is pleasant in man."

Mount Carmel, Ont., "Vince" calls home. Graduating from the academic department of St. Michael's College, he now leaves his Alma Mater with Class '13. His activities here have been many—not solely academic. Interested in every department of athletics, he stars in baseball and handball. Essay Medallist, War Minister of the Students' Parliament and Vice-President of the I.C.D.U., bespeak his ability, both literary and parliamentary.

C. K. CLARKE, M.D., LL.D., Dean of the Medical Faculty and Professor of Psychiatry, graduated in Medicine (Univ. of Tor.) in 1878, when twenty-one years of age. The greater part of his life has been spent in psychiatric work in the different provincial hospitals for the insane. He was Superintendent of Rockwood Hospital, Kingston, for many years, and occupied a similar position in the Toronto Hospital for the Insane before becoming Superintendent of the Toronto General Hospital. He became Dean of the Medical Faculty when Dr. R. A. Reeve retired some five years ago. Dean Clarke is particularly the friend of the younger men, and while taking the keenest interest in professional and administrative matters, still keeps in touch with all that is doing in athletic circles, and would consider it a breach of duty were he to miss an intercollegiate football or hockey match. The Dean is an enthusiast in whatever he undertakes, whether it be a scientific question, or a study in ornithology, a musical problem or the coaching of an athletic team, and he puts his whole energy into all that he does.

The new General Hospital will furnish the Dean with ample opportunity to make excellent use of his ability and energy.

MEDICINE

1963

SEEYMAN LAIRD ALEXANDER.

To the howling of the prairie wolves on a bleak November morning in North Dakota, Alex. added his processional hymn. To his early struggle in that primitive land he owes his wrestling proclivities, which netted him a Canadian championship in 1908. In society his progress has been irresistible. In the societies his advance was unpreecedented. His bedside manner is exhilarating. With these characteristics his success is sure.

WILLIAM CARMAN ALLISON.

"Self-reverence, self-knowledge, self-control,
These three alone lead life to sovereign power."

THE subject of this biography was born in the little village of Waterdown in the year 1892. At Waterdown he received his primary education, and on matriculating from the high school in 1908, decided to enter the study of Medicine. The following October he joined the Class of '13, gradnating with his class in that year.

HENRY HAROLD ARGUE.

"His years but young, but his experience old;
His head unmellowed, but his judgment ripe."

HENRY HAROLD ARGUE uttered his first yell in Shawville, Pontiac County, Quebec. Appreciating the advantages of Toronto University as compared with McGill, he came to Toronto, matriculated from Jarvis Collegiate, and entered the Medical College with the Year Thirteen. Since then he has successfully hoodwinked the examiners, and is gradnating with his class, of which he is a popnlar member.

JAMES PRIESTLY AUSTIN.

"He loves a joke, a quiet smoke, and friends to call around."

PRIESTLY was born in Essex, back in the eighties (he has forgotten when), and gradnated from Essex High School in 1906; successfnlly attended the Windsor Model School, and taught school two years before entering the University of Toronto. He came in meekly and began his course right, and being of an attractive nature and having a strong personality, drew many friends about him.

1963

ALBERT EDWARD BEST, B.A.

"For his purpose holds,
To follow knowledge like a sinking star,
Beyond the utmost bounds of human thought."

HE began life in Ontario, and has lived in Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia as well since then, yet fate led him to Toronto to take a course in Arts and Medicine. He has been interested and active in the varions fields of Student Volunteer and Y.M.C.A. work. He sails for China in the near future.

CLARENCE ALFRED BRISCO.

"If aught of prophecy be mine,
Thou will not live in vain."

ON May 6th, 1892, there was born in Napanee a youngster with an immense head; diagnosis, brains; prognosis, good. Matriculated from the Chatham Collegiate in '07, and came to Toronto in the fall of '08 to take up the study of Medicine. To "Biscuits," the youngest member of '13, best wishes for a successful future in the greatest of all professions.

FREEMAN ALBERT BROCKENSHIRE.

"Of their own merits modest men are dumb."

"BROCK" was born in the town of Exeter, Huron County, but two years later the family moved to Fingal, Elgin County. After leaving public school he was at home for four years; then, again returning to his educational pursuits, he attended Dutton High School, and matriculated in 1908. He entered Medicine the same year, and uninterrupted success has attended him throughout his entire course. A bright future is certainly his.

1963

ABRAHAM BRODEY, M.A.

HAVING gradnated in Arts in 1910, he was appointed a Fellow in Physiology. Under the gnidance of his celebrated namesake, he made many animal experiments, which resulted in his writing a successful M.A. thesis the following year on "The Excretory Mechanisms of the Kidney." He spent the summer months of 1912 in different hospitals of New York, also attended Crile's operative clinics in Cleveland. He belongs to the Alpha Omega Alpha fraternity and the faculty Journal Club.

CHESTER PETTIT BROWN, M.A.

"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might"

"C.P." entered Victoria in 1906, joining the B. & P. Class of '10. After graduating in Arts he was appointed to a Fellowship in Bio-Chemistry. During this year devoted to research work he added data of real value to the knowledge of Bio-Chemistry. His thesis on this subject gained for him the Master's degree. The University Settlement has taken much of his time in the last two years.

HENDERSON LYNDE BRYCE, B.A.

"He knew the cause of every malady."

HEINE received his early education in Toronto, matriculating from Harbord Collegiate with an Edward Blake Scholarship. He then entered University College, graduating in Arts in Physiology and Bio-Chemistry in '11. He continued with his Class, entering Medicine with '13. Among the many important offices which he has held around 'Varsity, he was secretary of the Undergraduates' Union for 1911-12.

JOHN FREDERICK BURGESS.

"I probed the sore as thy disciple should."

"FRED" was born in Meaford in 1890. He moved to Owen Sound in 1891, attended school there, securing his first-class certificate; but scorning to teach the young idea how to shoot, he entered Medical College in 1908. Spent vacations as interne in O. S. General Hospital in 1911 and Brantford General in 1912. Hockey and bridge-whist were his favourite athletic diversions. Member of Phi Sigma Tau Fraternity.

ALLAN JAMES BUTLER.

"Nature made him what he is"

"BUTT" was first introduced to the medical profession in Barrie, Ont., back in 1889. Entering Toronto University in 1908 as a "sawbone" with '13, he has managed to forget "The Bush" long enough to succeed in passing his examinations, as well as to become popular with the "Profs." and his fellow students. In his chosen profession we predict for him a brilliant and successful career.

THOMAS LOWELL BUTTERS.

"Nature shows herself best in her smallest works"

TOMMY was born in Niagara Falls, Ont., 22 years ago. He entered Medicine in 1908. Though small in stature, he has been a mighty man in his year. Next to his studies, athletics have been his specialty, he having played on 'Varsity I. basket-ball team, the Meds. Rugby and baseball teams. We expect great things of Tommy, and feel assured that he will not disappoint us.

OSBORNE ELLIOTT CARR, B.A.

"No blithe Irish lad was so happy as he."

1913

CARR was born at Woodford, away back in the 80's. He entered the Owen Sound C.I., from which he graduated in '05. The next two years he spent moulding the young ideas of a country school. His aspirations still murmured "Excelsior!" so he came to Toronto. Graduating in Arts in '11 he continued his Medical studies. During his career here he has helped win inter-faculty football championships.

T. CROSSAN CLARK.

"Who, studious in our art,
Shall count a little labour unrepaid."

IN the Dundas valley, where nature laughs in peach blossoms and clover blooms, Thomas Crossan Clark spent his youth. Having exhausted the springs of knowledge and the patience of his instructors in West Flamboro, he migrated to Dundas, where he pursued his secondary education in literature and football. With his accumulated knowledge and an infinite capacity for being amused, he entered the University of Toronto in 1908.

KENNETH EDGAR COOKE, B.A.

"It kept him from the paint and brush,
That smile that won't come off."

"KEN" saw the light of day in Baltimore, Ont. He followed his reverend father on a ministerial migration to Smith's Falls, where he acquired the rudiments of education. He came to 'Varsity and joined '11, and graduated in Arts, and hopes to graduate in Medicine. "Cookie" is a good sport in the true sense and won his "T" in football.

"The Follies of 1913"

WE might aptly use the trite phrase, "Little, but oh, my!" to describe the graduating Class of 1913, as, after five years of patient effort, she is ready to be cast out to practice on an unsuspecting public.

We were a fair-sized year when we entered, one hundred and thirty strong, but by a process of elimination through faculty mandates, economic ventures, desertions to other colleges and classes, we are now but a small band of forty-six, not including twenty-five B. and P. men who have since joined our numbers.

It was in the autumn of 1908 that we, as verdant freshmen of the premier year of the first spasm of the five-year course, gathered in Convocation Hall to listen to the President's annual address, when we were informed how easy the work at the University really was, if we simply laboured twenty hours out of every twenty-four—a simple little precept which we all followed for the greater part of the first week.

Our advent marked a new and great epoch in the annals of the Medical Department of the University of Toronto. Well equipped as the men of the old four-years' course were, the rapid advances in medical science, with which Toronto always aims at keeping abreast, necessitated an additional year; and 1913 graduates are the first offspring of this delayed parturition.

It did not take us long to become Oriented, and in a few days we could be seen strutting around the halls and recreation room, as only a freshman can. Of course, we were not afraid of the sophs.——much ——. They were beneath our notice, and we trusted to our own great size. Hardly had we got settled in November than we began to learn, however, that there was still H_2O around old 'Varsity, and that old time customs were not yet dead.

As freshmen we learned many things. First, that though not in the curriculum, there is a course in "Astrology" in Medicine at Toronto.

Second, that the "pompous professor" had no thoughts of our "returning to the farm" when he said that Physics was easy.

In athletics, in our freshman year, we were only able to bring home the Sifton Cup, emblematic of the Inter-faculty Basketball Championship. We were ably represented in this line of sport by Butters, Finch and Mahoney. These stalwarts were again successful in the following year. In wrestling, Alexander captured the 125-lb. and 135-lb. Intercollegiate Championships, and was 'Varsity representative at the C.A.A.U. meet, where he won the silver medal.

In soccer, Doug. McLean represented us on the first team, which won the Inter-collegiate Championship that year.

Roswell has been on the gymnasium team ever since he came to college, and in his final year was head gymnast.

Our few spare moments spent in the recreation room were made doubly enjoyable by the efforts of Morgan, Butters, Shields and Hicks at the piano—ardent disciples of Wagner and Geo. A. Cohan.

Towards the end of our freshman year, one of the most brilliant and popular members of our Class, Trebilcock, "shuffled off this mortal coil, and crossed to that country from whose bourne no traveller returns." This was the only marring incident to an otherwise happy freshman year.

It would take much more space than is allotted to adequately chronicle the achievements of our Class year by year. So I must be brief.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * *

The half-anxious, diffident look of the previous year was gone from our faces, and had given place to the "pale cast of thought" associated with the student at this important era in his college course. It was at this juncture that we were initiated into the mysteries of "the fate of the fats," and learned to look through a microscope with both eyes open. Early in the term we were ushered into the dissecting room, and on our first visits many yearned for the quiet and peaceful precincts of their homes. But we soon adjusted ourselves to our new environment; and, by dint of long hours of work and study, we gradually began to gain a grasp of the elementary principles of Medicine which are so essential to future success.

Just here let me mention the entertainment given us by the Dean on Hallowe'en; and I am sure we were most grateful to him for his kindness, and everyone who was there enjoyed himself to the uttermost. During the winter we held our year banquet at McConkey's, which was a huge success in every way, though the year Octette only numbered four, when called upon to contribute towards the end of the programme. If the outbursts of oratory heard at this time are any criterion for the future, we may expect to find such men as Lewis, Otton and others in the front ranks of the Government at no distant day.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * *

The transition from sophomore to third-year was made with much more ease and less disaster than the previous one, and October found us back again, eager for our work. For it is at this time that the student breaks away from the continual grind, so necessary to obtain a clear understanding of the requisite fundamentals of Medicine and Surgery. It was here we met Prof. MacKenzie, and learned the first principles of Pathology, and "how easy" it is to diagnose tissue changes in disease by the microscope.

In this session we were introduced to the hospital wards and the "nurses," and commenced our clinical studies, which are all important to ultimate success. This work was new to us, and, consequently, interesting from the first. Here individuality manifested itself and much brilliancy was shown. We also journeyed to Queen Street West once a week during this year, and it was most amusing to notice how interested the patients were in some members of our Class. It would be superfluous to mention any names in this connection.

The winter soon passed by, and spring was upon us, with all its terrors. Then the annual grind began, which terminated, as usual, in May, with the ever-to-be-dreaded examinations.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * *

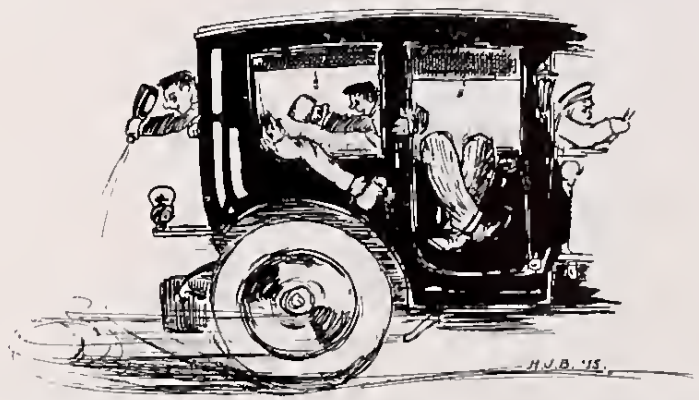
Those of us who were permitted by a kind fate to advance another step nearer the desired goal, on a bright October day in 1911, could be found thronging the musty halls of learning, where the ghost of Æsculapius walks, with a greater joy than ever had been on our faces. For could we not catch a closer view of something that, in the dim distance of the future, looked like a Degree.

It was in this year that the B. and P. men left Arts behind them, and took their place with us as true followers of Æsculapius.

The one slogan for our fourth year was work—work—work. Every morning we pursued our weary way to the hospitals; and in the afternoons the college claimed our time each day, with few exceptions, from one o'clock till five. Then, in the evening, after a few hours' study, we could, with care-free hearts, sing, "Nothing to do until to-morrow."

Our annual elections were held this year at the gymnasium, and I can safely say there was never a more exciting election in the history of the Medical Society. Everyone was there, with a few exceptions—notably Bill Scott. Ask him and he will tell you where he was.

In February we had a purely medical evening, called "Daffydil Night," and it was a huge success. The different professors were mimicked by the members of the year; and the manner in which Argue portrayed one of the surgical clinicians was a scream. There were thrusts at the different satellites of the year, and even our diminutive Tom Butters did not escape, his amorous tendencies having been noticed frequently on the fourth-floor east at the Toronto General Hospital.



But, though the weeks were flying fast, there were no signs of spring, except the annual blue papers from the secretaries' office, which cause a chill to pass down our spine, no matter how often we may see them.

1963

THOMAS DALY CUMBERLAND.

"And one man in his time plays many parts"

THE subject of this sketch was born at Rosemount, Simcoe County, in the late '80's. He was raised on the farm, getting his early education at the Rosemount Public School. Leaving the farm he went to Alliston High School, matriculating in 1908, and entered Medicine the same year. Tom has enjoyed nothing but success from the first and will have, we trust, nothing but success in the coming years.

GEORGE E. DARBY, B.A.

COMPLAINT.—Medicodoctoromatous glioma. Duration—Six years.

HISTORY.—Father survived similar complaint. Born in Nassagaweya, Ont., children's diseases caused his removal to Fort Plain, N.Y. After treatment with immunizing inoculations of educational serum, he came to 'Varsity and borned (?) in Vancouver. Graduating from Victoria, 1911, temporarily arrested disease. Present Illness.—Initial chill on registering, with recurrence every May. Aura of stars disappeared after attacks. Chief symptom is somnolence during lectures. Prognosis.—Great hopes are held for his future.

ARTHUR MELVILLE DAY.

"A youth full of promise."

"ART." was born in Leith, Ont., in 1886. Being fairly well satisfied with his new surroundings he decided to stick around. After his public school course he graduated from the Owen Sound Collegiate and spent two and a-half years teaching school. Having a strong impulse to serve his fellows he entered '11 B. and P. and '13 Medicine. His course has been marked by a high degree of success in athletics and in his studies.

1963

WILLIAM JAMES LAVINUS DEADMAN.

"When Duty whispered low, 'Thou must,'
The youth replies, 'I can.'"

"BILL" was born at Beeton, Ont. He received his High School and Model School training at Bradford and in 1903 he began teaching. He remained at this work for four years, when he entered Toronto University, graduating in Arts, 1911. "Bill," although often found working, always found time for sports, and more than once helped win the inter-faculty football championship. Last seen "Bill" was going strong.

GEORGE PERCIVAL DUNNING.

"He that would ambition's heights ascend,
Many a weary step must wend"

G. P. DUNNING was born in Cumberland. At seven he moved to Riceville, where he attended public school. After obtaining matriculation at Vankleek Hill he taught for a number of years. Believing that his vocation in life was the practice of medicine, he came to the University of Toronto to study, and if his enthusiasm remains unabated he has a promising future.

WILBERT H. EBY, B.A.

1963

"DAD" entered Victoria in 1907, registering in B. and P. His executive ability was recognized by his appointment to the class executive and the "Acta." In the Literary Society his oratorical ability blossomed; indeed, many expect to see him some day on the front benches at Ottawa. In Athletics he holds a "V" as member of the Victoria Rugby team of 1908. After graduating with First Class Honours he has faithfully attended all dances and "At Homes" in his last two years.

1963

PERCIVAL ELMORE FAED.

"What is more satisfactory to the human heart than to be needed and know we are needed!"

FOLLOW the trail of fence-boards inscribed "Faed's Paris Green," etc., and you will arrive at Woodville, where Percival Elmore Faed first smiled, on November 16th, 1890. After learning his ABC's, Percy journeyed to the Queen City and wore a Jarvis Collegiate cap, wielding a lacrosse stick as energetically as solving quadratic equations. After matriculation Percy joined the "Varsity Meds. of 1913."

ORIE ELGIN FINCH.

"The most manifest sign of wisdom—a continual cheerfulness"

ORIE was born on December the thirteenth, 1887, and came east from his home in Victoria, B.C., on September the thirteenth, 1908, to join the Class of "Thirteen." With this in his favour, together with his easy manner, we predict for this son of Galen a successful career. His one weakness is the morning "Globe."

ANDREW ALMON FLETCHER. 1963

"Story! God bless you! I have none to tell you, sir"

ALMON FLETCHER was born in the year 1889 in Kingston, Ont., where his father, Prof. J. Fletcher, of University College, then held the Chair of Latin in Queen's University. After taking the Arts Course for one year in M. and P., he transferred to the five year Course in Medicine. He is President of the Fifth Year. and also a member of the A.O.A. honorary fraternity.

ROBERT OAKLEY FROST.

"And o'er his gloomy portal carved these words,
'All hope abandon, ye who enter here.'"

BORN at Kinmount on Febrnary 8th, 1890. Received his secondary education at Jarvis Collegiate Institute in Toronto, and entered the Faculty of Medicine at Toronto University in 1908. During the next five years he attended the lectures and clinics every once in a while, and graduated with his class in 1913.

JOHN ZACHARIAH GILLIES.

1963 "I do indeed rejoice to see truly learned men"

GILLIES became a Canadian by birth, a Democrat by adoption, and a Canadian by mature consideration. He immigrated to University College in 1907. (See TORONTONENSIS, 1911.) He has been TORONTONENSIS Rep., Glee Club President, Member of Parliament (Mock), and in spite of all has kept his diadem free from those scintillating orbs which beset the academic spring lamb.

RUPERT WILLIAM GLIDDON.

BORN in Elgin County, Rupert got his early training in Rodney and Union public schools He attended Collegiate Institute at St. Thomas where he obtained Junior Teacher's and Hon. Matriculation certificates. After having belonged to the ranks of the pedagogues for two years, University life proved an attraction too strong to resist, and he enrolled in Medicine in '08. Since then he has been able to resist September "Sups." and we anticipate a very successful future.

GRATTAN C. GRAHAM.

"The not incurious in God's handiwork"

AND so like Karsish he journeyed far in search of knowledge, even from Fenelon Falls to Toronto, where he has succeeded in picking up many crumbs of learning, some of which are prescribed in the University curriculum, and many more which are not. He has carried on an extensive study of the emotions, and intends, we understand, to specialize in diseases of the heart upon his return to his native heath.

GEORGE GARNET GREER, B.A.

"Surely, surely, slumber is more sweet than toil"

GARNET was born at Cold Springs, Ont., in 1887, but has since made Peterborough his home. He graduated in Arts from Queen's University in 1909. The following fall he entered the second year in Medicine. In his final year he was Medical Representative to Queen's. "Speed" has won many friends during his college career here, who unite in wishing him every success in his chosen profession.

HUGH HART, B.A.

"One who never turned his back, but marched breast forward."

HUGH was born near Hampstead, Perth County. After a course at the Stratford Collegiate Institute and later at Model School, he taught one year very successfully. 'Varsity then called him and he entered the Biology Course with '10, graduating with Frstt-Class Honours, after which he turned his attention to Medicine. He won his "T" in Soccer and is a member of the Alpha Omega Alpha honorary fraternity.

ELGIN ROLAND HASTINGS.

"The more he spoke, the more the wonder grew
That one small head could carry all he knew."

ELGIN first chirped at Lemonville in the late summer of '86. At an early age he determined to enter the medical profession and so took training at Markham Collegiate. After teaching four years he entered Medicine with '13. His geniality has won for him many friends and we rest assured of his future success.

WILLIAM OLIVER HENRY.

"Fair science frowned not on his humble birth."

THE subject of this sketch entered this vale of tears in 1886 in West Huron. He soon learned to walk and talk, and passing rapidly through public school and Clinton Collegiate, matriculated in 1904. In payment of his debt to his country he taught school for two years and then entered '11 B. and P. His course has been markedly successful and his friends all look to him to make good after graduation.

ROBERT HOME.

"And still the wonder grew,
That one small head could carry all he knew."

ROBERT, better known as "Bobbie," was born in Toronto and put in his early school days at Lansdowne school. He is a graduate of Harbord Collegiate and in 1908 he became a disciple of Æsculapius and entered 'Varsity Medical College with '13. He has been a faithful and diligent student and made many friends.

OSCAR MICHAEL IRWIN.

1963

OSCAR's early impressions were received at Lisle, Ont. Having "put one over" on the examiners at Collingwood Collegiate, he came to 'Varsity, entering the '07 B. and P. Class. After graduation the lure of the West held him for four years. Returning last year, he soon convinced his classmates that he was not only an excellent student but also an all-round good fellow The West gets another good man in Dr. Irwin.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN KEILLOR.

"Self-reverence, self-knowledge, self-control."

As a smooth, well-rounded, full measure, he graduated from his father's creamery, equipped with the milk of human kindness and the cream of sound judgment. He early learned to test the acumen of youthful minds, training them to higher standards. Like his illustrious namesake, he, too, hopes to light the torch of Freedom and electrify the pale numb clay of frail humanity, that they may soar to perpetual sunshine

CHARLES FRASER KNIGHT.

BORN June 4th, 1890. Following in the footsteps of "Dear Old Dad." From Moosejaw, Sask., and is going back.

DOUGLAS BURROWS LEITCH, B.A.

"Duty is his law, Conscience his ruler"

1963

"DOUG." was born in Eldorado, 1888. He received his preliminary education at Picton High School and Albert College, Belleville. After spending four years in the B. and P. Class at Victoria College, he graduated in Arts and entered Medicine in '13. "Doug" has taken an active part in every phase of college life. We know that his systematic method of working, his genial disposition and energetic character will make him a huge success.

EDMUND PERCY LEWIS, B.A.

"And where'er he met a stranger, there he left a friend"

PERCY graduated in Arts with '09 at McMaster. Quiet, sincere and capable, he has won the respect of us all, in token of which he was elected President of the Medical Society in his final year. He is a member of Nu Sigma Nu, and intends to practice among the cow-punchers, Indians and real estate sharks of our glorious West.

FREDERICK JOHNSON LIVINGSTON, B.A.

"Surely, surely, slumber is more sweet than toil"

FRED was born in Stevensville, Ontario, some twenty-three odd years ago, but very soon moved to Hamilton, where he matriculated. He came down to Victoria University and graduated in Arts and then joined the '13 Class in Medicine, where he devoted his attention to Athletics and his spare time to Academic work. In spite of "Livy's" antagonistic view of work he has had no stars throughout his course.

In spite of the elements, the examinations came on just the same, and we were all a joyous crowd when on May 22nd we wrote our last paper.

* * * * * * * * * * * *

And now we find ourselves approaching the end of our course in college. Our whole five years have been made up of friendships and associations, contracted in our first years, and strengthened as we journeyed on; and we hope that they will be continued and fostered through all the years to come, when we are all scattered broadcast over this fair Dominion, endeavouring to cheat the grim reaper of his prey.

Our final year has been wholly clinical, and we have had opportunities for work and self-advancement that no previous year has been fortunate enough to have had. This session each member of the Class has had the privilege of living in the Toronto General Hospital as an interne, for one month, thereby gaining experience for future work which is invaluable. In this year we have been allowed to follow our own inclinations to a great extent, and "Elective Courses" have been arranged, which permit a student to do extra work in the subject in which he is especially interested.

What we accomplished depended greatly on ourselves, and I am safe in saying that not one of the boys has thrown away this opportunity, which is not to be found in any other medical university, in Canada at least.

The Medical "At-Home" was held as usual in the fall, and everyone who attended said it was the "best ever," so we are deeply indebted to the committee in charge for their untiring efforts to make it the success it was. The graduating dinner was held at McConkey's on February 6th, and the committee should feel proud of the result of their endeavours. Everyone present enjoyed themselves to the "full." We had the honour of having Dean Clarke, Prof. McPhedran, Dr. Primrose, and the new professor at the "Bairnside," Dr. Watson, with us on that occasion, and we received some timely hints. "Senator Otton" excelled himself this night in responding to the toast to "Year '13"; but was not the subject itself one to inspire brilliancy?

How strange it seems to be considering our life-work of the future, when but a short time ago we, as verdant freshmen, were wandering around the campus inquiring the way to the registrar's office! A certain spirit of sadness rests on all our meetings now, as we think that each one marks the end of another step in the shortening path of our college activity. Only a few more months and then we will separate, to go our various ways.

But in going we will take with us the realization of having always stood for the highest and best interests of the college in all of her many activities. But, like the Class, its historian must pass along too, and make room for others; so, with a rousing toast to our dear old "Alma Mater," the Class of 1913 must say "Good-bye"—never again "So long," but "Good-bye."

In the sunny years to come, boys,
When we are old and gray,
And mayhap we hear the youngsters yell
On some convocation day,
Then we'll gather in a ring, boys,
As we loved to do with glee,
And we'll try our best to yell again
For dear old 'T3.

Shall I destroy him! Whether there, or there, or there?
That I may give the local wound a name."

ALTHOUGH born within sound of Bow Bells, the crystal of Fate shows him studying Medicine in Toronto. 1910 saw him "shake the Tiger's paw" for the Arts degree from Trinity. With an insight into Surgery, as presented above, his success is assured.

"Gie fools their silk and knaves their wine,
But Doc'll tak' the 'Globe.'"

Born at Woodstock and educated at the College, he chose Pharmacy as his profession, and graduated from O.C.P. in 1905. But he preferred Medicine, and taking the B. and P. Course, got his B.A with '11. Among his many attainments are the University Chess Championship, a full knowledge of politics and a firm belief in "The Globe." Those alone are enough to ensure him a successful career.

STAFFORD WALKER OTTON.

"The man of firm and noble soul
No factious clamours can control"

Stafford is a former schoolmaster, being a graduate of the Leamington High School and of the Regina Normal. He was born in 1884 on a farm in Elgin County. He was year representative on the "At Home" Committee, '09; representative to the Parliament of Undergraduates, '10; year treasurer,'11; and secretary of the Medical Society, '13. Although 23 years of age in '13 and superstitious, he hopes to graduate this year.

1963

LOUIS MELVILLE RICE.

"At my nativity
The front of heaven was full of fiery shapes"

Mel was born in London, Ont., in 1889. Since then he has travelled much in this fair Dominion and his friends abound from Vancouver to Nova Scotia. He belongs to the Alpha Kappa Kappa and Alpha Omega Alpha honour fraternity. He has a brilliant mind, keen perception, and boundless energy, and is sure to win for himself a prominent place in the medical world.

STANLEY ALEXANDER RICHARDSON.

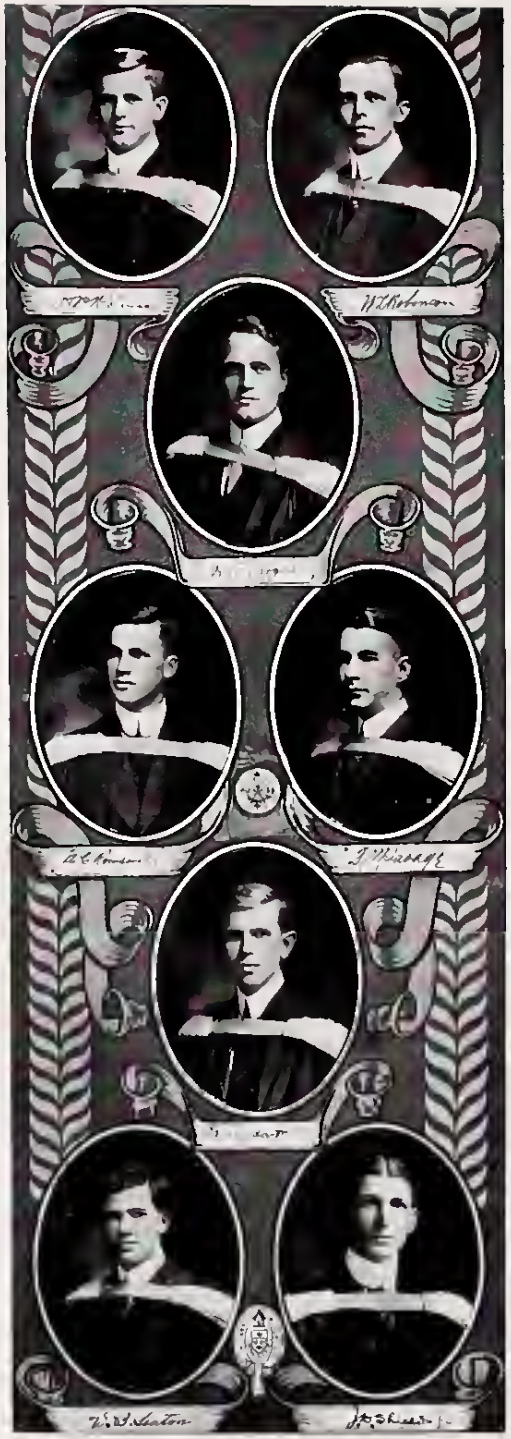
"To-day and here the fight's begun,
Of the great fellowship you're free"

Born on the farm in Kent County in 1890, and has never regretted it. His early education was received in a country school-house, whence he matriculated into Toronto University, joining (ill-fated) '13 Medicine. A thorough, conscientious student, Stanley has also found ample time for sports and the various activities of student life. Stanley looks like a sure winner.



HOWARD PARKER ROBINSON.

"He's little and he's wise;
He's a terror for his size."

"Bobbie" was born in Kleinburg in 1892 and has the distinction of being the youngest member of the Class. He is an indefatigable student, is generally credited with possessing more information per square inch than anyone else around 'Varsity, and is a member of the Alpha Omega Alpha honour fraternity. He is bound to win out in life, because you can't keep a good man down.

WILLIAM LIPSETT ROBINSON, B.A.

"The mind's the measure of the man"

Will was born in Portage la Prairie, spent his early boyhood in Brandon, and later became a permanent dweller in the beautiful Okanagan Valley. Vernon High School, Brandon College and McMaster University broadened his outlook upon life sufficiently to interest him in the manifold science of Medicine. Joining '13, Will has proved a good student and sterling classmate. We predict for him no small degree of success.

HAROLD PERCIVAL ROGERS.

"Those that say and do are good, we say;
Those that do, but say not, great, we call.
Tell, O Fount of Virtue, what are they
That, while saying much, do naught at all?"

Born in the City of Toronto and educated at Harbord Collegiate Institute, Rogers has shown himself to be, at College, of the distinction of "Do, but say not," from which we can conclude that he is great. N'ese-ce pas?

ARTHUR CHARLES ROWSWELL.

Though born in Colorado in 1890, he took train for Canada at the age of eight months. He matriculated from U.C.C. in '07. The following year '13 first knew him. He has been interested in Athletics and was Vice-President of the Medical Athletic Society, 1910-11, Secretary of the Gymnasium Club, 1911-13. He won his "T" at Gymnastics, has played on the Medical Rugby teams, and is now about to apply himself to the more serious aspects of life.

THOMAS MACDONALD SAVAGE.

"Keeps his counsel, does his duty,
Cleaves to friends and loveth beauty"

Tom entered this vale of tears — years ago at Guelph, where he received his early education at the Collegiate and Ontario Agricultural College. He decided to follow in his father's footsteps and entered Medicine. Since then he has been doing nothing else. Tom has made a host of friends here, who unite in wishing him every success in his chosen profession.

WILLIAM A. SCOTT, B.A.

"He keeps good nature still, whate'er he lose."

"Bill" graduated from McMaster in 1909 and in the fall of the same year entered Medicine. He has participated in every phase of college life, but his outstanding characteristic has been arguing, by which he has gained considerable renown, not only in Intercollegiate debating, but also around the hospitals. Bill expects to marry and start a practice in some little town out West. Good luck to him!

WALLCAE BALFOUR SEATON.

"A man he is to many maidens dear."

Wallace Balfour Seaton was born in Fort Erie. "Wallie" joined '13 in '08 and has pursued a rather eventful course. Handicapped though he was by the appetite of an ostrich with the digestive powers of a debutante attending pink teas, he bade fair to star on the gridiron until waylaid by a prolonged attack of typhoid, from which he barely recovered in time to enter the third year.

JAMES DOUGLAS SHIELDS.

"It is the witness still of excellency
To put a strange face on one's own worth"

"Doug" started life's journey from Caistorville in 1887. Obtaining his Senior Leaving from Markham High School in 1905 he deliberated three years before he entered Medicine. His activities at 'Varsity have been many, having time and again upheld the honour of the Meds. in Baseball, Hockey, Soccer, as well as at lectures. Here's to success, "Doug!"

KEITH MYRIC BENOIT SIMON.

"Absque, labore Nihil."

Born at Rossean, Dominica, 28 years ago, Myric received his early education at the Dominica High School, taking the first Government Scholarship for three years. Coming to America he studied Chemistry in New York and entered Toronto University in 1908, where he at once gained a high standing, taking Honours in each year. He is a member of the Alpha Omega Alpha fraternity.

EARL ALLARD SMITH.

"We who are not famous should not plume ourselves on that In addition to the gems of purest ray, the dark unfathomed caves of ocean bear also a quantity of rubbish."

A native of Toronto, he received his education in its public schools and in Harbord Collegiate Institute. On matriculating he attended the School of Practical Science, but finding the course unsatisfactory to him, entered the more congenial sphere of Medicine.

HERBERT ALLAN SNETSINGER.

"I'd rather gang supperless to bed
Than to get up in the morning early."

1963

On Jan. 2, 1890, in the town of Colborne, "Snetz." first made his debut into this tiresome world. Matriculated from Colborne High School, '07. In Medicine, Allan has proved himself an ardent student, a prince among good fellows, somewhat inclined to lassitudes, and most of all a perfect gentleman. Best wishes follow him for a successful future in the greatest of all professions.

JAMES THOMSON.

"The hand that follows the intellect can achieve."

"Jim" was born in Galt, and there spent his boyhood days. He started his educational career in Galt Public School and Collegiate Institute, but, before matriculating in 1904, he went West, where he homesteaded and ranched, near Parkland, Alberta, for four years. His aspirations then again turned his course along educational pursuits, and reviewing his Collegiate work, he matriculated at Calgary, 1908, and entered Medicine the same year.

JAMES GRANT TURNBULL.

"Mind your own business and you will soon have a business of your own to mind."

In 1885 a curly-headed infant began to rule the Turnbull home at Grand Bend. He attended High School at Sarnia and, after teaching school for three years, entered Medicine with '13. Since then he has made a creditable showing and evaded September "Sups."

FRANK MUIR WALKER.

"Thou seem'st a palace
For crowned truth to dwell in."

Born in 1886 at Stony Creek. After primary work at the "Creek" he gradnated with Honours from Hamilton Collegiate in 1904, and from Normal in 1905. In 1908, after three years' teaching, he entered on his Medical career. Frank is a general favourite and a "strong" man of the Class. He bas won well-deserved Honours each year and will soon carve a name for himself.

GEORGE ALBERT WATSON.

"For even though vanquished he could argue still."

Barrie, the scene of George's early arguments, was soon deserted for Toronto, where the Collegiates and First Year Arts at Victoria proved tame. Filled with the wanderlust, he explored the West from Texas to the Yukon. Then, his aims defined, he became a charter member of '13, whose battles he has fought on the baseball field and elsewhere. Popular with his fellows, and a clear thinker, "Doc" will make good.

FRED EARLBY WEBB.

"An upright, downright, honest man."

It was an embryo-doctor that was born in Aurora 'way back in '88; for after attending Aurora High School and teaching for a couple of years, Fred entered University in '13 with the Medical profession as his objective. Besides appropriating to himself much medical science, Fred has been President of his year and also has been connected with the Y.M.C.A. His genial manner has won for him many friends and exceptional popularity.

Herbert McKenzie Shutt

Born July 23, 1889, at Parkdale, Toronto.

GEORGE EDWARD WHITE.

"I am bewitched with the rogue's company"

GEORGE E. WHITE, of Windsor, Ontario, is a man of many parts, and in every part a gentleman. His many friends in the year "Thirteen" call him their great "White Hope." His smile is open, his manner free; his heart enlarged, and his age twenty-three.

HAROLD WILLIAM WOOKEY.

"And he could almost heal a broken heart."

BORN at Mandeville, British West Indies, he received his primary education in that sunny clime. His High School education was obtained at Jarvis Collegiate Institute, Toronto. On graduation, Harold entered the Faculty of Medicine with '13 and was President of his sophomore year. Harold is a member of the Alpha Omega Alpha fraternity. In Athletics he has played Football and Cricket, being a member of the Rosedale Eleven.

The Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering

WHISTLER once said, "Black and White Art may be summed up in two words—Phil May." With even better reason one may let the two words, "Dean Galbraith," stand for the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering.

Appointed Professor of Engineering at the inception of the School of Practical Science—the larvæ stage of the present Faculty—he was given a free hand both as to the general plan and as to the details of his Department, and he fashioned it in accordance with his own views, with little reference to precedent or authority. At first he was the Department of Engineering, civil, mining, and mechanical, and as the work grew he succeeded in securing colleagues, mostly trained by himself, and in sympathy with his ideas. In a council so composed his influence has naturally been preponderating. To say autocratic might not be far wrong as far as results go, but it would be ludicrously inaccurate as regards methods.

JOHN GALBRAITH, M.A., LL.D.
DEAN OF THE FACULTY OF APPLIED SCIENCE.

The Dean is the most democratic of presiding officers. He never uses his authority as chairman, and yet he usually gets his way.

Thus it has come about that the Dean's way is the way of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering. What is that way?

Leaving College with the highest honours in Mathematics and Modern Languages, he became a student of Engineering, and was employed in railway construction in the Province of Quebec. There he found that he could not solve a simple engineering problem nor understand a word of what the people about him were saying. The result was, rightly or wrongly, a profound dissatisfaction with University teaching as he knew it. He looked upon it as unpractical, and thought that the unpractical character came from a want of sympathy and understanding on the part of the teacher with the business which was to occupy the student when he left the College. A teacher can train teachers. An investigator can train investigators. Only an engineer can successfully train engineers. To bring about this sympathy and mutual understanding between the teachers and the practitioner has been the ideal of the Dean all through his official life.

The Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering is, as far as he could make it so, the realization of this ideal. Always he has kept in the closest touch with engineers in active practice. Always he has tried to learn what kind of technical training met their approval. Always he has been quick to turn his knowledge into practice.

The result is the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering as it stands. By that his policy must be judged, and one feels sure he will be content to have it so—provided only that the judges shall be the engineering profession.

FREDERIC ALPORT.

"Freddie" Alport, A M.Can.Soc.C.E., is a graduate of S.P.S. '06, and can still remember the days when he and Casey Baldwin won the Mulock Cup for Junior School. Having gained all the experience that railway engineering can afford, he is now back, taking a course in Sanitary Engineering, and will return shortly to the West, there to solve the problems of water purification and sewage disposal.

CHARLES R. AVERY.

"The loss of wealth is loss of dirt,
All sages in all times assert;
The happiest man's without a shirt."

Chose his birthplace at Niagara-on-the-Lake, in 1891. Came to Toronto in 1909. At college a diligent and industrious scholar. Gained three summers of experience in various capacities on railroad maintenance. Wide-awake and of good presence. Neither smokes nor chews. A model man in many respects.

LAWRENCE COUNSELL MARTIN BALDWIN.

"His gaping face was cleft, and he grinned."

This heir to the Baldwins was first seen in 1891, in Toronto. He was carefully led through the depths of early education in a private school, and he matriculated from Trinity College School, Port Hope. In his grad. year Martin became the vice-president of the Architectural Club, which position he ably filled. We all wish him great success as an architect, and believe that he will be a credit to the profession.

FRANCIS WELDON BEATTY.

"A woman is only a woman, but a good cigar is a smoke."

Two cities—Ottawa and Pembroke—fought over "Weary's" birthplace. Ottawa blamed it on Pembroke, and Pembroke, being too small to resent, was forced to shoulder the responsibility. Having obtained his matriculation, "Weary" entered the "School" as a Civil student in Class '13. "Weary" has been most prominent during his college career, and it is hoped that he may be equally prominent in his profession.

WILLIAM BENJAMIN BEATTY.

"With child faith dead, and youth dreams gone like mist,
We stand at noon beneath the blazing sun,
Upon life's dusty road, our course half done
In the glare and heat, the race must now be won"

"Ben's" name has never appeared in the "Who's Who" column, but, doubtless, it will some day. He has been one of the most successful students of Class '13, having obtained honours throughout his whole course.

BRUCE S. BLACK.

"Many are called, but few get up."

"Bruie" took his first soothing syrup in Toronto in 1893. He graduated from Parkdale Collegiate in 1909, and showed his good judgment by enrolling at "School" in Civil Engineering, where he has won honours each year. His fellow students have twice elected him to the executive of Year '13, and all join in heartiest wishes for every success in the prominent future he is sure to have.

DAVID BLAIN.

David began life in 1890, entering the Model School at an early age. After five years spent there, he went to U.C.C. While there he obtained a high standing. Matriculating, he spent one year in Arts, then came to the "School" to take Civil Engineering. David is not only a student, but a leader in the gymnasium and a general favourite with all. He has held many positions, including the presidency of the University Fencing Club.

WILLIAM MIDDLETON BROCK.

Not being fond of noise (except of his own making), William chose the quiet little village of Thamesford as the scene of his early activities. He received his preliminary education at the village school, and then drifted through the Ingersoll Collegiate Institute. After two or three years of country school teaching, he entered the "School." After two years on the shelf, he then cast his lot with the Class of '13, choosing the Structural Option.

BENJAMIN BROWN.

"He is small, but wise."

First saw life in horrible Russia in 1888, where he received his primary education, completing it in Toronto in 1900. After that decided to earn his way. During this working period he took a liking to Architecture, and for this purpose came to School and joined Class '13. We have no doubt that he chose wisely, and will make a success of his profession.

O. LORNE CAMERON.

"Oh, Hell" Cameron first appeared at Woodville. He entered Lindsay High School in 1904, but, not finding large enough field for his endeavours at that place, came to West Toronto Collegiate. He entered the School with '11, after a year and a half with the C.N R., but, getting back in the wilds the next summer, he stayed out, and made his next appearance with '13. Well liked by everyone, he is a sure winner in the eternal grind.

LYLE L. CAMPBELL.

Lyle, alias Crip, alias Algernon, was born October 1st, 1909. Everything that happened before he struck the School of Impractical has been long forgotten. "Crip" was a charter member of that happy family, in Class '13, whose big holler has always been "less work and more diversity." (N.B.—Not adversity.) He was a conspicuous member of this year's good Senior School Rugby team, and also played considerable hockey. Frank Gotch has nothing on him in the wrestling game.

G. MILROY CARRIE.

"All's well that ends well."

The "Count" made his debut on our planet May 13, 1892. He escaped from Owen Sound Collegiate in time to enter the School with '13, took honours the first year, but, tiring of the pace, joined the Democratic party. He gave considerable time to athletics, and won his colours in basket-ball. We look for big things from Carrie, and he takes with him the best wishes of the entire Class.

GRANT MACDONALD COOK.

"He knows what's what, and that's as high
As metaphysic wit can fly."

Cook first opened his eyes in St. Thomas, Ontario, early in 1891. When the local collegiate had done its best by him, he journeyed to Toronto and joined Year '13. During his summer wanderings he cultivated the temperament of the "man from Missouri," which, coupled with the characteristic energy with which he attacks his problems, will surely place him high in his chosen profession.

JAMES ANDREW COOMBS.

"I come from haunts of coots and hern."

Born in Blyth in 1891. While yet quite young, Andy commenced his studies in the village school. During his high school life he indulged in baseball, playing two seasons in the Old Lakeside League In 1909 he decided to honour Toronto with his presence. where although landing several stars, he has still a chance. His motto is: "Much practice and little theory."

BURWELL RANSCIER COON.

"Was long and streit and gastly for to see."

B. R. Coon first saw the light of day in London, Ont., where he was administered his early education. He matriculated into 'Varsity from Jarvis Collegiate. For the first two years Burwell hid his light under a bushel; but in his third and fourth he took a moving interest in the Architectural Club, being treasurer and latterly president. We wish Coonie every success in the practice of Architecture

ALBERT JOHN DATES.

A. J. Dates, born 1890, at Detroit, attended primary schools at Detroit, Deseronto, Toronto and Owen Sound, where he matriculated in 1908. He entered the Civil Course S.P.S. in 1909, and has attended lectures faithfully ever since. He played Junior O.H.A for Owen Sound when in his freshman year but took no active part in University athletics. Ab. is a member of the Phi Sigma Tau Fraternity.

RUSSELL FREDERICK FIDDES.

FREDERICK RUSSELL FIDDES, born at Petrolea, Ont., 1890. Attended Petrolea public and high schools, Matriculated from London Collegiate in 1909. "Fidd" entered "Civil Engineering" at the "School" with the class of onety-three. Vacation months have been spent with the National Transcontinental Railway on "Construction," and on the Canadian Pacific Railway on "Maintenance of Way." Played Rugby with Senior School in "Mulock Cup" series. He is a member of the Phi Sigma Tau Fraternity.

DAVID HOWARD FLEMING.

"Enough of science and of strife,
Close up those barren leaves
Come forth and take to you a wife,
Your salary to receive."

BORN on the beautiful Island of Pelee, he soon grew to corn-stalk proportions. As a son of the soil he rose with the sun. Being an Irishman he lived on potatoes In 1905 he was transplanted to Windsor and again in 1909 to Toronto, entered the "School" "and lived happy ever after."

JOHN STUPART GALBRAITH.

AFTER being safely piloted through the perils of early childhood, John was sent to the Model School, Toronto, to prepare for his engineering course, and continued his education at St Andrew's College, where he also obtained a certain status as a Rugby player. He was president of the Freshman Class and secretary-treasurer of the U. of T. Rugby Club in 1911. As a scholastic record, John obtained honour standing in two years and a very creditable standing in the third.

ALAN MACDONELL GERMAN.

"PETE" was born at Welland, where, after a hard struggle, he matriculated, entering the Civil Engineering Course in 1908. At 'Varsity his record has been an enviable one. During his course he has played on the University Lacrosse team, the O.H.A and Intercollegiate Hockey teams, for three years on the Senior Rugby teams, and has been a member of the Athletic Directorate. Amongst his numerous friends there can be no doubt as to his future success.

HYMAN MEYER GOODMAN.

"You can never tell the size by the noise"

BETTER known as "Frenchie," entered this life in London, England, in 1890, during the dark age, where his early education was obtained. There he stayed till 1902, when he answered the call of the wild and came to Montreal. Commercial work bored him, so he joined Class '13 and has been a very prominent factor in his year ever since.

ARTHUR GRAHAM GRAY.

AFTER a stormy course through public school he went to Jarvis Collegiate and then entered "School" An innate desire to invent perpetual motion or to bridge the Atlantic caused him to take Civil Engineering, and his work in this has been most successful. "Art's" activities also tended to Rugby. As member and again Captain of 'Varsity III. he did yeoman service, while great success featured his work as secretary of the Rugby Club in 1912.

EDWIN ROY GRAY.

"I'll speak it, though hell itself should gape
And bid me hold my tongue!"

"EDDIE" sprang into existence in Norfolk County. His ability to ask questions soon found him a place at the neighbouring school. In 1902 he graduated from Woodstock College, and spent the next two years in Arts at McMaster University. The year 1909 saw him entering Science, and the services which he has rendered his Class and the Engineering Society will long be remembered.

JOHN RAYMOND HAMILTON.

"HAMMY" was presented to a long-suffering world in Moosomin, Sask. In due course of time he grew up, and after having learned all that there was to be learned at St. John's College School in Winnipeg, he came to Toronto and enrolled with the "Meek and Peaceful" in Civil Engineering. He is a member of the Phi Sigma Tau Fraternity, and throughout his course has shown himself to be a capable student and a good fellow.

HAROLD ALBERT HAWLEY.

A GLIMPSE into the middle of the Family Bible of the Hawley home, at Toronto, would reveal the fact that Harold was born at Trenton in the year 1887. He attended the public and high schools in his native town, intending to enter the medical profession. After obtaining a high standing in the senior matriculation, his superior judgment led him to choose a higher ambition and enter the School to take Civil Engineering.

ALBERT W. HAYMAN.

"A man not given to words or strife;
A man of sense"

BERT spent the first eighteen years of his life in London, Ont. After four years spent gleaning knowledge at the Collegiate Institute, his desire to migrate to the Faculty of Applied Science was gratified and he entered the notorious Class of '13. During his sojourn his interest in engineering subjects has been marked and we shall no doubt hear of him in the future

RICHARD LANKASTER HEARN.

"For the structure that we raise,
Time is with material filled"

R. L. HEARN was born in 1890 and educated at St. Alban's Cathedral School, matriculated in 1909 at 'Varsity. Richard's interests have been divided between the Y.M.C.A. Athletics and Academic work, this last receiving sufficient notice to earn for him a place in the honour list each year. Richard has spent his vacations doing useful work for the Municipal Engineering Department.

HENRY J. HEINONEN.

"A fellow-feeling makes him wondrous kind"

HENRY J. HEINONEN, born in Negaunee, Mich., in Nov., 1890, came to Toronto in 1893, his native tongue being Finnish, on starting to school he had to learn English. In 1909 he entered S.P.S. where his academic brilliance and long fair hair made him a shining light in Class "13." In the summer of 1912 he toured Europe, winding up with the time of his life at Paris.

OTTO HOLDEN.

"A man of many parts"

"FAT" first tipped Toronto's public scales in 1891; showed a remarkable thirst for "more" at Parkdale Collegiate and eagerly quenched it by "copping" honours every year at "School." His good nature and genial disposition won him the office of fourth year "Rep." of the Athletic Association and his athletic prowess a place on Senior School Rugby team. Theoretical and practical ability will find for Otto a prominent position in Civil Engineering.

JOHN TURNER HOWARD.

"With all his exuberance of spirits he was far from being so frivolous as the world imagined."

JACK was born in Toronto in 1892 and obtained his early education at Harbord Collegiate. Much of the success of the "School Column" in "Varsity" was due to the fact that Jack was senior "Varsity Rep." in his third year. Two years spent picking good stones out of the Mineralogical lab. have done much in the formation of our future good road expert.

EDWARD TAYLOR IRESON.

"And still the wonder grew
That one small head could carry all he knew"

EDWARD TAYLOR IRESON began his career in 1890. He received his education at the Toronto public schools, and at the West Toronto and Jarvis Street Collegiate Institutes. He graduated in 1909 and entered Civil Engineering. "Eddie" by his numerous good qualities has gained the friendship and esteem of all, and all his friends will watch with interest his brilliant career.

GORDON ROSS JOHNSON.

"If you're waking, call me early"

IN 1889 some officious angels visited Tavistock, Ont., and deposited "Galloo." A posse was organized but the angels escaped. One dark night in 1898 he was taken to Fernie. At an indignation meeting held in 1904 it was decided to send him away. He came to St. Andrew's College, where he was tolerated for three years. He entered "Science" in 1909. It is not generally supposed that he was born to be drowned.

ROBERT LAWRENCE JUNKIN.

"Do I view the world as a vale of tears?
No, reverend sir, not I!"

NEARLY twenty-three years ago, in Brockville, by the old St. Lawrence River, Lawrence first saw the light. Canada little suited this precious child, for at an early age he moved to London, England, where he acquired his English accent. He attended St. Andrew's College, and later spent a few months in Arts. "Olly" eventually settled down in S.P.S., where his brilliant success already gives promise of an even greater future.

JOHN STUART LAING.

"I'll do anything once; if I like it I'll try it again."

THE living exemplification of this motto first greeted an expectant world in the town of Essex. In the course of time and Essex High School, he qualified for his second step up the ladder, a course in Civil Engineering, Year '13, as the necessary medium. Though not aspiring to be a palmist, he possesses more than a working knowledge of a good hand.

HUGH D'ALTON LIVINGSTON.

"He says he'll never marry."

OWING to the fact that such was quite beyood his means of control, "Liver," legally known as Hugh D'Alton Livingston, acknowledges very reluctantly Hamilton, Ont., to be the seene of his nativity on January 30th, 1892. However, some four years later he migrated to Brantford. Graduating from the collegiate institute in 1907, he entered the rejuvenated course in Architecture in 1909, where his sense of "beauty" and "form" has been highly developed.

HUGH ROSS MACKENZIE.

"A most observing, quietly discerning man—but devilish shy."

SCOTSBURN, Nova Scotia, saw the birth and early education of our Scotchman. Ross graduated from Pictou Academy in 1904, attended Regina Normal School, and for two and a half years waved the birch over Western youths. In 1909 Engineering seized him, and he joined the Science Class of '13. Though a quiet chap, Ross has abilities and will make good at structural engineering.

ARCHIBALD ROSS MACPHERSON.

"Why should life all labour be?"

"MAC" was born in Toronto, educated at Woodstock Collegiate, but his home town is Petrolea, Ont. He has been a member of the Phi Sigma Tau Fraternity for four years, and so far bas escaped suspension, .ao doubt on account of his innocent appearance. Although of Scotch descent, tightness and ill-humour are two characteristics which he entirely lacks. May his henceforth career be as smooth as his hitherto.

WILLIAM HIGGINS MacTAVISH.

"He is small—but oh, my!"

"CUTEY" was born in 18—, ask him; he knows more about it than we do. Wheo first heard of, he was playing baseball in a bush league near Ottawa. Having received bis matriculation from Kempville High School, he enrolled in Class '13 at tbe School. He has always taken an active part in athletics, having played oo the 'Varsity Senior Soccer team. He is somewhat of a fusser, but, nevertheless, we like him.

KARL FRANKLIN MICKLEBOROUGH.

"It is the truth."

KARL FRANKLIN MICKLEBOROUGH embarked upon the sea of life on June 3rd, 1890, in St. Thomas, Ont. He lingered there for several years. The West called him, and in 1903 he migrated to Regina. During recent years he has made annual visits to the "School" in search of knowledge. Karl enters upon his professional career leaving io the memory of his classmates a thorough appreciation of his genial companionship. Success to you, Karl!

NORMAN CRAIG MILLMAN.

"DEECH" was born in Toronto in 1890. He received his preparatory education at Ridley College, from which he matriculated in 1907. In 1908 he came to the University, and registered in Civil Engineering (after tossing a coin). He hopes to graduate (D.V.) in the year of our Lord 1913.

THOMAS ROME MOORE.

"And o'er that fair broad brow were wrought
The intersected lines of thought"

T. R. came to earth at Mildmay, Ont., where he spent the greater part of his youth, attending the public school at that place. Being of a roving disposition, he took up his abode in several towns, finally settling down at Teeswater, where he began and finished his high school course. He came directly to School after matriculating, and has since kept up with the bunch.

FREDERICK J. MULQUEEN.

"TIMBER" achieved an athletic reputation at U.C.C., which has suffered no eclipse during his career at the University. He played on the second football and hockey teams, 1910-11, and has on several occasions starred for the School in the Mulock Cup series. He managed the Dominion Champion Football team during the season of 1911. He was also for two years a member of the School Athletic Association.

WILLIAM CAMPBELL MURDIE.

"I cannot rest from travel"

THE subject of this sketch, known familiarly as "Bill," was born in Winthrop, and has been an honour man throughout. The majestic heights and the roaring torrents of the Rockies, the great solitudes of our Western plains, and the inspiring influences of our college halls, all have made him imaginative, yet stolid. Possessed of a quiet, though deep humour, "Bill" will carry into the world the best wishes of all.

THOMAS VINCENT McCARTHY.

"Hope deferred maketh the heart sick."

"VENUS" is one of the hardest workers in the School. He has been known to work both sides of Yonge Street in an afternoon. He looks on the serious side of life—sometimes—with disgust, and considers it better to be careful than lucky. He captained this year's Senior School Rugby team to its near victory, and his acquaintance with the seats of the mighty is rather above the ordinary.

R. STANLEY McCONNELL.

"And the muscles of his brawny arms are strong as iron bands."

R. STANLEY MCCONNELL was born at Walkerton. He graduated from the high school in the same town. "Mac" is a versatile, persistent fellow, who has served as teacher, clerk of the county court, poet, composer, and draftsman, and bids fair to be a very useful man in the architectural profession. He has the heartiest well-wishes of all his classmen.

WILLIAM LAWRENCE McFAUL.

LAWRENCE made his first appearance in Owen Sound, and since then has made it his headquarters. He attended public school and collegiate institute in his home town and obtained his senior teacher's certificate. Having decided on a University education, he chose the Civil Engineering Course at Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering, and entered with the '13 bunch.

NORMAN PARKINSON.

"PARKY" born 1890 A.D. For remainder of biography see that of D. Sutherland's in current issue.

JOSEPH EUCLIDE PERRON, B.A.

"Il parle peu, mais agit beaucoup."

First appeared on the face of the earth at St. Jerome, Que., in the summer of 1889, where he received his primary education. He then went to the seminary of Chicoutimi, and succeeded in obtaining the degree of B.A. from Laval University. He finally decided to devote the rest of his precious life to the engineering profession, and to that end came to Toronto. Some improvement in his English, isn't there?

JOHN JEREMIAH PHILLIPS.

"When in doubt, win the trick."

John, alias Roller, arrived in Whittington, 1888. After graduating from Orangeville High School, he entered the School with Class '11, but found this pair too low for openers, so picked '13 as his lucky number. His first bid for fame was on a memorable Hallowe'en, when the Cricket Club's roller met an untimely end. Athletically he is the man that put the ham in hammer, having broken the intercollegiate record.

HENRY CHARLES QUAIL.

"Wondrous wise for his size
Is the kid we idolize."

"Chick" was born in Toronto in 1892, and, on receiving his matriculation from Harbord Collegiate in 1909, he decided to honour Class '13 with his presence, entering the Civil Course of that year. During his course "Chick" has taken a prominent part in a certain branch of athletics, viz., swimming, and won his "S," playing on the School water polo team.

JOHN MORRISON RIDDELL.

"Come, read me my riddle! Come, hearken my tale!"

Toronto to Campbellton, N.B., and back again—with a year in the U.S.A. thrown in—gives the record to date of "Jack's" travels in search of fame and fortune. In 1909 he graduated from Campbellton Grammar School, and entered the Civil Engineering Course at the "School." There he is recognized as one of the "honour" men, and as such we are confident will always honour '13.

JOHN ERNEST RITCHIE.

"It matters not, if she's dark or fair"

From Markdale Public School he went to Owen Sound Collegiate, where he was elected president of the Literary Society. He was also president of a similar society at Owen Sound Model School. He soon felt the touch of the engineering spirit, and joined the "Toike-Oikes." While there he was secretary, vice-president, and, finally, president of the Engineering Society. May continued success attend him in his profession.

CHARLES STANLEY ROBERTSON, B.A.

"By nature honest, by experience wise,
Healthy by temperament and by exercise."

To begin with, he was born in the good old county of Norfolk, that producer of great men, his "kicking" abilities as an infant being highly indicative of his future brilliant athletic career at Waterford High School and elsewhere. Stanley prefaced his Science Course by graduating from McMaster University in Arts. He is making a special study of Sanitary Engineering, in which his future is the brightest.

LEONARD SEWELL.

"Excelsior!"

By a process of elimination, Leonard chose engineering as his profession, and has certainly made good, taking honours every year. Climbing mountains is his hobby, and only when he has shot a bear on the topmost snowy pinnacle of Mount Everest will he be absolutely contented. He will have a most successful career damming rivers and other things, having specialized in Hydraulics.

HORACE LLEWELLYN SEYMOUR.

"'What,' he cried, 'make me into a singer?'"

HORACE graduated in 1903 with honours, and has since been out West. He is an Associate Member of the Can. Soc. C.E., D.L.S., A.L.S., S.L.S., etc. etc., Realizing that his knowledge was largely elementary, he came back to the "School." His chief ambition is to be a singer, so he has joined the Glee Club and the Science Octette. He will probably stay in them until he starts to sing.

RUSSELL WRIGHT SOPER.

"This is the thing that I was born to do."

RUSSELL W. SOPER hails from Whitby, Ont., but received his education in Port Perry. On graduating from collegiate there, he taught school for two years. As a student of Architecture at S.P.S., he has fully justified his choice of a profession, both from the excellence of his work in design, his geniality, and his ability to cope with any situation as it arises.

WILLIAM ARTHUR SPELLMAN.

"If I can't pay, why I can owe;
Death makes equal the high and low."

"BILL" was part of the Hastings crop in '92. He went through life in the usual way until he joined '13 "School," and became identified with "that happy family." He is very popular with his classmates at the "School," and the fact that he is president of the Columbian Club shows that he is not unknown in University circles at large.

DAVISON SUTHERLAND.

"DAVE" SUTHERLAND—born A.D. 1887 and still existent. Owing to the fact that a complete biography is being compiled against the day of his demise, further information is withheld.

REGINALD TASKER.

"Always cheery, always bright;
Never weary, never tight."

IT was in the year of 1887 that Reg. Tasker, better known as "King Gloom," first made his appearance upon this earth's stage, and, making a hit, has stayed with us ever since. He matriculated from Jarvis Collegiate in 1905, roughing it from that time until he came to the "School," joining Class '13, and chose to be Civil for ever. That he chose wisely we all admit.

JOHN MOFFAT THOMPSON.

"Along the strangely varied path of life
Pursues the even tenor of his way."

JOHN MOFFAT THOMPSON was born at Mount Healy, April 6th, 1891. His early schooling was received, first at Mount Healy, then at Cayuga. After matriculating there, he was at home for two years, but in 1909 resumed his quest of knowledge with the Class of Ouety-Three in Civil Engineering.

WILFRED GORDON URE.

"There's more in him than thou understand'st."

HE was born in Woodstock some twenty-one years ago, and attended the public school and collegiate institute there. Having exhausted the local fountains of learning and having acquired a taste for engineering from helping his "pa" drive stakes, he came to the "School." His accomplishments here are well known, and the energy and ability he has displayed will, without doubt, keep him in the eye of Class '13.

C. F. VON GUNTEN.

"Laugh and grow fat."

"FRITZ" was born at Blenheim, Ont., in 1892. Having received his public and high school education there, he entered the "School" with Class '13. His ability as a swimmer has won him a reputation to be proud of, being vice-president of the Swimming Association and a star on the 'Varsity water polo team. His many friends predict for him an honoured and dignified position in the engineering world.

HOWARD WEBSTER.

"Being good is an awful lonesome job."

HOWARD was born in Toronto in 1891, and commenced his education at Pickering College. From there he entered Harbord Collegiate, to further develop "the Bump," and matriculated in 1907. He has taken a great interest in athletics, particularly hockey and Rugby, obtaining his "T" from the Senior Hockey team. As captain of Junior School Rugby team, "Web" brought home a trophy in 1910, in the Mulock Cup.

DAVID HENRY WEIR.

"DAVE" began his struggle for existence in November, 1884, in the township of Burford, Brant County. He received his primary education in the public schools there, and afterwards attended Woodstock Collegiate Institute, obtaining his Junior Teacher's Certificate in 1905. After three years spent in guiding the young idea along the rosy path of learning, he enrolled with Class '13, in the hope that some day he may become a civil engineer.

WILLIAM S. WINTERS.

"Ad Hades cum Sapientia."

"BILL" is a native of Toronto and a graduate of Jarvis Collegiate. He entered the "School" in the Civil Engineering Course in 1909, and hopes to graduate in 1913. He helped build the Canadian Northern Railway in 1911 and the Trent Valley Canal in 1912. "Bill" was always a good sport and an especial favourite with the ladies. He admits that a brilliant career awaits him upon graduation.

ROBERT F. B. WOOD.

R. F. B. Wooo is a native of Halifax, Nova Scotia, and received his earlier education there. Came to Toronto in 1909 and joined the Class of 1913. In the third year R. F. B. had the honour of being president of the Class.

CHEMISTS AND MINERS

CHARLES AUSTIN BELL.

ATTRACTED by the possibilities afforded by a mining life he entered the "School" with lucky '13. Outside of his success in academic work he took an active interest in Soccer, obtaining his "S" in his first year. He was also a member of the Ind. F.C.C.E., rising to the rank of senior N.C.O. of the University Section. Judging from his career at the "School" we feel certain that his claim will develop into more than a mere prospect.

RAY ELLERTON BINNS.

"So wise a judgment, so rare a wit."

BORN in Kingston, Jamaica, in 1890. While still very young, his parents moved to Toronto, where he has lived ever since. Rayfield received his early training at Toronto Public School and matriculated from Woodstock College. It was then that his practical turn of mind led him to join the Miners of year '13. A lover of good music, he is always there with a little song.

THOMAS RUSSEL BUCHANAN.

"Still waters run deep."

T. R. BUCHANAN first saw the light of day in Thessalon in 1891. His early education was obtained in the proverbial log school house, where he continued until matriculation, and he has the unique distinction of being the first of its graduates to continue into University circles. Attracted by the possibilities of his own North Country he entered the Mining Course, and his career has justified the decision which gave him the opportunities of a higher education.

WILLIAM BOYD CALDWELL.

BORN 1891. Is a product of Upper Canada College where he garnered in his junior matric. in 1908, but was turned back again the same year to Prep. School for further seasoning in the way of Honour Matric. work. Entered S.P.S. in Fall of 1909. Has shown an interest in sports, having played on the Varsity Cricket and Hockey teams, and has had occasion to have seen active service in several mining camps.

HOLLIS ALFRED CLARK.

"We might have known there was but one."

BORN at a tender age in Minneapolis, Minnesota, and coming to Toronto at the age of ten, he has lived in sight of the "Old Gray Tower" ever since. Lansdowne School and Harbord Collegiate paved the way to a higher education as a Mining Engineer.

GEORGE ELLIOTT CLARKSON.

"Of what shall a man be proud, if he is not proud of his friends."

GEORGE CLARKSON was born in Toronto, and spent his early years at the Model School. He matriculated from Harbord Collegiate, and in his four years here he has shown his abilities both in studies and sport, and has taken an active part in the life of the "School." His many friends predict for him a successful and brilliant career.

WILLIAM THOMAS CURTIS.

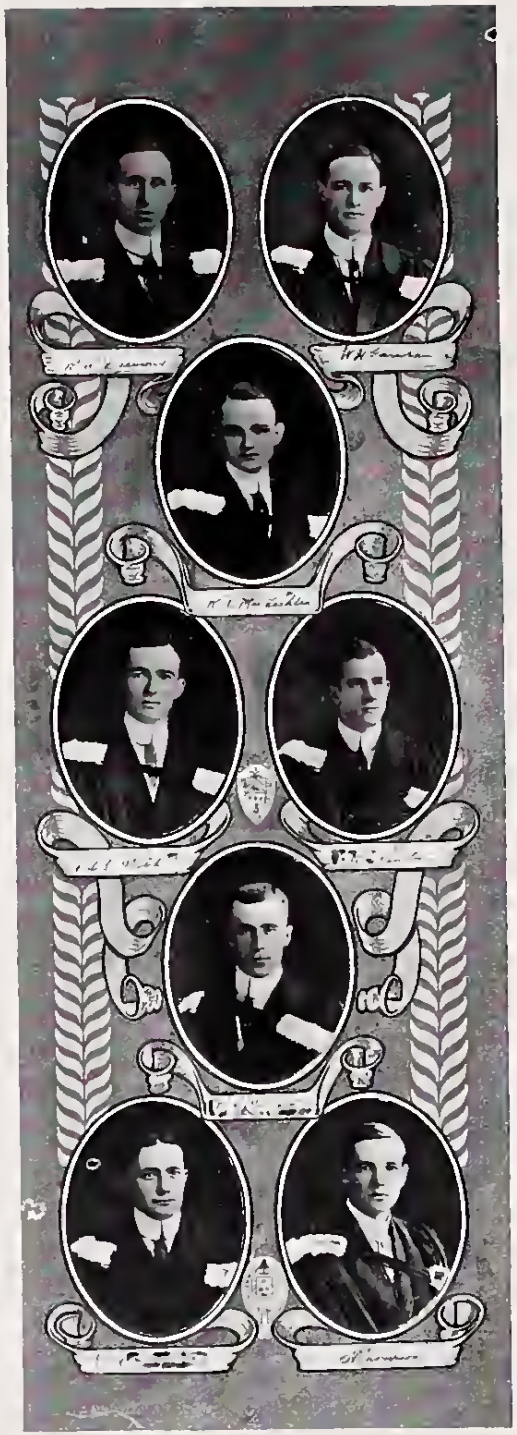
"It looks alright from the road,
But you can't always tell from where you sit"

BILL was born at Tillsonburg in 1889, and since that time has been roaming aronnd the country as an advertisement for Tilson's Pan-dried Oats. Several years as a miner and lumberjack have made him husky and good natured. He has cavorted on the gridiron in big league company, and we find him active on various executives about the "School."

ANTOINE VALENTINE DeLAPORTE.

"Let every man be master of his time."

"DEL," who is a Toronto boy, took his diploma in 1910. He has been a member of the Students' Parliament, his year executive, the Chemical Club, and at various times manager, secretary and president of the Harrier Club. For he is a chap "who is always strictly in it, plays well the game and knows the limit, and still gets all the fun that is in it."



RANDOLPH WILLIAM DIAMOND.

"Born to scintillate"

THIS Diamond was first brought to light in Campbellford, Ont., where he spent his boyhood days. In '07 he matriculated from the High School of that town. He entered the "School" in '09, where he has taken an active and energetic part in his work. He has ingratiated himself in the hearts of his fellows by his keenness of intellect and strength of character. All join heartily in wishing him joy in the future.

WILLIAM HENRY GARNHAM.

GARNIE, the originator of that famous cryptic scrawl so well remembered by his classmates, took his first squint at this big wide world in the City of Brantford in 1887. On growing older he developed a keen fondness for our great Northland. In order to be associated with its development, he went to Albert College, Belleville, in 1905, and then entered the Mining Course at "The School." It is our earnest hope that he may prosper exceedingly.

KELLOGG SINCLAIR MACLACHLAN

"Always merry and bright."

K. S. MACLACHLAN was educated at Jarvis Collegiate. He then went to St. Andrew's College for a year to put on a polish before entering the "School." Here "Lal." proved himself to be one of the most energetic and wide-awake men of his year. He was elected to the Executive of the Engineering Society for 1911-12 and in his fourth year was made President of the Industrial Chemical Club.

DOUGLAS A. S. MUTCH.

"Whose is that noble, dauntless brow!"

"DOUG" MUTCH is probably one of the best known men in the School. He is an ideal student, never skipping lab. or lecture. He once had political ambitions, which were squelched. "Doug" played on the famous Junior School Rugby team of 1910, and is at present the lightweight boxing champion of the University. He has a host of good friends, and we feel sure of his success in his chosen profession.

KEITH LESLIE NEWTON.

"Keeps his counsel, doth his duty,
Cleaves to friends and loveth beauty."

VITTORIA, in Norfolk County, was Keith's natal place. He obtained his preliminary education at Norwich and Durham and registered in the Faculty's Mining Course with Class '10. His membership of the Glee Club and on the Engineering Society Executive is indicative of his strident activities. The mining industries of the Yukon and B.C. claimed him for two years, then he decided to return and graduate with '13.

PERCY JOHNSTON RELYEA.

"He'd an air so distingué and debonnaire"

"PERC" hails from Cornwall and received his preparatory training at Brockville. While an undergraduate, he was elected Secretary and President of the South Residence. Always an enthusiastic member of student life, he won the sincere admiration of all. That he was so unfortunate as to go to the hospital in his fourth year is deeply regretted by his classmates, who feel assured of a brilliant career in store for him.

DUNCAN GARFIELD SINCLAIR.

"Who struggles with the living rock,
And takes alike success or knock?
The Miner!"

"SINC." hails from the town of Sarnia. His early education was obtained in the Sarnia Collegiate Institute, where he showed a strong tendency to search for the "mother-lode." Since coming to the "School," in 1909, he has spent his time in the pursuit of Mining. His ability in the class room is undoubted, and all expect great things of him.

WILLIAM KIRK THOMPSON.

"In all the four years I have known you,
Boyd, I never knew you to make one sensible remark"

BORN in Toronto in May, 1890, "Big Chief" has kept on growing and waxing mightier every day. Acquiring his preparatory education at "The Technical High School," Toronto, Chief shook its dust from out his apparel in '09, entered the "School" and prospered. Wherever he introduces that weighty pile of brain and brawn, '13 Miners wish him well.

ROLPH MEREDITH TROW.

"To meet him is to make a friend."

"TROUT" was born in Stratford, Ont., in 1890, matriculating from its Collegiate in 1908. In the Fall of the same year, "Trout" came to Toronto to further satisfy his thirst for knowledge. Entering the year '12 General Arts, his practical turn of mind led him to change his course after completing his first year, falling in with the Miners of '13. "Trout" is the pet pianist of this humble bunch.

EXECUTIVE, 1912-1913

Top Row: C. N. CANDEE, 3rd Year Rep; A. V. DELAPORTE, 4th Year Rep
A. W. SIMP, Vice-President; W. G. BIRRELL, Curator; K. S. MACACHLAN, President; H. KOBL, Sec.-Treas

THE Industrial Chemical Club of the Faculty of Applied Science, at the close of the fourth year of its existence, has its usual tale of prosperity to present. The ideal of its enthusiastic founders has been lived up to, viz., the promotion of a profitable spirit of fellowship among the undergraduates in Applied Chemistry and Chemical Engineering; and, aided by increased membership and an energetic executive, success has attended all efforts.

Dinner meetings have been frequently held, at which really instructive, well-prepared and well-delivered papers have been presented on chemical topics. It should be a matter of congratulation that there has been no lack of willing response to the executive's appeal for speakers; and the care evidenced in the treatment of the subject was not only an education to the audience, but a source of profit to the speaker himself. The policy of having, as a rule, undergraduate papers instead of addresses from outside authorities, has been justified by a variety of good results, which would otherwise have been lost—notably, the training of public expression of ideas and the creation of an informal atmosphere of discussion.

In addition to these meetings, there have been held excursions of very great interest and benefit, to factories in and near Toronto, where the process commanded the chemists' attention. That these trips were rare opportunities only to be enjoyed by undergraduates was well realized by the large number of members who availed themselves of the privileges offered. It was in this connection that the loyalty of the graduates and the liberality of manufacturers was manifested, and also the fact that S.P.S. as a training school for chemists was advertised. In conclusion, we would state that the vital relation between manufacturer, graduate and undergraduate in chemistry is being fully investigated by the club, and valuable results are anticipated.

Individual Biographies

ELECTRICS & MECHANICS

OSMOND FENWICK ADAMS.

Mr. Adams gradnated nnder the former three-year course with the Class of '10, and his history may be found in the Torontonensis for that date. Since then he has been a Fellow in Electrical Engineering, and returned to take the fnurth year as post gradnate work.

R. J. ALLEN.

"Fie upon this quiet life! I want work."

One of the dark shadows in his life was the fact that he was born in Port Huron, Mich., hut at the mature age of nine years he realized this and moved over to Wallaceburg for oblivion. He successfully accomplished his desire nntil he entered the "School." Among his other amnsements have been automobiles, appendicitis, and presidency of the Electrical Clnb. In graduating, the School loses a good man.

ARTHUR STUART ANDERSON.

"Titles of honour add not to his worth"

"Colonel" first saw this world in Nairn. His public schooling was very much scattered, getting snatches of his education at Chicago and Pasadena, California. Finally he found his way to Peterboro, where he finished his preparatory education. His aspirations for things mechanical led him to the University, to study for a mechanical engineer. Here he joined the ranks of Class '13, where he carried off the scholarship of his Class.

LLOYD RANDOLPH BRERETON.

"Laugh and the world laughs with you."

"Brery." was born at Bethany, where he received his primary education. After taking two years with '11, he stayed ont, and re-entered with '13, of which he has become one of the most prominent and popnlar members. "Brery's" keen insight and quiet humonr have taken his "lah." parties over many a dragging report, and these same characteristics should smooth as easily his path in after life.

WILLIAM BENJAMIN BUCHANAN.

"Self-reverence, self-knowledge, self-control,
These three alone lead life to sovereign power."

William Benjamin Buchanan was first recognized in Grey County, Ontario, in 1885, and for a number of years became closely acquainted with the activities of rnral life. A natural bent for mechanics turned his attention at an early date to engineering as a profession. Originality, combined with industry and thoronghness, have been characteristic of his career as a student.

B. H. A. BURROWS.

"We often wondered how
One small head could carry all he knew."

"Pie" is a Westerner by birth. having been born in Winnipeg, bnt has been living in Toronto for some years. He attended the Model School and Harbord Collegiate before entering "S.P.S." with '13 His many friends wish him all possible snccess in his chosen profession.

ROSS MacNEIRN CARMICHAEL.

"To be or not to be."

"MIKE" was born in Kenora in 1890. His early education was obtained in the public and high schools of that far-off Ontario town. Receiving his honour matriculation in 1909, he at once decided to find out "why the wheels went round," and accordingly we find him with the Mechanicals of '13. May he have every success in his chosen career.

BRUCE DEAN CLEGG.

"Thy brilliancy dazzles the sun"

IN the thriving city of Peterboro, away back in 1890, "Red," as he is called by those who know him best, first opened his eyes to light of day. It was here he obtained his public and high school education, being a curse to those who tried to teach him. His desire to tinker led his parents to send him to the University to take a course in Mechanical Engineering.

JAMES HENRY COLEMAN.

"And still they gazed, and still the wonder grew,
That one small head could carry all he knew."

BORN 1888, at Banda, Ont. Attended high school at Collingwood and Barrie, Ont , graduating as a teacher, following that occupation for two years. Entered S.P.S. in 1908, but lost a year on account of sickness. Member of the graduating Class of '13.

HAROLD DORAN DAVISON.

"The name signifies nothing."

"BUDO" was born in Bridgewater, N.S, in 1890 He obtained his early scholastic training in St. Andrew's school, Annapolis Royal, N.S., and later at St. Andrew's College, Toronto. He entered "school" with '13, taking up wrestling, football and gymnastics. Specializing in the latter, he won his "T" in 1911. Football credits him with second-class honours, while numerous medals in wrestling speak for themselves. It is rumoured that he is studying Mechanical Engineering.

EMMOTT LEROY DEITCH.

ROY was born in Toronto, which place has successfully withstood his presence until the present. During his University course he has been the life of his "lab" parties, although at times he has been more interested in his fellows than in the experiment in progress. An enthusiastic member of the Rifle Association throughout his course, he always figured in the prize contests. His originality and concentration (when necessary) will carry him far in his profession.

WILLIAM GEORGE DUNCAN.

"Fame is the spur that the clear spirit doth raise
To scorn delights and live laborious days"

"DUNC." started on the voyage of life at Port Dover, Ont., 1890. During his public and high school life he had pretty smooth sailing. Having ambitions for broader knowledge, he decided to enter Electrical Engineering with the Class of Onety-Three. After spending four pleasant years and a bank account, he is now thinking about "getting a job."

FREDERICK FORSTER FOOTE.

"I have a little studied Science, but now I'm all for Music."

"Footer" was born in South Framingham, Mass., December 29, 1891. He came to Canada, and, via Ridley College and St. Catharines C.I., entered S.P.S. '13. He has been known to study at odd moments, and, besides being the inventor of all rag-time music worth while and a member of the famous Science Octette, has won both his "T" and "S" for swimming.

ANDREW JACK GRAY.

"Slumber is sweeter than toil."

Twenty-two years ago "Jack" entered this world of pleasure, toil and trouble. He is well acquainted with the former, but, so far, has only flirted with the other two. His foremost accomplishments are three in number—the completion of a course without the customary blemish of a star; admirable accuracy in English billiards; and the art of carrying a cane with dignity, said art setting him apart from most undergraduates.

JAMES PERRY HADCOCK.

"The flames just soared,
And the furnace roared,
And I stuffed in Sam Magee"

1 Born June 15th, 1888, Oxford County, Ont. 2. Attended various schools, mostly everywhere. 3. At "School" fall of '07—been around ever since, except when away West. 4. No education worth mentioning. 5. Life motto, "Forget it"

HAROLD GEOFFREY HALL.

Appears a second time to be biographised, having graduated from the School under the diploma standard in 1910. Athletically he is known as the great running-kicking half-back of the Electrical Rugby Union of the fourth year, and for his share in winning two Dominion championships—as a rooter. For a year and a half he has been engaged as assistant superintendent of the Woodstock electric light system.

HARRY CECIL HARRIS.

"But music for the time doth change his nature"

Harry first saw the light in Kingsville, and we presume that it was the rural beauty of the place which gave him his poetic and musical temperament. Harry's musical abilities have made him very popular. He has been conductor of the Science Octette throughout his course However, his musical tastes have not prevented his name from appearing regularly in the annual returns, and we prophecy for him a successful career.

ROBERT ADDISON HENRY.

"De moon and de star above is gone,
Yet somt'ing tell me I mus' go on"

Addison was born in Barrie, and attended the public school there. After completing his education at the collegiate institute, he spent three years in machine shop practice. During this period he decided to take the course in Applied Science and Engineering in old 'Varsity, where we now leave him, and wish him all success in his chosen calling.

THOMAS ANTONY HILL.

"He had so many books on his head that his brains couldn't move."

Antony Hill was born near Ninga, Man., January 31st, 1892, and succeeded in becoming acclimatized to the cold winter weather, which is "so dry you don't feel it." He left the farm to enter the School of Practical Science, and to reduce his father's bank account. He has obtained honours each year. We wish him continued success.

THOMAS F. HOWLETT.

"'E's small but 'e's wise,
'E's a terror for his size."

Nature intended well when she endeavoured to hide away in the vicinity of London a newcomer. However, "Tommy" finally forced his way into the world and to school. His principal academic acquirement has been the making of strange noises under the protection of the Glee Club. However, with this exception, he has been a decidedly popular member of '13, and the best wishes follow him.

SHARON SIFTON KELLY.

"Has anybody here seen Kelly?"

FROM force of circumstances, rather than from choice, "Kell." was initiated to this evil world at Lambeth, Ont., in 1889. He obtained his preliminary education there, and at London C.I. Contrary to expectation, "Kell." has not red hair, but he lives up to his name when it comes to fun, frills, and feeds. In his studies at the school he has proven to be a promising engineer in embryo.

ALBERT ERNEST KERR.

"He may do weel for a' he's done yet."

"BOBBY" Kerr was born March 11th, 1892, at Hamilton. He received his preliminary education at the Hamilton Collegiate Institute. His bent for electricity induced him to follow the transmission lines Toronto-wards, and so he appears with Applied Science '13. Discoveries in the practical application of electricity to music and domestic science may be expected.

ALLAN LESLIE.

ALLAN LESLIE, born at Owen Sound in 1891, attended public school and collegiate at Owen Sound, graduating from there in 1909. In the fall of 1909 he entered the School in the course of Electrical Engineering, from which he hopes to graduate in Ouety-Three. "Al." is some athlete, excelling in basket-ball and hockey. He is a member of the Phi Sigma Jan Fraternity.

GERALD LAWRENCE LILLIE.

"They toil not, neither do they spin"

GERALD was born in the year 1889, and for the greater part of his life imbibed the breezes of Port Elgin. From there he moved to Oakville, and got his matric. It was only a short distance to the School, and in due course of time he arrived. He graduated with '11, and, after a winter spent in the Hydro-Electric, he came back to the School for more.

HENRY ANDERSON MacKENZIE.

"A youth, light-hearted and content,
He wanders through the world."

THE only leap-year baby in Class '13 made his appearance on February 29th in the early nineties. In his youth he did "nawthing," and has been at it ever since. "Mac." was an inveterate woman-hater, but —— ? Goes to church when his birthday falls on Sunday, and is a strong supporter of the Y.W.C.A. A good "bluffer" and a hard worker (at times), "Mac." will surely be successful.

ARCHIBALD HENRY MacQUARRIE.

"My favorite room's the study."

"ARCHIE" was first discovered in Halton Co., 1893, but shortly after reappeared at Valetta, Kent Co., where he may still be found in his leisure hours. In 1905 he felt the irresistible call of the Chatham Collegiate, and, after enjoying a brief sojourn there, proceeded to Toronto, where he occasionally encouraged the lecturers in the Mechanical Engineering Department by his presence.

GEO. J. MICKLER.

"Why, man, he doth bestride this narrow world like a Colossus."

"Mike" first saw the light of day in Preston (a suburb of Berlin), where he gathered in the usual store of learning in public and high schools. When not engaged in entertaining lecturers or classmates, "Mike" has softened his sonorous tones sufficiently to make the "Octette," of which he has been a faithful member. His other energy dissipations have been: rough-house, fussin', honours, and Engineering Society offices.

JOHN WALTON PEART.

John Walton Peart, otherwise known as "Wally," came into this great wide world at Brantford, August 31st, 1891. For eighteen years Brantford, Welland, and St. Thomas covered the scenes of his activities, then in 1909 he came to 'Varsity to study Electrical Engineering in his spare moments. Since then an average intellect and good fortune have helped him reach the final stage, and it is with all sincerity we wish "Wally" similar success in the future.

ELMER RATZ.

Born in Elmira in the early nineties, Elmer, while still in his knickerbockers, evinced a remarkable taste for things electrical. Hence, after his elementary education and a course in Berlin Collegiate, we found him launched in the Class of '13, upon a course of knowledge pertaining to a juice having properties diverse to Seagram's '83. He was not deceptive enough to hide the identity of the village bean, and we hope he may soon see fit "to live happy ever after."

L. W. ROTHERY

"Cheer up! it's full."

Although "Rocky" has only been with us a year, having graduated with '11, we are all glad he decided to take his degree this year. His cheerful disposition and genial character has made him a general favourite with his Class mates of '13. We wish him every success.

COLIN C. ROUS.

"My hair is grey, but not with years."

Born in Belleville, Colin remained in his home town until after he had graduated from the collegiate institute. Then he came to Toronto, where for a time he was engaged in the insurance business before entering the School with the Electricals of '13. During the entire course he has been a moving spirit among the student societies, and is at the present time corresponding secretary of the Engineering Society.

CHARLES HENRY RUSSELL.

"A wise man says little."

"Chas." was born at Waubaushene, Ont., where he received his early education. After spending four years at the Orillia Collegiate, he came to the School and joined Class 1T3. He is well liked by all those who know him, and is bound to make friends wherever he is. We all wish him success and prosperity in his future life.

ARTHUR ALFRED SCARLETT.

"A milder-manner'd man
Never scuttled ship or cut a throat."

On January 1st, 1890, Arthur A. was born. He showed great financial ability very early in the sand bank(s) of West Toronto. Since '09, when he entered the Electrical Course with Class '13, he has been a great trial to the faculty and a great help to the Glee Club. "Art." was always "one of the bunch," and takes their best wishes with him.

MURRAY CHESNEY SHARP.

"The deepest rivers flow with least sound."

The enterprising little town of Brampton holds record of Murray's birth in the early '90's. In this vicinity he received his early education, taking his honor matriculation in 1909. About this time he decided to follow more closely his favourite science, so he joined the forces of Class '13, where his untiring energy and love of learning have won for him great success each year.

KENNETH ERLE SHAW.

"There is so much good in the worst of us,
And so much bad in the best of us."

WALLACEBURG, Kent, manufactures good sugar, empty bottles, and promising young men, including Kenneth. The latter did not empty the bottles, but the big factories early stirred his instincts for business and mechanics, so that, on matriculating, he devoted five years to the one, with the glass company, and four to the other at S.P.S., thus preparing to succeed in both.

FREDERICK R. SIMMS.

IN the eighties Fred. chose as his birthplace the township of Burford, Brant County. He first fanned his thirst for knowledge in Big Creek School. After spending a few years studying the science of agriculture, he came to Toronto, matriculated and enrolled with Class '13 in the Mechanical Engineering Department, in which department he has obtained an honor standing each year.

JEFFREY McVICAR STRATHY.

"I cannot tell what you and other men think of this life"

HE was born in Montreal, but pulled out of that burg early and went to Nova Scotia. Since then he has been a citizen at large, roaming about the country from Nova Scotia to British Columbia. Of late years he has resided chiefly in Port Arthur, whence he emerged from the high school to cast in his lot with Onety-Three at the School.

DAVID JOHN THOMSON.

"A prompt, decisive man, no breath he wasted"

BORN in 1889 at Owen Sound, D. J. spent his first few years there, acquiring the necessary knowledge to get his senior teacher's certificate. After teaching for two years, he decided to further his education, and the fall of 1909 saw him begin his studies in the Electrical Course with Class '13. Since then he has been much in evidence, and all join in wishing him the best of luck.

TALBOT EDWARD TORRANCE.

"Thou hast not many inches, but thou art a marvellous proper man."

OUR hero, born at Paris (Ont.), early left the giddy atmosphere of that metropolis and went to Galt. Equipped with the necessary modicum of the three R—ndiments, he reached Toronto, and entered S.P.S. with '11. Developments unnecessary to enter upon changed his plans, and he now intends to graduate with Onety-Three.

R. EDWARD WATTS.

"I wish that mother could see me now,
With a bayonet under my arm"

SERGEANT "TED" WATTS was born in Brantford. He hastened through the B.C.I., and entered School of Practical Science Class of "Mechanics" in 1909. "Ted" became an enthusiastic "Man of Mars," hence the charming soubriquet "Sergeant." Robert recognizes martial airs, when those of Orpheus fall deafly on his ears He adores ladies and the "giddy whirl," but scorns all "rough-house." "Ted" has no further faults.

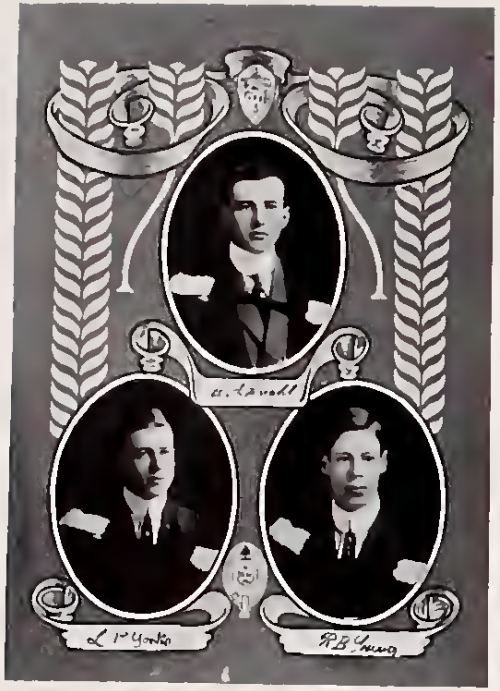
CHARLES ALEXANDER WEBSTER.

WAS born in the town of St. Mary's, Ont. Leaving school at an early age, he served his time as a sheet metal worker. He then came to Toronto, and, after several years' experience, had charge at the installation of heating and ventilating plants in buildings throughout the province. Feeling the necessity of technical knowledge, he entered the Parkdale Collegiate in January, '08, matriculated in July, '09, entered S.P.S. in October, '09, and hopes to graduate in June, 1913.

HAROLD ELBRIDGE WHATELY.

"A brave, free-hearted, careless one,
With his unchecked, unbidden joy"

"HAL" was born in Thornbury in 1891, and received his early education there and at Meaford High School. In the autumn of 1909 he came to Toronto, to enrol in the glorious Class of 1T3 in the department of Electrical Engineering. In the four years he has been with us he has alike risen in stature and in the estimation of his classmates.



ALFRED JOHN WRIGHT.

"All my ambition is, I own,
To profit and to please, unknown."

ALFRED first drew breath near Midland on September 28, 1890. From the rustic old schoolhouse and Midland High School, which he left behind in '09 to take up Electrical Engineering, reports vary. Here, however, his greatest failing was his aversion for lectures. He has always taken a keen interest in student societies and is president of the Science Y.M.C.A.

LAYTON PARK YORKE.

"He listened, not except I spoke to him,
But folded his two hands and let them talk."

RECEIVED his early education at Belmont, Middlesex County Honour matriculated at London, and joined the Class of year '11. After graduating, he spent some time in the centre of electro-chemical development, Niagara Falls, N.Y., which experience led to his taking post-graduate work with year '13, in applied electricity and electro-chemistry, specializing in the latter.

RODERICK BEARCE YOUNG

"Nuff sed."

LITTLE need he said concerning the subject of this sketch, except to note, in passing, two facts of which he is justly proud, namely, that he is an American and a Westerner. His past, though eventful and varied, need not be mentioned further His future, alone, is of interest. Someone has said, "While there's life there's hope," and, again, "You never can tell." Perhaps—who knows?—"R. B." may yet be found among the eminent of his profession.

FORESTRY
UNIV
TOR

History of Class 1913

THE Class of 1T3 came to the University sixteen strong, but the hand of the Examiner was heavy upon us, and but eleven survived, more or less battered, to enter the second year. Several men joined us, coming from S.P.S., Guelph, and R.M.C., with one from "Theology" and two from our cousins to the South, showing the remarkably wide range of humanity to which our profession appeals.

The "Improvement Thinning" at the end of the second year was fortunately less severe, and by taking in two more, we were sixteen strong, until the fatal month of May came again.

In this, our final year, we can muster only ten candidates for the degree, and three special students, but we have studied together, scraped through Exams. together, tramped, worked and slept together, have feasted and gone hungry together.

Our natural modesty prevents our relating in full the glorious achievements of this, the best Class that our Forest School has turned out; how that since our occupation of the building in Queen's Park, Queen's Hall has grown and increased in popularity until one building could not contain them; how the Dining Hall was compelled to engage a new director, and two waiters; how Convocation Hall obtained a new organ, and the Library a new wing; how the old Gymnasium became worn out, and is now being replaced —but, to come nearer home, the Foresters' Club has prospered since our advent; "Stunt Night," now an annual affair, was planned and carried out mainly by the men of this Class.

Athletics and academic pursuits, technical knowledge and German have been met and mastered.

The profession is being given a splendid opportunity to prove itself in this young country, and with the opportunity comes also the great responsibility. The pioneers in the profession must establish its standing with the people at large. We are given the technical equipment necessary, but the "making good" rests with ourselves.

Knowing them, I have no fear that the present graduating Class will fail to do credit to our profession. A. E. P.

JOHN PLAYFAIR ALEXANDER.

"A man more sinned against than sinning."

JACK was born in Toronto, 1890; emigrated to California, 1891; and, returning East, attended Ridley College, 1900-1908; entered 'Varsity in Faculty of Forestry, 1908; played Rugby on 'Varsity third team, 1908 (Junior Inter-Collegiate champions), and on second team, 1909 and 1911. He was a prominent player on Forestry hockey and soccer teams; was first year representative to the Forestry Club, and a member of Forestry Athletic Committee.

GEORGE WILLIAM BAYLY.

"The Wandering Irishman."

THE trifling facts that George was born in India, educated first in Switzerland and Germany, then at Upper Canada College, R.M C. and 'Varsity, cannot deceive you as to his native character if you look at his face, which bears a cheerful legend of Ballynaclough, Tipperary. With a knowledge of forestry to guide him on his future travels, who knows where he may ultimately locate his potato patch.

GEORGE E. BOTHWELL.

"Verbum sat sapienti."

BORN in Perth, Lanark County, Ont., August 9th, 1889; attended public school and collegiate institute there, matriculating June, 1907. Registered in the Faculty of Forestry the fall of 1909 Graduate 1913.

HERBERT READ CHRISTIE.

"A brawny Scot."

BORN in busy Amherst, N.S.; matriculation at Amherst High School; an associate of O A.C. (1906-08); entered Forestry as a sophomore, 1910. Favourite sports are hockey, soccer, sailing Three years ago, after a heavy east wind, Herb. appeared amongst us. a resolute grin on his face and a thick coat of herring scales on his sea boots. The resolute grin he still keeps, although the herring scales have suffered in Ontario's effete inland atmosphere.

STANLEY H. CLARK.

"He hath smelt wood smoke at twilight,
He hath heard the birch log burning;
He is quick to read the noises of the night."

STAN is a native of Cainsville, Ont.: an associate of the O A.C. (1908 10), and entered Forestry 1910. Three summers in Alberta with the Dominion Forest service; three falls a member of the Rugby firsts, and his Class record testify to his capability. He has brain and brawn, and uses both.

EDWARD SUMNER DAVISON.

"Oh! Thou art a perpetual triumph."

BORN in Bridgewater, Nova Scotia: since that time he has attended the following educational institutions: Bridgewater Public School, St. Andrew's School, Annapolis, N.S.; St. Andrew's College. Toronto; the Faculty of Applied Science and the Faculty of Forestry. His career at the University has been marked by an active interest in athletics, most notably boxing, last year winning the Inter-Collegiate Welterweight Championship of Canada.

FREDERICK McVICKAR.

"Shy, and adorably blonde."

MAC received his early education in New York Then, after spending two years in Arts at Cornell, he joined the ranks of the Foresters at 'Varsity. Here his good-natured face, his engaging smile, and his quiet, unassuming manner won for him a host of friends. He was never ambitious for office, but in his fourth year was persuaded to accept the office of secretary-treasurer of the far-renowned Foresters' Club.

FRANK STANLEY NEWMAN.

"A very Adonis."

FRANK, or "Tyke," to boyhood friends, was born in Merrickville, Ontario. Early showing signs of the "fatal gift," modesty drove him to the Provincial Forest Nursery, upon finishing at the Kempville High School. Here the solitary life filled him with the love of out-of-doors, that gave us our Frank. At 'Varsity he has made an excellent showing, in the eyes of both instructors and fellow students, not to mention the ladies.

ALAN EDWARD PARLOW.

"An honest man's
The noblest work of God"

ALAN, after emerging from the schoolboy chrysalis at Parkdale, was swallowed up in the commercial world. Answering the call of the "little red gods," he entered Forestry Class '13. Being to the "manner born," work was only a pleasure. His genial countenance and jolly yarns have won the hearts of the boys, and may he ever be an asset in forwarding the great cause of Forestry.

GEORGE SYDNEY SMITH.

"A fellow of infinite worth and pith,
They tried to conceal him by naming him Smith."

GEORGE was born in Toronto, but went early to Los Angeles, where he secured his grammar and preparatory school education. Returning to Toronto, he matriculated from Jarvis Collegiate and entered Forestry with the Class of 1912 Although never aspiring to undergraduate honours, he has always had a great interest in University affairs, and is esteemed by his fellow students.

GEORGE TUNSTELL.

"I am signed and sealed to Nature: Be it so"

"TUN" was born in Uxbridge, Ontario. On matriculating from the collegiate in that town, the "call of the wild" reached him, and he entered the Forest school at Toronto with the Class of '13. He has always stood well up in the Class list, has played Rugby and hockey, and, according to Dame Rumour, has not entirely neglected the social side. "TUN" should make his mark in the profession.

DEAN OF THE FACULTY OF FORESTRY

WYCLIFFE COLLEGE,
TORONTO.

Historical Sketch of Wycliffe College

WYCLIFFE College originated thirty-three years ago in the spontaneous and voluntary action of a number of earnest and loyal members of the Church of England in the Diocese of Toronto, who recognized the paramount importance of the maintenance and propagation of those principles of Evangelical truth upon fidelity to which they believed depended the strength and efficacy of the Church.

In October, 1877, the work of the College, then known as the Protestant Episcopal Divinity School, was begun in a very unassuming way in the schoolhouse attached to St. James Cathedral, where a little band of students assembled, and some six of the Evangelical clergy of the city gave their valuable and gratuitous services as instructors, under the able leadership of the late Dr. Sheraton, first Principal of the College. In 1879 the College was incorporated. In 1882 a building was erected upon College Street, to supply accommodation and appliances, without which the work could not be efficiently carried on. The building, which had been enlarged in 1885, was disposed of in 1890 and the foundations of the present commodious structure were laid. This was completed in the autumn of 1891, and the work of the College was transferred to it. In 1902 further extensive additions were made. A new Library and spacious Convocation Hall were erected; the residential section was materially extended, and the housekeeper's apartments were built.

In 1908, on account of the rapid increase in the number of students, further enlargements became necessary, providing twenty-six additional rooms for students, a Faculty Room, a new Dining Hall and Kitchen. Again in 1911, for the same reason, the Principal's residence was converted into students' rooms, thus giving in the whole College room for ninety-eight students. A Common Room and Sitting Room for the students were also provided. Additional land to the east was secured from the University for the erection of the Founders' Chapel and a new residence for the Principal. The Chapel is complete in every appointment, with pipe organ and memorial panes for the founders, the deceased graduates and students.

Since the commencement of the work the College has been instrumental in sending out to the work of the Ministry 224 men. There are now labouring in the following fields:

Eastern Canada	127
Canadian Northwest	48
The Foreign Field	17
Elsewhere	25

We have lost seven of our graduates by death.

Individual Biographies

FRANK VALE ABBOTT.

"Alpha—"

FRANK spent his early days in Upper Norwood, Surrey, England. After several years in business, he decided to enter the ministry, and came to Wycliffe College, in all his verdancy, with the Class of 1913. He did good work in Saskatchewan as student-missioner during his first two vacations, and last summer did creditable service of the same nature along the railway construction camps of North-Western Ontario. May success attend thee, "Aubrey."

MARAT NINA ABRAHAM, B.A.

"From India's coral strand"

M. N. ABRAHAM was born in Travancore, South India. After some years at the Madras Christian College, he took his degree at the University of Madras. He then entered the ministry of the St. Thomas Syrian Church. After his course at Wycliffe, he goes back to take up responsible work in Travancore and Cochin. On all who have known him intimately his quiet influence will leave its permanent mark.

JOHN ARTHUR DAVIES.

"A mighty man is he"

HIS school days over, John studied Mining Engineering for two years. In 1909 he entered St. Aidan's College, Birkenhead, to prepare for the ministry. The same year he joined the Class of 1913 in Wycliffe. He won the Silver Medal for reading the Church Liturgy, and distinguished himself as Greek scholar and Systematic Theologian. During his final year he debated successfully against Osgoode Hall in the Inter-Collegiate debates.

THOMAS JOSEPH DEW.

"It droppeth as the gentle dew from heaven"

TOM arrived in Alliston, Ontario, as a very small boy, hungry and penniless. He was gladly adopted by his parents, who educated him, as he grew older, at the Public and High Schools of the same town. Also he received a splendid musical education. In '12 came to Wycliffe; excelled in athletics, taking second championship for two years. Specially good in running, jumping and hockey. Tom will make a manly parson.

FREDERICK ELLIS.

"Love's young dream."

FREO ELLIS was born in the village of London, Eng., in the year 1886. After being "cabin'd, cribbed, confined" there for some time, his spirit longed for pastures new, eventually driving him to leave the narrow confines of the Old Land for the "Land of Infinities," Canada. Here he has devoted his time to Theology and scarlet fever. He remains in College for a time to complete his Arts Course

ARCHIBALD LANG FLEMING.

HE was born in 1883, in Scotland. He studied at Glasgow University, and, after going through the mill, completed his training as a naval architect. In 1908 he heard a call from the Far North. Since then he has been occupied partly in theological reading, partly in work among the Esquimaux of Baffin's Land, to whom he is returning this summer. He is a man who leaves with everyone the conviction that service is not duty, but privilege.

ALAN DALLAS GREENE.

BORN in Orillia, February 18th, 1889, entered University College, 1906; resident in Wycliffe College; graduated in Arts, 1911; ordained June, 1912; anticipates graduating in Theology, 1913.

ARTHUR HAMILTON HOWITT.

BORN in Hamilton, November 11, 1888; entered University College, 1906; resident in Wycliffe College; ordained June, 1912; anticipates graduating May, 1913.

REGINALD PERCIVAL DAN HURFORD.

"Still there's the comment"

R. P. D. Hurford was born in Surrey, England, many years ago. After ten years of business life in Old London, he turned his thoughts towards the ministry of the Church of England. At Wycliffe he has taken a very good standing in his studies. He has also gained fame as an orator, winning the Gold Medal in his third year. We wish him every success in his further pursuit of theological lore.

VICTOR RALSTON JARVIS.

V. R. Jarvis, of 1T1, aspires to the clerical profession, with the happy genius of one who has discovered the sublimity of the theological. In College politics he supports the Radical progressive party of Wycliffe, but assumes the position of one interested in greater issues. He is of a genial nature and may lay claim to no small share of popularity.

GEORGE WESTON BYERS JONES.

Weston Jones came to Wycliffe from Gloucester, England. As a boy he attended Dean Close School, Cheltenham, and, after this, spent some years with the Great Western Railway. His kindly disposition has won for him many friends. He has occupied positions on the executives of the Students' Mission and Literary Societies and the Student Volunteer Band. As he goes forward to the work of the ministry, our heartiest wishes for further usefulness accompany him.

GOLDSMITH WILFRED LATIMER, B.A.

"Yet I would he were fatter"

G. W. Latimer, commonly known as "Slatz," is a familiar figure both at the University and at Wycliffe. That "Slatz" has been a leader no one denies; but, among the many phases of College life in which he has taken a leading part, he has excelled in none as in "Fussing." "Slatz" surprised the boys by returning to College this year with a "dog collar" (see cut), but still they find him more Reverend than reverent.

CHARLES ETIENNE LUCE, B.A.

After leaving Dean Close School, Cheltenham, England, and spending some years in business, Charlie left home to seek a fortune in Canada, eventually landing in Toronto. He entered 'Varsity, and in 1911 graduated with Honours in Classics. He has been on the staff of the Upper Canada College and the Bible Training School, and has also served on his College athletic executive. He has since graduated from "blessed singleness." The good wishes of all go with him.

CHARLES SIDNEY McGAFFIN.

"Mac" came to us from Ireland, in 1908, with an enviable football record, having played on the Royal Belfast Academical and the Inter-Provincial teams. During his residence in Wycliffe he has combined book-reviewing and social studies with a tolerant interest in college activities. "I am nothing if not critical."

"Swanny" has left his mark on College politics and the top corridor. He has a full heart and an empty pocket; a keen wit and a critical mind. His achievements include: Leader of the Government, secretary of Athletics, editor of the College magazine, and winner of the Gold Medal for Reading. As president of the North-West Association, it seems fitting that he should find his life-work in the Yukon.

GEORGE WILLIAM TEBBS.

"What's the matter with father?"

The fall of 1909 found "Dad" a Wycliffe freshman. Since then he has proven an "all-round man." Has served twice on the Lit. Executive, vice-president Mission Society, and twice on 'Varsity Board. On Wycliffe Waterpolo Team he has won his colours, also Bronze and Silver Medals for Life-Saving, and now qualifying for the Gold. Won the Lit.'s Essay Prize, Oratorical Gold Medal, and O'Brien Medal for Liturgical Reading.

WILLIAM THOMAS TOWNSEND.

"There is some soul of goodness in things evil
Would men observingly distil it out"

Townsend is a bluenose. With salt-air lungs and a fish-fed brain, he came from Dalhousie to Wycliffe—whether as a student or a professor no one quite knows. A hookworm by day, a butterfly by night, given to blasfumes and bohunks, he is equally at home in study and drawing-room. The Wild has called, however, and "Town" goes to the Yukon.

ROBERT WILSON.

"—Omega."

On May 1st, 1887, a voice not strange, yet altogether new, was heard at Walton, Cumberland; it was little "Bob," who hailed the month of flowers. Since that day Robert has risen to distinction. For seven years he held a responsible position with a Sunderland shipbuilding firm. Prior to his entering Wycliffe, he attended St. John's Hall, Highbury, England, and since coming to us has occupied the important office of secretary of the Mission Society.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF DENTAL SURGEONS OF ONTARIO

History of Class 1913

THE year one thousand nine hundred and nine will be noted in the chronicles for its strong trade winds, and in the fall of that year they blew R.C.D.S. wards. From city, town, village and hamlet there came two score and ten, less or more, of ambitious youths, and suddenly there appeared upon the scene this strange combination of the human element, and chose "divine" Detlor as their captain. Some were born under a rhubarb leaf, others brought and deposited by the proverbial stork, and the rest were born like all other mortals. What their pre or post-natal life was matters not; suffice it to say that they were all living and very much alive.

Ushered into the college halls, our names were put upon the "Magna Charta" by the venerable old man, the Dean, and this, as it were, precipitated us into the "Hustle." That October afternoon the heavenly bodies stood in their orbits and dark clouds stretched across the horizon. Our enemy hurled a spear into our camp, and thus hostilities began. The missiles consisted of axle-grease, shoe-polish and flour. Volley followed volley; the onslaught of our foes was heavy, but we repulsed them time and again, and stood our ground. The battlefield looked a veritable shambles, and havoc and destruction were on every turn. Right then and there we swore by the grey hairs of Appolonia to wreak vengeance upon the next generation. Yea! And the sins of the fathers shall be upon the head of their children and their children's children to the third and fourth generation after them. When the opportune moment came the following year, the Scriptures were fulfilled according to ——P, and we turned the tables on the "newcomers." To heal our wounds, we were shortly after banqueted and feasted by the sophs, and foster-fathered and mothered by Dr. and Mrs. Willmott.

Like the children of Israel in Egypt, we worked in mud at the R.C.D.S., but, unlike them, built molars and cuspids and other likenesses that could not be worshipped, since they were unlike those in heaven above or on earth beneath. Drs. Doherty and Cummer were our trusted guides, and their memory will remain with us. Time sped on, and day of reckoning arrived. Some were bruised, others singed, but, happily, the guillotine did not drop upon a single head.

We arrived at the second milestone on our long and tortuous road, under Chief Ezra Madden. Chief engineers Dr. Webster and Dr. Thornton introduced us into the domain of mechanics; we imitated the dove's tail, employed the property of the inverted cone and that of the fulcrum and lever; built tunnels and undermined them, dug canals, cut through straits, and, to span the abyssmal deeps, swung bridges across; levelled mountains, excavated and built seats and steps. Our machinery was propelled by the most primitive means.

This year saw us introduced into the dissecting room, and many a "seance" did we have with the dead. We worked like slaves in the galleys, and occasionally would be interrupted by "Fresh air and sunshine kills T. B.;" "Well, that's done;" "Christopher Columbo put the country on the b——o." Time glided on, and the first half of our era came to a close—everybody again safely made the shore.

Our boat, well manned and provisioned, started on the second half of its voyage with the genial McLean at the wheel. The sailors were now more sturdy and courageous and experienced; the waters not so rough and raging. Stroke by stroke, we steadily pushed on towards the beacon light in the distance. We descended now to the hall of the "selects," were no more like dumb-driven cattle; began to assert ourselves, and feel like men. Even his Excellency Tom treated us now with a little kindness and consideration, and did not rule with such an iron hand as he used to. This year saw our advent into the infirmary—the metaphorical "Chamber of Horrors." It would fill a volume to describe our first adventures there. Thanks to Drs. Stuart and Fife, we steered clear of many a treacherous hole.

The "Millennium" has now arrived; we are seniors—the pinnacle of our expectations—looked up to by the juniors, revered by the sophs, and idolized by the freshies. To Captain McCarten falls the glory of steering us into the "Haven." Most of our time was spent in the infirmary replacing lost organs under Dr. Willmott, regulating the natural organs under Dr. Hume, and doing everything else imaginable to the natural organs under Dr. Stuart.

The Class of 1913 boldly stands out in many respects. We set the record for marks, both collectively and individually; C. M. won his spurs here. In athletics we were no mean factor; unassuming Mac is the hero.

For four years we have been together, friendships started, associations formed, characters learned. Like a grown-up son, we must now leave the house of our father, and be scattered to the four corners of the earth. Each becomes a factor in this game of life; let us try then and play our game well. My heart fills with sadness to witness this state of affairs, yet, on the other hand, I feel pleased to know that we are children no more; will become unconstrained and assume a physiognomy all our own.

NILE HUGHES WINN.

"In years young, but in experience old."

The subject of this sketch was born in New Hamburg, Ont. There he accumulated knowledge in the public and high schools. A Brief History of the Ontario Agricultural College

THE earliest records of agricultural education in Ontario date back to 1845, when the "Canadian Agricultural Reader" was printed, but the study of agriculture was not introduced into Ontario's educational system until 1860, when Egerton Ryerson, Superintendent of Education, placed it upon the curriculum of several schools of the province. The need of a special school of agriculture began to be felt in 1869, when Sir John Carling was Commissioner of Agriculture, and in 1873 the five hundred and fifty acre farm of F. W. Stone at Guelph was purchased by the Government, and the Ontario Agricultural College and Experimental Farm were established.

The first principal to develop the school to any extent was Mr. Wm. Johnson, who acted in this capacity from 1875 to 1879. Mr. Jas. Mills, of Brantford, succeeded him, and the college continued to make rapid strides, and became widely known as the foremost school of agriculture on the continent.

In 1882 the campus was laid out. As a result, the O.A.C. campus to-day is the most beautiful piece of college property in Canada. In 1887 there were no college buildings other than the present residence and the farm buildings. Class rooms, laboratories, dormitories, dining-hall, etc., were all situated in the present main building. Since that date other buildings have been added, until at the present time the campus boasts of fifteen large buildings for lecture and laboratory work, besides many private residences and other structures. A new agronomy building is now being erected, and a large dining-hall in 1913 will do much to remedy the congested residence conditions. An additional purchase of land in 1912 has increased the size of the farm to seven hundred acres.

In 1888 the college was affiliated with Toronto University. In that year five men graduated with the degree of B.S.A. In 1873, when the school opened, there were twenty-eight students in attendance. In 1900 the attendance in all courses had increased to 742. That the popularity and efficiency of the college have continued to develop with recent years is borne out by the attendance figures for 1911, which reached a total of 1,557 for all courses.

In 1904 Dr. Mills resigned from the presidency, to become a member of the Canadian Railway Commission. He was succeeded by G. C. Creelman, B.S.A., M.S., a graduate of '88. Dr. Creelman has Ontario's agricultural interests at heart, and the ever-increasing attendance at the college indicates the wisdom of his administration.

The influence of the institution upon the agricultural status of Ontario cannot be over-estimated. Since it acts in conjunction with the Ontario Department of Agriculture, it reaches to the very heart of the rural districts in every part of the province, and, through its graduates, to countries the world over.

S. C. Creelman, B.S.A., M.S., L.L.D.

Class History

IN the far West a lone tombstone commemorates a departed cowboy, thus: "He was a fighter; he did his darnedst; no angel could have done better." This is the record of '13. They never bullied a weaker element nor turned their backs upon a stronger. As a year, they have measured to Dickens' conception of a gentleman, to "never be mean, never be false, never be cruel."

From a mob in 1909, they rapidly organized and have always fought together. In their freshman days they defeated the sophomores and for two years made nearly as many points in athletics as all the other years together, and have for three consecutive years held the grand championship.

But these physical successes were among the least. Of the real scraps—the moral and mental victories—we care mostly to think. A severe hazing was given them and they instituted a manlier, cleaner form. They were untrained, at first, but have carried away the highest public speaking, oratorical and literary honours the College can give. The "Review" and the Athletic Association have expanded under their leadership. The social life of the College has flourished under their direction. They have tried to put the right men in the right places, and the moral tone of the student body has been improved by the conscientious work of these. In the long life of a College the influence of a year, at best, is transitory, but the good deeds of '13 will last as long as any.

And now they bid farewell to the old battles and associations of to-day to turn their faces to the brightening sky of a broader to-morrow. In the new life many will become wealthy and many noted; but better and greater than all, few indeed but will win the highest prize—the name and fame of a true Canadian gentleman.

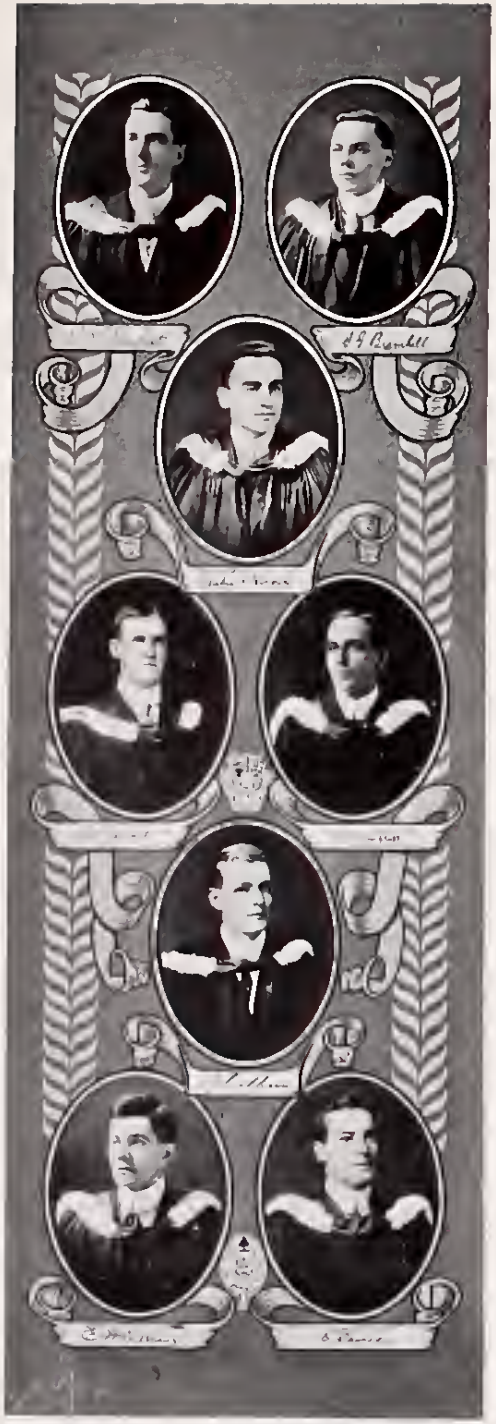
BIOGRAPHIES



REGINALD SAMUEL EVERARD BECKETT.

"A man not of words but of actions."

"REG" was born in Welland County, where he received his early education. He then entered the O.A.C. with Class '12, where, in his first year, he made his presence felt by winning the Scholarship in English and Mathematics, and also the heavy-weight championship in boxing. After dropping out for one year, he returned to specialize in Horticulture with Class '13. We wish him the success which he deserves.

GEORGE GARLAND BRAMHILL.

"Cool as an icicle, and determined as the rock it hangs upon."

HE got off to a good start by winning the Freshmen Oratorical. As a debater he has no superior in the college. His all-round ability secured for him a place on the executive of the Literary Society, Y.M.C.A., Sophomore Banquet Committee, Conversat Committee, treasurer of his Junior Year a true sport in every sense of the word, "Bram" was, manager of the college indoor baseball team, a member of the Senior basketball team and inter-year hockey team.

REUBEN WESLEY BROWN.

"Studious of useful knowledge."

AN Associate of the O.A.C. sowed the seed that resulted in Reuben's entering O.A.C. with Class '12. After his third year, to better equip himself for his chosen profession, he took the Dairy short course, re-entering with Class '13. A good student and as good a sport, Reuben won his emblem on the Senior Rugby team, and played on the inter-year hockey and indoor baseball teams. A bright future awaits him.

EARL WELLINGTON CALVERT.

"A bird in the bush is worth two in the hand."

POOR infested "Bird-dom" of the vicinity of Reaboro, near Lindsay, has been long in need of a specialist to rid its members of their arch enemies, the tribe Mallophaga. To these surroundings came "Kagax." The "Iron Duke" is a born nature student, prominent in field naturalist clubs, and specializing in biology and bird-lore at the O.A.C. Success to him!

ARCHIBALD MARSHALL CAMPBELL.

"ARCHIE" first struck planet "Earth" in 1892, in Durban, South Africa. After getting his early training at Durban High School, he came to the O.A.C. in 1909, to study and investigate the great mysteries and problems concerned in the science of Agriculture; however, his mind has been engrossed at times with greater things and possibilities in a closely related institution. As a football player on the college team, he has made his mark, even from his first year.

GORDON JOSEPH CULHAM.

"Small in boasting but big in deeds."

"SHORTY" appeared in Hamilton in 1889, where he received his early education. He has studied a little, loafed some, and played much. For four years he has been a basketball star, and in 1912 captained the college team. Far greater, however, has been his performance in track athletics. In 1910 and 1911 he won the Graud Championship shield, and for three years has won many points for the college track team.

EDWARD HAROLD DARLING.

"Of a humorous vein and a fighting strain,
Do or die was his battle cry."

"TED" came to life in the eighties. In 1908 he visited the lands of the thistle, shamrock, rose, and fleur-de-lis, where he became very favourably impressed with life in the old land. "Our Darling" joined Class '13, and became quite famous for his practical knowledge of Horticulture. "Ted" distinguished himself as a bowler in his sophomore year.

ERNEST LANGFORD DAVIES.

"Will you sit down with me? And we two will rail against our mistress the world, and all our misery."

DAVIES gave his first yell in Pernambuco, Brazil. For six years he attended school in England. He then became convinced of Canada's glorious future and became a Canadian citizen. In '09 he joined Class '13 to specialize in Bacteriology. In '12-'13 he was chairman of the Student Council. As a scholar he ranked with the best, and as an athlete was unexcelled.

WILFRID DAVISON.

"Clear, honest fountain of humour,
Shall we not see thee again!"

FIRST seeing light in 1891, "Taffey" chased after more through Parkgate, Chester, King's and Warwick Schools. His brightened intellect was dulled somewhat through six months in business. The Star of Canada lured him, and a twelve months' shine on a farm polished him up sufficiently to be a bright and shining light at the O.A.C. "Taffey's" grin is infectious. May he always wear it.

ROBERT DOUGALL.

"Ambition is a lust that is never quenched."

"ROBBIE" was born at Middleburg, South Africa, in 1889. He spent his schooldays in the Sunny South. In 1909 he came to Guelph and joined '13. He has always taken a keen interest in his studies and all college affairs. As an athlete and in the social side of life he shone pre-eminently. We wish him good luck.

GARNET CROMWELL ELLIS.

"I say, the world did shake when I was born."

"BIG ELLIS" first came in contact with the sorrows of life in November, 1885, near Florence, Lambton County, Ontario. Leaving public school at an early age, he put in a long course of practical agriculture on his father's farm. He came to Guelph in 1909, to join Class '13, to show them how to judge live stock. Garnet has a cheerful spirit, is an eminent "fusser," and is an all-round good head.

RICHARD HAY FERGUSON.

"I am a part of all that I have met"

BORN in Ireland and moving to New Zealand nine years later, Ferguson began his cosmopolitan training early. He matriculated and attended lective courses in Canterbury College, Christchurch, and subsequently entered the teaching profession, specializing in Agriculture and Allied Sciences. Thirsting for knowledge and experience, he arrived at O.A.C. September, 1911, where his rollicking laugh is known to rival the "halloo" of John Peel.

HENRY BELL GEROW.

"A tower of strength,
With breadth and length."

"PRIXY" first saw the light in the eighties. From high school he went to business college, later taking a position with the American Abel Engine and Machine Works Company, Toronto. Harry decided that farming was more remunerative than book-keeping, and entered the O.A.C. with Class '13. He was elected president in his first year. Harry took an active interest in baseball and captained the Sophomore Championship Bowling team.

JAMES BURNESS GRANGE.

"The best of men have ever loved repose"

BORN in Dumfriesshire, Scotland, in 1890. Moved to England, and was educated at Repton, Derbyshire. Being fond of repose and hard work, he became a farmer. Soon finding that England was too small for him, and thirsting for more agricultural lore, he came to the O.A.C. in 1909. No one could mistake him for a judge; he knows cattle, and the boys know him.

PERCY S. D. HARDING.

"If he had any faults, he has left us in doubt."

PERCY was born near Dulwich, England, July 26, 1886. Dulwich College is responsible for his early training. A practical farmer, Percy determined to learn of its hidden science. Winner of a Scholarship in Biology, president of the Philharmonic Society, a member of the international stock-judging team, and a useful man on the track team, Percy has proved himself a man of unlimited capabilities.

LEWIS BROCK HENRY.

"His sole ambition was to be a colonel."

UPON September 23, 1892, Lewis Brock started to look for "peaches" at Winona. Whether he has yet located a certain "little peach," however, is very doubtful. Entering with '13, his popularity was shown by the positions he held: President of Maple Leaf Literary, secretary of Union Literary, Alumni and horticultural editor of the "Review." Moreover, he is somewhat of an athlete and a very frequent visitor across the way.

A business man by instinct, he worked his way up to a responsible position with a big Toronto furrier. As president and valedictorian of the Sophomore year and business manager of the "Review," he has won the respect of all.

SIDNEY C. JOHNSTON.

"There was a pleasant atmosphere of large prosperity about him"

ONE day in the early nineties Islington was set agog by the advent of one, Sidney. It soon became apparent that he had all the ear-marks of a second Burbank. Being ambitious, he decided to graduate in an epoch-making year, and, as a natural sequence, entered O.A.C. with '13. As circulation manager of the "Review" and secretary of his Class, Sid has made good.

In 1910 he joined the boys of the O.A.C., and they all like him, good old Dan McKee.

ERNEST FRANKLIN NEFF.

"A downright good fellow."

"ERNIE" hails from Hamilton. After leaving school, he aided his father on the farm, but later made a move to the O.A.C. Fruit growing and poultry claim his chief attention. The college "gym" and basketball teams have been strengthened by his services.

CHESTER S. NICHOLSON.

"He saw, he wished, and to the prize aspired."

"BILL" was born in the Highlands of Ontario, in the enchanting region of the Muskoka Lakes, in the year 1883. Although living in that noted sporting district, the aims of a sportsman were not sufficiently high for "Bill's" ambitions, and, in consequence, he entered the O.A.C. He came to the college with a purpose, which has been fulfilled. "Aim high" is his motto.

HARRY STANIFORTH.

"A gentleman in word and deed"

"GRANTED" the privileges of life on July 27, 1890, in Salford, England, "Stanny" received his early training in Urmston Higher Grade School. Left to spend four years in Manchester, dividing his time between an office and a special course in bleaching, dyeing and finishing of cotton cloth at the Municipal School of Technology. Tiring of this, he sailed for Canada in July, 1909, and entered the O.A.C. with '13.

CLARENCE WILLIAM STANLEY.

"Oh yet we trust that somehow good
Will be the final goal of ill."

WILLIAM HERBERT JAFFRAY TISDALE.

BORN near Paris, Ontario, in 1891, "Jaff." received his early education in the public and high school in Paris. President of his Junior Year, president of the Athletic Association and on the Literary executive, "Tizzy" has had a busy life at College. In spite of all this his calls at Macdonald Hall were frequent and his standing in Class high. His ability as a judge of live stock gained him a place on the judging team for the International.

ALFRED HARDING TOMLINSON.

"Golden opinions from all sorts of people"

ALFRED opened his eyes and said "By Jove!" in Devon, England. He came to Canada five years ago. Reared in his father's nursery, in an atmosphere scented with flowers, he could not help the sweetness of disposition with which he is gifted. He is a born horticulturist, and no one can manufacture floral and rhetorical bouquets for the ladies like our Alfred. Always the gentleman in appearance, he is one at heart.

The Literary Society

THE college term opened with the usual return of the seniors, juniors and sophomores, followed by an aggregation of awe-stricken freshies. Of course such an immigration meant work for the various college societies, and the Literary Society was no exception. There was the collecting of fees, dividing of members into subsocieties; and following these rudimentary preparations came the anticipated social events.

Aided by the pronounced zest of the highly esteemed president of the Lit.—A. M. King (Harry, for short)—the members of the executive soon adjusted themselves in their newly acquired positions. These boosters of literary advancement, inspired with a keen determination to fulfil all of their many duties, proceeded to make ample use of their powers of originality. During the first part of the term even lectures didn't worry them. The preparation for "At Homes" and "Union Lit." meetings proved pleasures to break the monotony of the daily routine. It is proclaimed unanimously that the "Union Lits." were a success. An appreciation of the efforts of the president and his adherents was remarkably displayed by such methodical students and non-fussers as W. A. Weir and E. G. Hood. These men, who were never known to have representatives of the fair sex in their company at a Union Lit., actually condescended to allow their beloved feminine frailties to be present at such occasions. These men were not alone in their high ideals, but had the hearty co-operation of such Mac-Hall enthusiasts as J. L. Tennent and J. E. McLarty. Such unexpected instances proved to be encouraging to the Literary Society, which continued to thrive. The laborious duties of this society appeared on some occasions positively ludicrous to the onlooker, but doubtless at the same time caused the man or men concerned many provocations. In one instance we have a vivid picture of L. E. Hipple within five minutes of the opening of a Union Lit., rushing hither and thither in search of a bouquet of American Beauties, which on this eventful evening tantalizingly arrived just at the psychological moment. The secretary in his ambition also gave occasion for some little agitation by persisting in being nervous at a most inopportune time. Such disturbing instances would over-balance the equilibrium of the ordinary mind; but the jovial yet business-like nature of "Harry" was sufficient to cause all difficulties to be smoothed away.

Summing up the qualities of our Literary executive, nowhere could a more sincere aggregation of workers be found. Our Hon. President, Prof. W. H. Day, proved his keen desire for literary advancement by taking a great interest in the society's progress, and offering encouraging assistance whenever needed. H. M. King's character is surely revealed in the success of the Literary Society during the fall term. In fact, one need only meet our president to form a favourable opinion. The three vice-presidents, E. G. Hood, J. L. Tennant and J. E. McLarty, certainly accomplished more, and performed their many duties more satisfactorily, than any other three men could have done. As for the secretary? He's the man behind the minute book, and when he is not in this predicament spends his weary hours writing the many necessary epistles. I don't think Thos. H. H. Fortier harmed the society in any way, so will let him pass as one who has performed his duty. A position requiring skill is that of the treasurer. The lot falling to this individual is of quite a serious nature. He is held responsible for the financial condition of the society. L. E. Hipple deserves great credit for the industrious and perfectly business-like manner in which he conducted his important share of the work. Our committee men were without peer. If there were any special business propositions to wrestle with, W. A. Weir, D. G. Laird and A. C. McClymont, working in unison, were always ready to perform their respective duties. Remarkable as it may seem, the members of this trio were willing at all times to share their pleasures with those of the opposite sex, by regularly escorting fair maidens to the Literary meetings. The members of the executive were certainly not alone in their endeavours, but owe a great deal of thanks to those who were kind enough to assist in making the programmes successful by rendering their talent, which led to a thorough appreciation of the evening's events.

The annals of the Literary events of the fall term are but few. The usual regularity of Union debates, with their enthusiastic attendance made pleasurable by the originality of programme, have occurred in the usual sequence. With this much accomplished we find ourselves at a point of dispersal. It is now the time of the year when exams. are most prominent in the mind of the industrious student. Social events have ceased pro tem. Society elections have been held; and the resignation of the "1912" executive is next in order.

CYRIL A. TREGILLUS.

"As true a gentleman as friend"

BORN at Southampton, "Trig." spent the first twelve years of his life in England; he landed in Calgary in 1902 and has since made it his home. Reserved, unselfish, he has been a good friend to all his classmates and to his year. It is said that he travelled all over the Continent during the past two summers in search of a cure for "heart trouble," finally finding it in Guelph.

CECIL ALEXANDER WEBSTER.

"A gentleman, a sportsman, and a friend."

BORN at Dundas, Ont., on May 21, 1889, received his early training in his home town, farmed a few years, and entered O.A.C. with '12, but dropped out one year and finished with '13. Cecil accomplishes whatever he undertakes. He advocated poultry through the medium of the "Review," and as captain of the football team he led them to the Junior Intercollegiate Championship.

And to say truth, Oakville brags of him
To be a virtuous and well governed youth."

GEORGE was born at Oakville, Ontario, where he received his early education and practical farm experience. He has won the respect and friendship of all his classmates by his unfailing good nature and cheerful optimism. George is specializing in Horticulture, giving chief attention to the culture of apples and small fruits.

History of Class '13, O. V. College

BE kind with your thoughts and temporarily place yourself with the historian, and then you will see difficulties innumerable in depicting so great a body as Class '13. This little history contains many errors of omission, not intentional, but because of inexperience.

Three years ago over a hundred verdant freshmen assembled from all points of the compass to claim the O.V.C. as their Alma Mater. The opening day was an eventful one indeed, and long to be remembered. Our one regret was that we were unable to be greeted by the benign and paternal countenance of Andrew Smith, F. R. C. V. S., D.V.S., the founder of the college in 1862. His death was announced Aug. 15, 1910, and veterinarians all over the world received the news with the deepest regrets. It was at this time that we met our common enemy, the sophomores, and we learned the virtues of an "operating table." We were surely led as "lambs to the slaughter." Realizing our inefficiency, we organized Class '13. Jack Wood was elected to wield the "gavel," and other class officers and committees appointed. The art of organization and its value was soon discovered and class affairs running smoothly.

DR. GRANGE

The first annual Field Day was inaugurated, and held on the 'Varsity oval. Class '13 lost the championship by a very narrow margin, but the secret of success was learned and retained for future use. After Christmas vacation the dissecting room was the scene of our greatest activities. "Gentlemen, you must know your anatomy," was the watchword, and heeded by many. Numerous pictures were taken while arrayed in our spotless white, aseptic uniforms, and we were pronounced a "fine bunch"(?) The time for us to feel the atrocities of the examiner's axe soon came. A few were completely cut off never to return, but it was most effectually dulled, in Anatomy, by Stubbs, who won the scholarship for the year.

Five months of practical experience found us back for our second year, when things immediately began to "hum," as the freshmen will testify. The class, with Wood still at the helm, was safely piloted through another year in a manner that was a credit to us all. We had not been back long when we were greeted at the dissecting room by our genial demonstrator, Dr. Cash, who had spent the summer in the invigorating atmosphere of the Canadian Rockies. By his able demonstrations we soon solved the mystery of the "pedunculated hydatid of Morgagni."

The second annual Field Day was the next event of importance. There was an intense rivalry between the "years," but Class '13 won the championship by a large majority of points, including the "tug-of-war." The School Championship was a "walk-away" for Card.

Soon after these events Dr. Fowler instituted a series of clinics, which marks an epoch of great advancement in the history of the O.V.C. Lack of space will not permit us to extol the merits of this valuable and much appreciated addition to our education. Time flew on with quick celerity, and we again found ourselves facing the test of another "final," with results that were gratifying to us all, especially Murray, who won the scholarship of the year.

Our third year marks the fiftieth anniversary of the O.V.C. We also have the honour of being the last class to graduate from the old Temperance Street college, as a new building is in the course of erection on University Ave. The session of '12-'13 proved to be a grand finale. Class elections gave Forsyth the presidency, and other officers of the previous two years re-elected by a unanimous vote, G. G. Anderson, vice-president; Skinner, secretary-treasurer. The Science Association, according to custom, convened at the beginning of the year and elected the following officers: our genial head executive Dr. Grange, honorary president; Murray, president; McEwen, secretary-treasurer.

Class '13 has the distinction of introducing an orchestra in the meetings of the Association, and also a piano for continual use. The O.V.C. Orchestra originated during our second year at the Ontario Veterinary Association meeting, under the instigation of Wood. This added pleasure after a strenuous Friday evening of discussion will bring back many pleasant memories in future years.

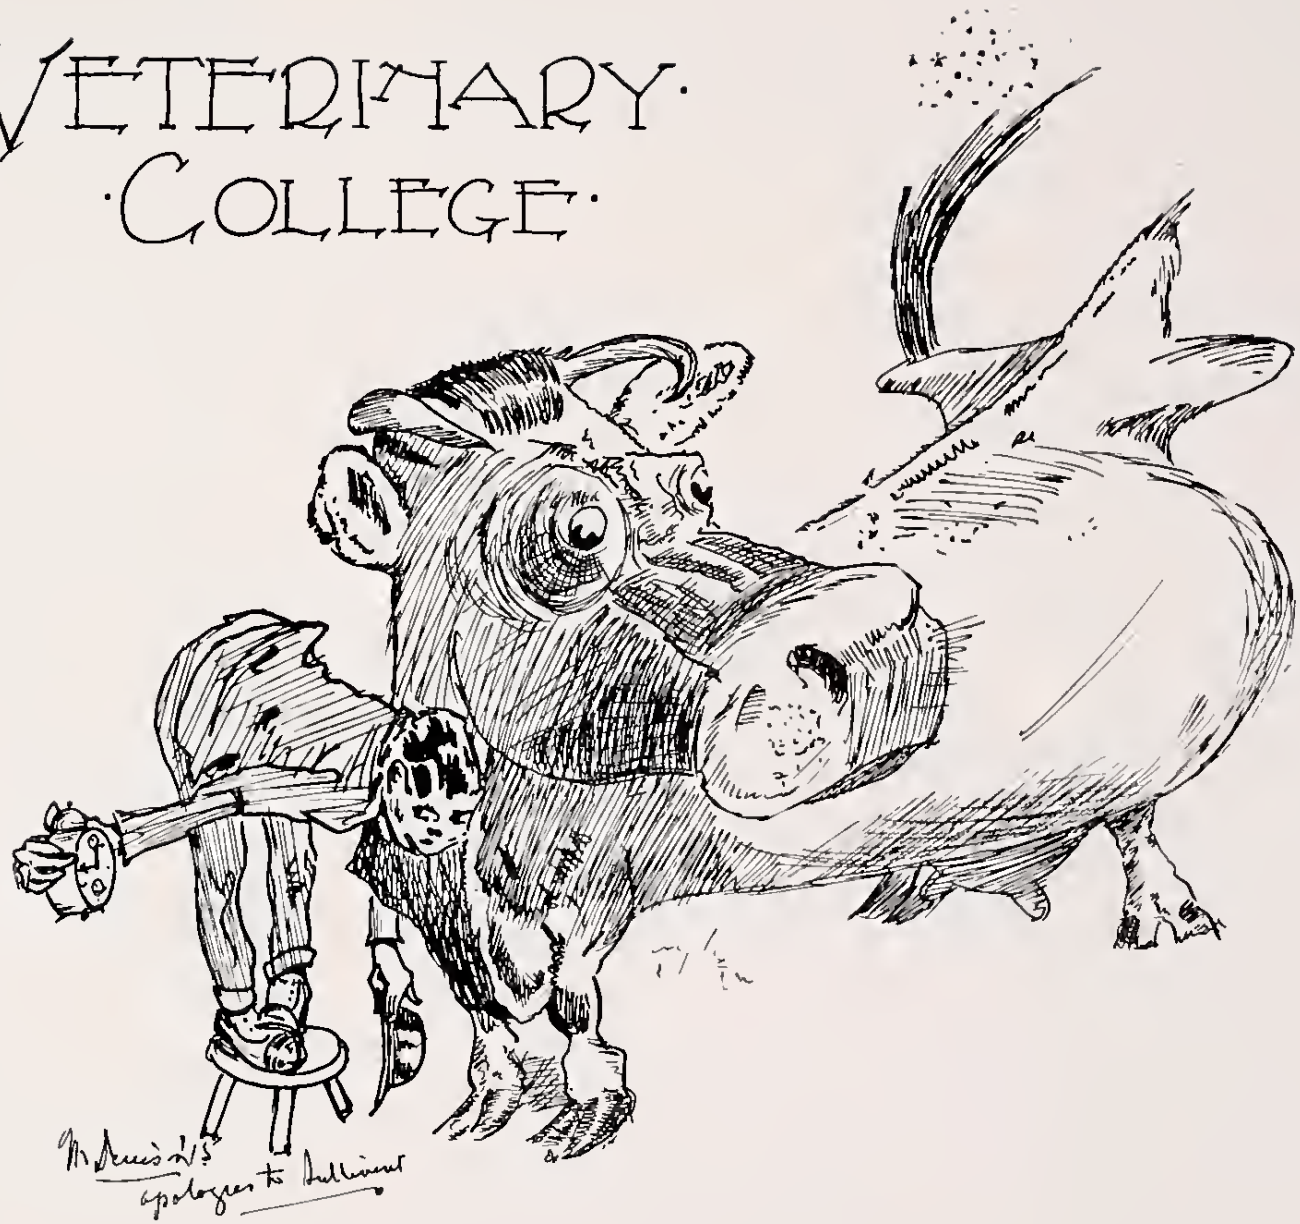
VETERINARY COLLEGE



GEORGE EMERY ANDERSON.

He was born in 1892 and raised on a farm in La Grange County, Indiana. While on the farm he saw the great need of professional men in the veterinary work to look after the dumb animals, so decided to enter the O.V.C. George has been a great favourite among the boys of the school on account of his joking nature and jolly disposition. Upon graduation he will practice in his home town in La Grange County.

GEORGE GUILD ANDERSON.

"A man's a man for a' that!"

Born at Dundee, Scotland; graduated from St. Andrew's Academy. Being a lover of canines, he determined to delve into the mysteries of disease and lend a helping hand to alleviate the ills of the dumb animal. That he is a general favourite was shown in his second year, when he was elected vice-president of his Class, and also when his classmates by acclamation re-elected him vice-president of the third year.

MATTHEW BABER.

"A horse! a horse! My kingdom for a horse!"

"Babee" first declared his independence in the late eithties near the town of Roaum, Indiana. Receiving his early training at the village school, later at Chili High School, he, in his thirst for knowledge, entered the Veterinary Department of the University of Toronto in 1910. Although never in office, he was always one of our hardest workers, and in this way has won the friendship of his fellow students.

FREDERICK ARNOLD BARKER

"He who knows and knows he knows,
He is wise. Follow him."

Fred was born and bred in North Toronto, and is a happy mixture of brains and brawn. Through his good-naturedness and ability to stick, they dubbed him "Plumpy." Fred attended the Harbord Street Collegiate; worked on the City Hall staff, the "Mail and Empire," and finally settled down to concentrate all his energies towards Veterinary Science.

FREDERICK CHARLES BORNSCHEIN.

"Sh! He sleeps"

Born in Sioux City, Iowa. His early days, spent at the public and high schools there, are never to be forgotten. Later was associated with a pet stock establishment, and as a lover and breeder of animals "Dutch" left for Toronto to study their troubles. The text books have a peculiar narcotic effect on Fritz, for, after a brief period, he is off to the "Garden of Dreams." His pipe and a stein are his greatest delights.

ARTHUR EDWARD BOWMAN.

Arthur first declared his independence near the city of Hamilton, Ont., and at that famous burg received his early education. His love for the noble animal led him to care for its wants, and for that purpose he entered the Class of 1901 at the Ontario Veterinary College. Since graduating, he has been very successful in his practice, but his thirst for knowledge brought him back to his old "Alma Mater" in 1913 as a post-graduate.

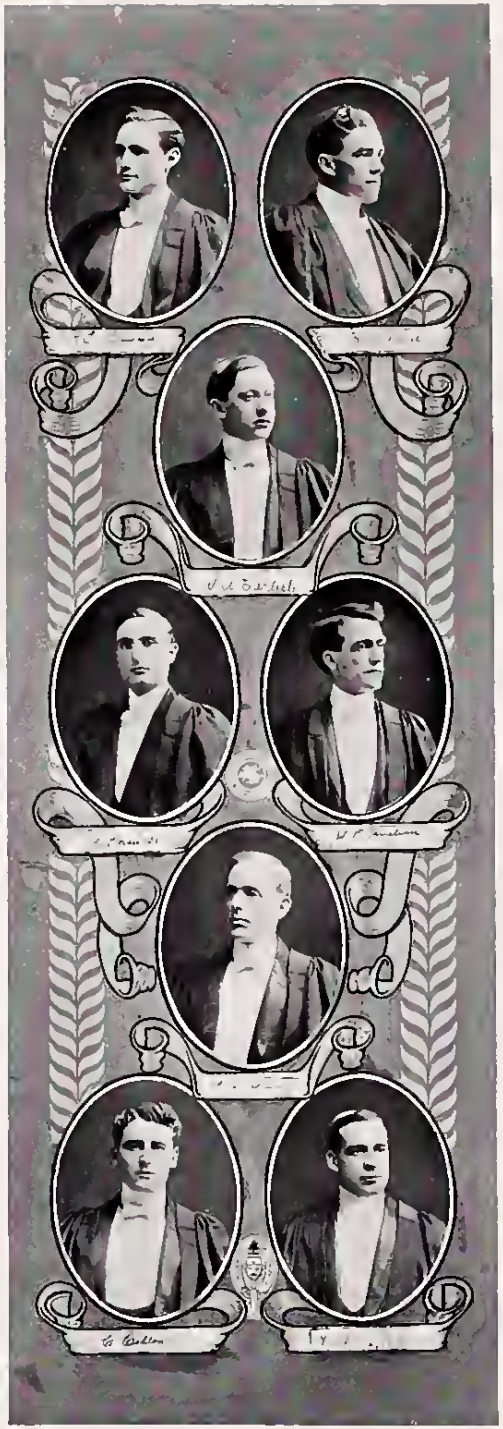
GEORGE ALEXANDER BOWMAN.

"Success comes in cans, failures in can'ts."

George first saw the light of day and the prosperous little town of Treherne, Manitoba, away back in 1889. Having devoted a great deal of interest in well-bred horses, he decided in 1910 to take a course in the Ontario Veterinary College, and, being a brilliant student, is making a stab for his B. and Sc.

HARRY BOYD.

Harry first made his appearance felt in ye olde town of Barrow-in-Furness, England. After receiving his early education at the eminent schools of that city, he later entered the O V C. Although graduating with full honours in 1895, this thirst for knowledge brought him back to still enlarge his "cerebrum" with more facts about his chosen profession. We are assured that when he has finished this year's work, nobody will have anything on our old friend Harry.



FRANK EDWARD BRONSON.

"And still the wonder grew
How one small head could carry all he knew."

FRANK came to us from Hornell, N.Y., entering O.V.C. with Class '13, where he has taken an active part and at all times shown his ability. To any of his associates who were in doubt or needed any help Frank was their "goal," as he is a walking encyclopædia on all matters connected with his chosen profession.

BOWEN OLIVER CARD.

"He doth nothing but talk of games."

His first struggle for attention was in Sylvania, Pa. His early education was attained at the "little red school house" and Mansfield Normal School. Was elected president O.V.C. Athletic Association, won the inter-class championship cup in his junior and senior years; also member of basketball team both years. We all wish him the best of success in his noble profession.

THOMAS A. CARLISLE.

CARLISLE says he was born in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, some twenty years ago. After attending school at Aliquippa (wherever that may be), his aspiration turned towards professional life. After a somewhat exciting voyage, he landed in Toronto, and entered the Class of '13 at O.V.C. During his college career he has won for himself the admiration and true friendship of all with whom he has come in contact. We bespeak for him success.

FRANK EDWARD CASWELL.

"Great oaks from little acorns grow."

BLISSFIELD, Mich., never heard of Frank Caswell until 1888, and since then they have heard very little but Frank. He was a farmer in the true sense of the word, and delights in the fact that he was born on the farm, whence come all great men, but to obtain greatness they leave, so we see him in the Ontario Veterinary College in 1910 and miss him in 1913.

WILLIAM PEEL CHRISTIAN.

BORN in 1883 and received his schooling in the county schools of Peel, Ontario. Then, as the East was too small to hold him, when he reached manhood, he migrated to Outlook, Sask., where he homesteaded and prospered, until he was able to enter upon his career as a student of the Ontario Veterinary College Graduating Class of '13. His sunny, mischievous ways made him everyone's friend, especially those who knew him best.

WILLIAM JOHN CLASSEY.

"They may have class, but not like Classey."

"A BOY," said the doctor in Canandaigua, N.Y., some twenty odd years ago. He attended the common schools; later his dad located in Cleveland, O., where "Bill" mingled with the "Rail birds," and distinguished himself as a "Classy" reinsman. His love for the mighty steed moved him to Toronto, to study their many troubles. Congenial, originality of wit and humour will often gladden the heart of a sad client.

CHARLES COLITON.

"CHARLIE" was born October 26th, 1888, near Loretto, Simcoe County, Ontario. Since he made his debut he has changed his address many times, and now hies from Oshawa. He was educated in Loretto and Oshawa. He entered the freshman Class of 1910. After dusting off the hayseeds, he became a Junior in 1911. He graduates in 1913 with the best wishes of all who know him.

WALTER REGINALD COX.

SAW the light of day in smoky, old London. He went to the Boer War, but did not get covered with gore as much as he does in the dissecting room. In the lecture room he jots down the subject of the lecture and quietly departs to dreamland, only to be awakened by a kick from "Ada" or the sound of the noonday chimes. He graduated from the O.V.C. in 1908, and is now post-graduating.

EDWARD ARTHUR DE VARENNES.

"All is not gold that glitters."

"TEDDY" was raised and educated at Burlington, in Vermont. He likes to "elucidate" upon the "opsonic index," and he who ventures to tangle him shall surely fall by the wayside. As vice-president of the Science Association, he carries a wonderful "right," which cannot be questioned; also gifted with a beautiful tenor voice, which sounds at its best when he sings "Somebody Else is Getting It." Teddy is sure a favourite

CLARENCE S. DICKINSON.

"No flowers—— Please."

"DICK," as he is familiarly known, is a product of Port Hope. After receiving his public and high school education, a hereditary instinct for Veterinary Science soon sprung up, and since isolating himself with Class '13 he has become popularly known by his cheerful, unassuming manner as a good fellow. The prognosis for "Dick" looks favourable.

KENNETH L. DOUGLAS.

"A bold, bad man"

"DUG." hails from Stratford and is a sport, according to the word's best meaning. For some time he attended grade and high schools at Enderlin, N. Dak. Took a preparatory course at Fargo College, and later entered business college at Stratford, but Veterinary Science held forth such brilliant attractions for him that he decided to enter the O.V.C. "Dug." will certainly stir up the waters when he finally heaves into port.

FRANK DOUGLAS EARLY.

"Let knouledge grow from more to more."

FRANK was first noticed August 15, 1888, in Brampton, Ont. The first year of his life he was a howling success. He was educated at Brampton. Went West in 1906 and homesteaded near Saskatoon. Realizing the need of more competent veterinarians, he decided to enter O.V.C. in 1910. Here he proved to be an able student and athlete, winning the mile race at the first O.V.C. games.

WALLACE C. EDWARDS.

"These are the times that try men's souls."

"BILL," who carries with him a Southern air, hails from Columbus, Indiana, at which place he was raised and received his preliminary education. He is very reserved in manners, and you never know him, unless thoroughly acquainted with him. He was secretary-treasurer of Athletic Association for three terms.

JACK JAMES FARRELL.

MORE popularly known as "Sourdough." Was born at Rose Hill, P.E.I. He served under the North-West Mounted Police for three years, and then joined the Arctic Brotherhood, and penetrated the wilds of Alaska as far north as the Northern Lights, discovering the sore need of a veterinary surgeon in the Land of the Midnight Sun. He decided to hit the trail for Toronto and stake his claim at the O.V.C.

PARKER JAMES FLAGG.

"He's little, but he's wise;
He's a 'terror' for his size."

PARKER came with the birds to Worcester, Mass., in 1891, where he spent his childhood. From there he flew North to the Green Mountains, and spent much of his time in torturing the teachers of the Peacham Academy. "Yes, you know him," for his word of good cheer and jolly jokes will long be remembered by the Class of '13.

LOREN FLORA.

"Small men are unique"

His first howl for stimulants was heard in Flora, Ind. Our modified "Hoosier" is far from being a "Lizzie," as his name might indicate, for he was chief commander of a sturdy group of bridge builders. He was next traced to a foreign veterinary college, where our little midget was often heard, but seldom seen—his audience was so large. His forcible arguments will surely crown him with success.

WILFRED WESTON FORSYTH.

"It was he who caused our genesis
In this year book, 'Torontonensis'."—F E B.

"CURLY" is a son of Brora, Scotland. He started his early education in the Royal High School, Edinburgh, but left the "heathery hills" to complete it in Harriston, Ont. During Wilfred's sojourn in the O.V.C. he has made everybody a friend. In the final year Class '13 elected him president, and through his active and energetic leadership the "year" has made a record unparalleled in the history of the college.

WILLIAM EDWARD GOUGH.

"DADDY" first made his appearance with the Class of '13, and immediately took an active part in Class affairs. In this way he has proved himself to be a capable man when placed under adverse conditions (tracheotomy tube). Being a man of exceptional originality and good "horse sense," we predict for him a prosperous future.

JARDINE ALEXANDER HAFELE.

"FAT" was born in New York State in 1888. He received his preliminary education in Delaware Academy, Delhi, N.Y. He commenced studies at the O.V.C. in 1910. He was one of the live ones of the '13 Class, always ready for a scrap or a friendly tussle, for which his 190 pounds stood him in good stead. Everyone knew him as "Fat," and in any of the college activities "Fat's" smiling face was always in evidence.

JOHN EDWARD HANNA.

"EDDIE" was born in Rosemont, Ont., in 1889. He, with his brother, conducted a general store there for a number of years, coming to Toronto in 1910 to commence studies at the O.V.C. "Ed" was a jolly good fellow, popular not only with his own year, but with members of the other classes. His popularity did not rest only in his good fellowship, for "Ed." was a brilliant student as well.

GEOFF HOBSON.

"Docendo desumus."

RECEIVED his early education at Wellington College, England. After wandering the globe for several years, finally settled down in Manitoba. There are not many places in Western Canada in which Geoff has not made himself known. In 1910 he took the notion and came to the O.V.C., where he proved himself an efficient student in every way. We all wish him every success in his chosen profession.

GEORGE HOEY.

"For he's a jolly good fellow."

BORN Honeywood, Ont. It was a difficult task for his parents to keep Geo. at home, longing to see the world. He holds the distinction of possessing more knowledge of all the minor professions than any man living, but, never contented, he always left his employer "between two days." A thorough sport, fleet-footed, a contender for the "Hall of Fame" with his humorous saying. To know him better is to meet him.

AMOS EUGENE HOLLISTER.

"He who is born great, is great
He of humble birth and becomes great, is greater"

EUGENE made his debut January 27th, 1889, in Montrose, Penn. He received his education at Montrose, where he lived till coming to the O.V.C. in 1910. He is of a reticent nature, and only those best acquainted with him know his ability. During his college years he has made many friends, both in college and out of ALEXANDER HUGHES.

"SANDY" first made his appearance felt in the town of Barrie, Ont., in the late eighties, where he received his early education. After working on the dear old farm, he decided to complete his education by joining the Class of '13 at the Ontario Veterinary College. Being an admirer of the fair sex, he fell the victim to a dark-eyed beauty and married her during his student days. We feel sure that nothing but success can come to him now

ROBERT HUNTER.

"You'll all agree with me, and the devil,
That money alone is the root of all evil.
In buying, selling, or giving of boot,
Just give me a chance and I'll take the root"

"Bob" succeeded in persuading the stork to drop him on a cosy little farm near Balmoral, Man., one cold winter's day in the early eighties. He grew up and received his education in the Good Hope Public School, later entering the O.V.C.

HERMAN TELFER HYSLOP.

"Canny wee laddie."

Born in Smith's Falls, Ont. The get-rich-quick craze moved him westward, where he "hacked" it for several years. This laborious life was too strenuous for "Herm." so he hit the blazed trail homeward, and entered Faculty, O.V.C. "Ah! this is living!" was his first remark, and his winning smile meant contentment. We sincerely hope he will accomplish the above desire.

RONNY REESE LAUGHLIN.

"The good die young
Here's hoping he might live to a good old age"

Laughlin was born at Chippewa Lake, Medina Co., Ohio. His early vocation was an engineer's, but his love for "solipeds" was too tempting, so he decided to come to the O.V.C. By perseverance he accomplished this most envious degree, V.S. Besides being a good student, Laughlin was always ready to lend his assistance in promoting sociability and goodwill among his fellow students.

JOSEPH HENRY LAURIE.

"Nature made him as he is and ne'er another like him"

On the banks of the Willcott sprang forth a red-headed sapling, who received the name "Joe." In after years he went to school, and for the tricks he had in mind he often felt the teacher's rule. He later came to the Veterinary College, where he proved his capability to learn why the "Ontogeny recapitulates the Phylogeny."

SAMUEL THOMAS LAW.

"Ah, Tam! ah, Tam! thou'll get thy fairin'!
The deil will roast thee like a herrin'!"

Born at Rawdon, Quebec, he was raised at the plough. This accounts for Tom's brawny stature. Graduating from Sawyerville Academy, he used good judgment in deciding to join '13 and become a "Medicine Man." He has made a success of stock-raising and is a horseman of no mean ability, having raised horses of the famous "Morgan and St. Lawrence strain."

JOHN AUBREY LEADBEATER.

"He loved the ladies, not a few."

Known around the O.V.C. as "Jack"; is a western boy, born at Cypress River, Manitoba, but now calls Pelly, Sask., his home. Commenced his studies at the Ontario Veterinary College in 1910, and by hard work has made a name for himself as a student. We feel sure that his future career will be marked with the same success.

CHESTER CHARLES MacLEAN.

"For nature made him as he is,
And never made another."

In all his qualities of soul and body "Mac" is most decidedly a good fellow, in the fullest sense of the word. He received his elementary education at Beachburg, Ont., and then proceeded for higher at the Ontario Veterinary College, and "he has certainly made off with the goods alright." "Mac" is assured of success wherever he may pursue his professional career.

MORTIMER OSCAR MARSH.

"The force of his own merits makes his way."

"Marsh" hails from the "Isle" of spring, Jamaica, B.W.I. Matriculating from St. George's College, Kingston, he entered the O.V.C. in 1910. Marsh was a stayer, and on the cinder path he never failed to uphold his Class honours. His popularity was not confined only to his athletic achievements, as he was a good student. Our prognosis for his future is most favourable.

J. RALPH MORIN.

"All in all he's a problem to puzzle the devil"

From Holyoke, Mass., and, after years of travel from coast to coast, he finally entered Williston Seminary at East Hampton, Mass. Then put in one year at Colgate University. Being a lover of fast horses and dogs, he eventually waded his way to the O.V.C. He hopes to be able to alleviate his domesticated animal friends from their series of troubles and illnesses.

ALEXANDER GUSTAVUS MURRAY.

"Mighty are the men of strength."

"Gus." was born, raised, and educated at Woodstock, Ontario. Having a fondness for the "equine," he has taken up the veterinary profession. Honoured with the position as president of "Science Association," he was always a favourite. He loved to sing his favourite song, "Down by the Weeping Willow." "Gus." carried with him an impressive smile, which brightened up the lecture room. "Don't forget the soap, Gus."

ALEXANDER WHITNEY McCASKILL.

"When we meet him out we call him 'Mac.'"

"Mac" was born of true Scotch parents, but himself is a typical Manitoban, well shown by his industrious and pleasant disposition. He received his preliminary education at Clear Springs, Manitoba, later taking a two-year course at the Winnipeg Business College, whence he hailed to take up Veterinary Science. By his honorary graduation we anticipate "Mac" a prosperous professional career.

WESLEY DEER McCOY.

"To improve the world, begin by improving yourself"

"Mac" comes to us from the State of Michigan. Having early learned to love the cow, horse and dog, decided to make a special study of them. So in the fall of 1910 we met him, with the rest of the green "freshies," applying for entrance at the O.V.C. Since he has been with the Class of '13 he has proved himself a capable, energetic student.

GEORGE JACOB McDONALD.

"His merits do not have to be seen to be appreciated."

Commonly known as "Mac" from the time of his birth, February 15th, 1884, when he first declared his independence at Brechin, Ont. He has established a sale repository in his home town and is studying the Veterinary Science, to be thoroughly equipped in the choice of his profession. A place at the top of the profession is the place where we will see "Geordie."

HARVEY ROSS McEWEN.

"Away, away, these men of rules,
I'm through with them and through with schools.
They'd make me learn, they'd make me think,
But they'd also make me love a drink"

H. R. McEwen was first heard of, also, from a farm near Stonewall, Manitoba. He not only came uninvited, but decided to stick. Such being the case, there was nothing for it but to send him to school. We predict for him a bright future.

CHARLES WILLIAM McINTOSH.

"Time is well spent if it but increases a desire for greater knowledge."

"Mac" made his advent into the world at Freetown, P.E.I. Here he received his early education, later attending high school at Stanley Bridge. He, being of a mechanical turn of mind, decided to become a tradesman, choosing that of a blacksmith. After serving his apprenticeship, he started West, locating in Togo, Sask. Then he discarded the hammer and apron to become a student at the O.V.C. "Mac" works at white heat and is in the front rank at examination time.

JOHN WILLIAM McKAY.

"From Jorra farms they will roam,
From where there came no greater men"

"Mac" was born in 1888, near Braemar, Ont., where he received his early education. Being inclined to roam, he went to the West when but a youth, where he resided until entering the O.V.C. in 1910.

GORDON PERLYN McKENZIE.

GORDON PERLYN was born April 21st, 1888, near Lakeside, Oxford County, Ontario. Was raised on "Pure products of the farm," under the care of his parents and the village parson and schoolmaster. He has thereby developed into a "Made in Canada" brand of man, physically, morally and mentally. In 1908, after finishing his preliminary education, he sought his fortune in the Golden West. In 1910 he became a freshman and graduates in 1913. Success and happiness, Gordon.

MURDOCH McLEOD.

"The best is yet to be."

"MAC" was first heard in P.E.I. in the early '80's. During his tender years moved to Virden, Manitoba, and made his first appearance at the O.V.C. with the Class of 1913. He was soon recognized as an able athlete, and displayed his merits in football and tug-of-war. Always ready for a friendly tussle, piling up the college furniture, and lending a helping hand. We all wish him success and prosperity

JOHN JOSEPH NAUGHTON.

"'Tis the little things that count, unnoticeable"

"JACK" was born and raised in the well-known city of Scranton, Pa. He received his preliminary education at St. Mary's Academy of that place, and undoubtedly leaves a good impression of the land of coal and correspondence schools He entered the O.V.C. in 1910. "Jack" will he remembered as always lighting up the lecture-room with a smile and unlimited wit. He is bound to he a success.

HOWARD McCLURE NEDEAU.

LEFT his happy home in Harmonsburg, Pa., for three years' grief at the O.V.C. His claims to fame are: the winning of centre position on the basket-ball team and a unique ability to take the entire course of lectures in a single note-book. His quick wit and unlimited nerve will, no doubt, be invaluable to him as a practitioner.

GEORGE ANDREW NICHOL.

FIRST made his wants known in Medicine Hat, Alberta. Later he distinguished himself as a competent rough-rider by winning fourth position in the "United West Stampede" at Calgary. His stern expression is very deceiving, because he is overflowing with "Old Nick." But let me warn you, touch not his floating ribs or Biff! bang! he's off again.

Fair-haired "Nick," with mighty hand.
A streak! a flash! and then a roar,
Our raw-hone cowboy is on the floor.

ERNEST WINFIELD PACKARD.

"A veritable dynamo."

IN 1888 the lusty lungs of "Fussy-Wuz" were first exercised in Broeton, Mass., wherein he spent his early days. Guelph announced his arrival in '08 at the O.A.C. There he spent two years, and was soon known as "the curly-headed boy." On entering the O.V C. he was at once recognized as one among the leading exponents of the strenuous life. You will always see him in the forefront of his profession.

WILLIAM HUNTER PERRY.

"His heart was in his work"

WORK is his motto, but when merriment is in the air he takes a deep inspiration. "Bill" was born in Troupsburg, N.Y., in the year 1890. Talk of his pets of the farm and you will know how his time was spent. His desire for a higher education led him into Canesto High School. We met him in 1910. Must we part in 1913?

JOHN ROBERT POUNDER.

"Ah! Why should life all labour be?"

"JACK" drew his first inspiration at Forester's Falls, Ont., in 1892. In that quiet little village "Jack" grew up, spending his time in attending high school and caring for his pets until we met him in 1910. Just so sure as his progress bas been with us, so will it be in his life's work, is the wish of us all.

FRANK S. RHODY.

"Quality, not quantity."

BORN and educated in Ridgetown, Ontario, of a quiet nature, and, when he ventures to speak, always says something that carries a sound meaning. Frank's good nature is well marked by the "smile that won't come off." He also holds four college records—namely, first to rise, first to retire, and never missed a meal or a lecture during his college career. A good penman, sincere correspondent, fond of his profession, and bound to be a success.

JOHN LYNNHURST RICH.

RICH honoured Brookbury, P.Q., by making it his birthplace. He received his early education in his native town, later attending high school at Bishop's Crossing. After leaving high school, he returned to the old homestead, where he soon became the proud possessor of a fine Holstein herd. Desiring a greater knowledge of animal husbandry and wholly without superstition, became a member of Class 13, Ontario Veterinary College. May he be "Rich" not in name only.

FAY FRANKLIN RUSSELL.

CAME to this University from Orford, N.H., said town not yet having fully recovered from the loss. Graduated from the New Hampton Literary Institute, Class of '09. Fay is chiefly remarkable for a profound knowledge of anthrax and his ability as a post-mortem demonstrator. The domestic animals of his locality have our sincere sympathy.

VINCENT MOYER RUTH.

"I was born in Pennsylvania, in the greatest, grandest state,
In the keystone of the Union, best of all the forty-eight."

IN the spring of 1885 there was ushered into this world, without a sound of jubilee, a young man who, from childhood, had inclinations towards the veterinary profession. Though he wandered into the "mysteries" of the bread-shop, after accumulating sufficient wealth from the "kneading" business, he cast his lot with the veterinary profession.

VERNAL EARL SALISBURY.

"A man is judged by his foresight."

IN 1882, way over in Brunswick, Ohio, "Sally" first viewed the world of man. He received the usual amount of knowledge dispensed at the public and high schools, and was not slow to put this knowledge to use. He did not wish to "Quack It," so he entered veterinary work in 1910 as a "freshy." "State Boards," for or against them, is "Sally's" idea; with what success we hope to learn some day.

WILLIAM SEYMOUR.

"A man of deep thought is a man of few words"

"BILL" was born at Sandy Lake, Sask., in 1891. His love for animals led him into his chosen profession. He always stays by his patients until the last, and, if they are called to the happy hunting ground, "Bill" will tell you what their dying message was. We all wish him success wherever he hangs his shingle.

WILLIAM GARFIELD SHARPE.

"This is my busy day"

"BILL" was born and raised in Manitoba, but received his preliminary education at Medicine Hat, Alta. Full of energy and fond of excitement, he landed in Toronto with a "hockey stick," "cornet," and "grip," after spending three years on "the Range" of Minnesota, where be could be seen, during the winter months, with the aforementioned combination. Bright of intellect and ever witty, "Bill" is always a favourite. 'Nough said.

WALTER GROVER SHIELDS.

"Therefore I say unto you"

THAT Walter G. Shields was born in Brampton on a sunshiny day is a fact that no one can deny, the sunshiny day being taken for granted upon becoming acquainted with the individual in question. Among his many experiences since entering college, he will always remember hospital life, and, in spite of the fact that he was very sick, he was able to finish with the bunch in the spring.

HARRY SINCLAIR.

"In greatness is power."

THE Hoosier State lays claim to the birthplace of "Sinny," and Atlanta is the lucky little city. He began life in 1892 and received the usual education, and, as his father aspired to have a successor in his profession, Harry was granted a high school certificate. He is "large for his size," and if size and "colour" amount to anything, we can expect great things from our friend.

JOHN FREDERICK SKINNER.

"To please and be pleased."

BORN at Ilderton, Ont., raised and educated at Roland, Man., he is a typical Westerner. "Fred" finally decided that, although harvesting was a good paying proposition, it did not keep him busy enough during the entire year, so he selected the Veterinary Science for a profession, and blew in on the Western Limited with his cornet and handbag. He has held for three years the honorary position of secretary-treasurer. Ever willing to assist in music—also collecting our hard-earned dollars—leave him fondly in our memories.

TREVELYN ELTSON SLEETH.

"A horse! a horse! My kingdom for a horse!"

"SLITS" first added his melodious voice to that of the mighty throng in Toronto in the year 1890. At a tender age he was taken to Vancouver, B.C., where he received his education. In early manhood his great love of animals, and especially of "The Perfect Horse," led to his enrolment at the O.V.C. May his long legs and high action carry him far on the road to success.

WILLIAM FRAZER RUTLEDGE STUBBS.

"All great men are small."

SIR RUTLEDGE was born in Caledon, Ont., where he is better known as "Buck." He managed to extract a few more "Buck($)" from the O.V.C. by winning the "Smith's Scholarship" in his freshman year. But, lo! he made a sad mistake. He should have been a singer. His melodious tenor tones(?) so aroused the sympathetic hearts of his room-mates that, with bandaged ears, they left him quietly alone.

LAWRENCE HURD SWAIL.

"He was a six-foot man, all clear grit and human nature."

"LORNE" first demonstrated his musical talent near Sawyerville, Quebec, in July, 1890. Educated at Randboro Public School and later at Sawyerville Academy. Joined 1910 Class, and is a promising student at the Ontario Veterinary College. That he should have selected Veterinary Science as his life's work is but another tribute to his soundness of judgment and ability to pick out a soft spot.

WILLIAM WALLACE SYMINGTON.

"Everything comes to him who waits."

CAME to Toronto from Lipton, Sask., after undergoing the hardships of proving-up on a homestead. "Lyn" is noted chiefly for common-sense ideas, a growing family, and whiskers. During his college career he has made many friends, and, judging from his ability as a student, he bids fair to be very successful in the profession.

HOWARD ADRIAN TAYLOR.

"What is to be will be."

HOWARD first smiled upon mother earth December 28, 1887, near Hensel, North Dakota. In 1897 he moved to Carman, Man., where he was educated, and is now completing a course at O.V.C. The puzzle of his life has been, "Why man was created?" but, now that he is here, is making the best of it and keeps on smiling.

JOHN THOMAS THOMPSON.

"He that seeks shall surely find."

KNOWN among the boys as "Post-grad. Tommy." After graduating from this college in '08, when the two-year course was in force, he finally decided that, to keep up with the times of the progressive Western Canada, another term would do him a world of good. He reminded us of the "Iron Duke," with his waxed moustache, and was easily distinguished on account of his muscular physique.

Blest Be the Tide that Binds.

CARL GUSTAVE VOLLMER.

"He was a worker—wise, strenuous, ejective"

THE subject of our sketch was born in Wauseon, Ohio, in 1885, where he received his early education. He graduated from the O.V.C. in 1908, after which he practiced until the autumn of '12, when he joined us to receive the latest advancements in Veterinary Science. It was observed that he spent much of his time at the dissecting room.

JOHN HENRY WESTFALL.

"A gentleman in whom I built an absolute trust."

A PRODUCT from the farm, born in Caroline, N.Y., A.D. 1885. "Jack" was reared among the domesticated animals, caring for them during a greater part of his early life. Feeling that tilling the soil was not his best adaptation, he prepared himself for higher education in the Candor High School. "Jack" has been a favourite with us, and we wish him all good success.

CECIL EDGAR WOLFE.

"Even the little are mighty."

CECIL first saw light-o'-day during the year 1891, in Durham, Ontario, receiving his preliminary education and matriculation in that town. Fair of complexion, dauntless at heart, quick to comprehend, and ever ready with "unlimited wit," making the combination of "Wolfe Durham" never to be forgotten. He is no relation to the other Durham, but is there when it comes to such ones as Lerator Labii Superioris Ataeque Nasi.

JOHN FREDERICK WOOD.

"Do it now, time is money."

RAISED and educated in the forest city, London, Ont., "Jack" carries with him an industrious appearance. For two years president of our Class. His curly hair, keeping in time with his fingers "tickling the ivories," as instigator of our college orchestra, he will not soon be forgotten. "Jack's" countenance indicates "go ahead"—nothing is too hard when we try. Get ahead of him and you will have to go some.

FRED WILLIAM WYLLIE.

"FRED" first made himself heard in Bowmanville, Ont., in the late eighties. Later he removed to Attica, N.Y., and attended high school. In Attica he was greatly interested in the famous stable of Frederick C. Stevens, who owns some of the best Hackneys in the world. Then he joined the O.V.C. in 1910, and since his arrival has made everybody a friend. We all wish him and his Hackney friends the best of blue ribbons and sweepstakes.

FRANK ALOYSIUS YOUNG.

"A man of action, not words."

"YOUNGIE" first entered the earthly sphere about 1888 in the proverbial log cabin near New Washington, Ohio. He was sent to school when not useful at home, which was early enough. Wielded the birch rod for a number of years, but eventually decided to be a "Vet." One year in Columbus, Ohio, O.S.U. convinced him that a change was as good as a rest. Eventually he entered the O.V.C. with '13.

ALAN WILSON YOUNGHUSBAND.

"Work and win."

"HUBBY" or "Newly-wed," as he is familiarly known in college life, first cried for certified milk at South March, Ont. His elementary education was received at South March Academy, and later he graduated from the Ottawa Business College, 1907. "Hubby" joined the 1910 Class, and by conscientious "plugging" has managed to keep on the top of the ladder. Anatomy seems to be "Hubby's" favourite, and, no doubt, we will hear from him later.

The Women's Undergraduate Association

THIS Association is the consummation of many efforts in the past towards greater unity among the women students of University College. Its organization includes all the women registered in the college. All are responsible for the initiation and execution of measures of government adopted, while a small committee of representative students serve in an executive capacity. Although the Association has been organized only this year, much has already been accomplished. The furnishing of a Rest Room and the serving of tea there every week has done much to bring the students into touch with one another, to foster loyalty and willingness to co-operate for the common good. It is hoped that the little that has already been accomplished is only an earnest of a spirit which will permeate college life in future.

The Anglican Women's Club of the University of Toronto

THE Anglican Women's Club is now in its fifth year of activity in the University of Toronto, and its influence is shown both in the increased membership and in practical work.

The club is affiliated with the Church of England Deaconess' Home, and the sewing at which the members have been busy during the Michaelmas term has been for the benefit of the poor cared for by that institution.

The regular meetings of the organization are held once a month at the University, and at these there is usually an address given by some prominent speaker.

Mrs. Griffith Thomas, the Honorary President, is very kindly "at home" for the members at her home every fourth Thursday of the month.

The organization is noticeably growing stronger each year, and is not an inefficient means of keeping the Anglican students in touch with one another.

QUEEN'S HALL

THE SENIORS' GRIND

Is this poetry? Goodness knows
We cannot tell this tale in prose.

(Here the metre changes to suit the subject.)

"What though the hour be late, the coffee's strong.
Come, my Lucrezia: What! is that the gong?
No, child, you're dreaming; 'tis but just struck twelve.
Another hour we have to grind and delve
At Beowulf or Faust, ere Nature's sweet restorer can knit up
Our ravelled sleeves. Another crumpet, dear?
'Tis but the sixth. To-morrow how you shall be glad for this.
What now, a quarter past? Don't count the time lost, neither—
What's college for but deep and long discussions
Of Fate and Ethics and platonic love,
Predestination, and the pros and cons of Equal Suffrage?
You say you must be going? What, my love, 'tis dark
Between the Annex and the Hall—but fare thee well.
Conscience doth call you. Go, my love. 'Tis well.
Hast had thy fortune told? 'Tis wonderful, they say,
How well she hits the mark and tells of—
Well, but back to work; 'tis half-past twelve.
Where is your boudoir cap? A thing of beauty is a joy
Forever,—Why not wear it, then?
The Head Girl does not wear one? Never mind.
The Proctors well affect them. What d'you say?
You've finished forty pages! Oh, you shark!
Your reach exceeds my grasp.
How goes the time? Is this a stable "Y"?
She thinks Othello was a lightish tan
Or only sunburnt. Ha! a rat! a rat! 'Tis but the Proctor.
Sh! Did ye not hear it? Tell her we're working. Sh!
Oh, is it thou? How went the dance?
You're quite ten minutes late—another fine.
Was Algernon on deck? Or was it the the—Atre you attended? Was the "Merry Countess" good?
She's made another daffydil just now?
Can such things be? 'A pun's the lowest form of wit.'
But Shakespeare did it. Well, to bed—to bed.
What, must I put you out? No one but us is stirring,
Save that famed classic muse which makes the hair grow.
Farewell—farewell—we'll meet again at breakfast."

The clock strikes one—the meeting is dispersed.
Soft footfalls echo through the darkened hallways.
Then all is dark and silent.

(With apologies to Browning—and several others)

University College Women's Literary Society, 1912-13

THE Women's Literary Society has met with unparalleled success during the past year. The unabated enthusiasm and good attendance have shown that the optimism concerning the welfare of the Society felt in the beginning of the year has been in every way justified.

The first meeting of the Society, which took the form of an Autumn Tea, was held on the twelfth of October. Over three hundred and fifty were present—undergraduates, gradnates, and wives of the Faculty. Mrs. Falconer was the guest of honour; Mrs. Henderson discharged the duties of toast-mistress; Mrs. Cameron and Miss Lawlor responded to the toasts of "The Wives of the Faculty" and "The Alumnæ."

The regular meetings have been exceptionally good and well-attended. During the Christmas term the Society felt particularly privileged in hearing a very interesting address by Professor Alexander on "Jane Austen." With humorous readings from the same book, Professor Simpson, of Trinity College, entertained the Society most agreeably on another occasion. Two other meetings were devoted to inter-year debates. The first and third years debated on the subject, "Resolved, that it is better to be a freshie than a senior;" the first and fourth on, "Resolved, that modern dress needs radical reform."

The meetings during the Easter term were of pleasing variety. At one meeting Miss Lawlor gave a very interesting address. At a subsequent date Mrs. Leathes spoke on the economic conditions in England. As usual, the Alumnæ were responsible for one meeting's programme. The Open Meeting took the form of an Oratorical Contest, which the Society hopes to make an annual event.

The Society has just concluded one of the most successful years in its history. Great interest has been shown by the graduates, whose frequent attendance has been much appreciated. We who look back on such a bright year in the past trust that it may prove a happy augury for the future.

University College Young Women's Christian Association

THE Young Women's Christian Association in University College aims to help every woman student to live a strong, influential, Christian life during college days, and to learn how to be, in future, of greater usefulness in the extension of the Kingdom of God in the world.

Its weekly meetings are devotional, and frequently missionary in character. Such speakers as Mrs. Poulin, of India; Miss Harvey; Miss Dorothy Kilpatrick, Inter-collegiate Secretary; President Falconer, Professor Davidson, and Mr. J. Lovell Murray, have given valuable and much appreciated assistance.

Bible and Mission Study groups are in progress under student leadership. The Mission Study courses embrace all subjects of current interest, and a Social Study Class, led by Miss Harvey, has been a successful innovation. Normal classes under prominent and efficient leaders have been a great aid in these departments.

A large number of enthusiastic helpers has been enlisted for Extension Work. In connection with Hayter Street Mission and Central Neighbourhood House, each gives an hour or more a week to visiting "shut-ins," distributing flowers, or assisting with gymnasium work, games, or sewing classes. A live interest in the activities of the City Association is also beginning to take tangible form.

The financial returns have been in proportion to the demands made. The missionary givings go towards the support of Miss MacDonald, Canada's able Y.W.C.A. secretary in Tokio, Japan. Miss MacDonald is a graduate of University College.

The Elgin House Conference of 1912 had its characteristic stimulating effect, as had also the Peterborough Conference held during the college year. The delegates have returned with a deepened desire to further the glorious cause which shall win their university, their country, the whole world, for the Prince of Peace.

1T3 Discussion Club

ON November 20, 1911, the girls of 1913, under the direction of Miss W. Harvey, M.A., organized a Discussion Club, the size of which necessitated its being divided into two sections. The object of the Club was to discuss matters of current interest, socially and politically.

The wives of the Faculty usually entertained the Clubs at their bi-weekly meetings, and the girls feel that they have greatly profited by the associations as well as the discussions.

Owing to the untiring efforts of Miss Harvey, the interest in the Club has greatly increased, as shown by the large membership this year.

Annesley Hall

NEARLY fifteen years have elapsed since the late Hart A. Massey bequeathed to the Board of Regents of Victoria University the handsome sum of $50,000 to erect a residence for the women attending Victoria College. Further subscriptions were obtained, and when the land in Queen's Park, behind Victoria College, became available, it was selected and bought as the most suitable place for the intended building. The gift first bequeathed has been generously supplemented by the executors of the Massey Estate, and many other liberal friends have contributed to the furnishings. On October 1st, 1903, the Hall was completed and was opened to receive its students. The cost of the building was approximately $70,000, and the expense of furnishing was undertaken by the Victoria Women's Residence and Educational Association under the leadership of the late Mrs. Geo. A. Cox. The matter was laid before the Methodist Churches of the Dominion, from which many sympathetic responses were received. The Association, however, will always be especially indebted to friends in Toronto, who furnished all the rooms on the ground floor. The officers are appointed by the Board of Regents of Victoria College.

Special attention is paid to physical training, for which fine provision has been made. There is a well-equipped, spacious gymnasium, where the best of instruction is given. Every student is examined each year by a physician and is assigned the kind of exercise she needs. In case of illness, students are removed to a bright infirmary ward, where there is found complete isolation.

Annesley Hall accommodates fifty-eight students. With the increasing number of women students at Victoria, the applications for residence so far exceeded its capacity that a second house, now called South Hall, was opened in September, 1906. It had formerly been a private residence situated on the south-west corner of Victoria College grounds. This year every room is occupied, and thus Victoria College is enabled to offer the privilege of residence to about eighty students, most of whom are full undergraduates of the College.

Annesley Hall is a well-ordered institution, where the needs and rights of the whole household must be considered and respected by each individual. During the last nine years four hundred women students have made it their home.

ANNESLEY HALL

Victoria College Women's Literary Society

"WE believe in the Lit." With this inspiring slogan the Membership Committee of the Victoria College Women's Literary Society began its enthusiastic campaign, as a result of which they succeeded in obtaining in one week the largest membership the Society has ever had.

The meetings have been especially interesting this year, through a fundamental change in the constitution, by which the Society assumed parliamentary form, and the business was carried on by a Government, kept assiduously to its duty by a vigorous Opposition. The splendid interest taken in discussions and debates on live topics, and the ever-increasing attendances in the House, amply justified the innovation.

Very interesting and instructive were the literary parts of the programmes. Illuminating addresses were given on various topics; the Alumnæ of Victoria College contributed their much appreciated share in the meetings by providing one programme; the inter-year debates were characterized by the customary enthusiasm and class spirit, while the Open Meeting added the spice of merriment to wisdom.

One of the purposes of the Literary Society is to promote the social element in college life. At the beginning of the year an informal reception was given for the purpose of becoming acquainted with the new girls. A little later the Women's Literary Society joined the Union Literary Society in giving a formal reception to all the students of the college. The last social event was on Senior Day, when the seniors let their advisory cloaks and their benediction fall on their successors, and bade formal farewell to the Victoria College Women's Literary Society, to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne."

Victoria College Y.W.C.A.

THE Young Women's Christian Association continues to hold its own place in the hearts of the girls of Victoria College. The society has aimed very especially to strengthen and deepen the spiritual life of every girl and to help her to give some adequate expression to the best impulses of her nature. As a natural result of the stimulation of our loyalty to Jesus Christ, the interest in the work of extending His kingdom has been quite noticeably increased. Mission study classes were carried on with efficiency, and a liberal contribution to the support of our secretaries in China, Japan and India was joyfully given. Nor were the needs of our own country and city overlooked. A very lively interest was shown in the work and lectures carried on by the Social Service Department. A large number of girls gave up time each week to teaching in the city missions, and the influence of their unselfish devotion has shown itself not only in increasing beauty of character for themselves, but in a general willingness to serve manifested by the Association as a whole.

The Bible Study Department, too, has been one of great helpfulness.

A small library of books on missionary and devotional subjects was given to the Association by the friends and classmates of the deeply lamented Lydia E. Trimble, who served the Association as its President with such untiring zeal during the year 1911-12. The memory of her sweet Christian life will linger long in the hearts of many.

The retiring Cabinet resigns its duties with a deep sense of thankfulness for the high privilege of having been permitted to share in this work of faith and labour of love, and predicts for the Association in Victoria a future of great promise.

Victoria College Ladies' Athletic Club

THE Victoria College Athletic Club was organized some ten years ago to meet the demand made by the increasing interest in athletics of the Victoria women for a central society to take the place of the various clubs devoted to a single branch of sport. One of the first steps of the new organization was to join with the sister clubs of University College and St. Hilda's in forming a league for the promotion of inter-college competition in tennis, basket-ball, and ice-hockey. This year the league has been enlarged by the admission of a fourth club, that of the women of the Faculty of Education. This will add greatly to the interest of the series, as we shall have in our new opponents several of our former colleagues.

The increase in membership of our club during the last few years has made possible the development of inter-year contests. This series enables a greater number to enjoy and profit by the friendly rivalry of a keenly-contested game, without spending in practice an undue amount of the time which increasing demands are rapidly rendering very precious. Last year this movement was encouraged by the donation of a trophy for basket-ball, and this year it received a further impetus by the presentation of a cup for ice-hockey by the women of the graduating class of 1912, who had the honour of holding the championship throughout their course.

For the further encouragement of athletics, the club last year designed a shield which it presents to all players on first and on inter-year championship teams, and which it permits only such players to wear.

The aim of the club is to give to every woman in Victoria an opportunity to enjoy healthful recreation, and at the same time to acquire the play-spirit, which is not unduly elated by success, takes defeat lightly, and is always optimistic. Thus, although of late our players have many times returned without the laurel wreath, yet we feel that our organization is fulfilling its purpose and is a success.

Saint Hilda's College

JUST a quarter of a century has elapsed since the first faint beginnings of the now flourishing Saint Hilda's. It was in 1888 that Trinity first condescended to open its gates to the eternal feminine. Two solitary, but undaunted maidens were installed in a house on Shaw St., under the protection of Miss Patteson. The number increased very gradually at first, and when the present building was completed there were only ten waiting to take up their abode within its ample walls. Although the smallness of the increase may have caused anxiety to the founder, yet "'tis an ill wind that bloweth no one good," and the Saint Hildians of those days must have had whole suites of apartments at their disposal and other creature comforts that we of to-day know not of. This golden era, however, was soon to pass, and so many ladies came flocking in from all points of the compass that Saint Hilda's actually began to overflow, and finally the lodge was opened as a haven to the freshies. The combined efforts of Saint Hilda's and the lodge were found insufficient to dispose of all the freshies who came pouring in in the glorious year of 1911, and yet another residence was opened on Crawford St. A year has elapsed since the last development and Saint Hilda's is again settled in the even tenor of her way. Her peace, however, is soon to be disturbed by a far more sweeping change than any that has yet been effected, for the old order is about to change and we are to have a brand new Saint Hilda's to match the brand new Trinity soon to be built on University Square, and when we come back some three or four years hence to visit our Alma Mater we will be doomed to ask in vain for the Saint Hilda's of yesterday.

There are at present about fifty-three girls in residence and not more than half a dozen non-resident. Though the smallest college numerically, we manage to make our existence noteworthy. We are redoubtable champions in the world of athletics, holding, at present, two out of three of the inter-collegiate cups, and disputing with University College the possession of the paper-chase shield. We have also succeeded in fostering some speakers of remarkable brilliancy to uphold our honour in debating. The excellency of our "Chronicle," of course, speaks for itself, and anyone who has ever attended our Lit. will agree that it can be spoken of in no other terms than "a feast of reason and a flow of soul." There are other more secretive institutions, such as Episkopon, into whose dark mysteries we will not probe here. Suffice it to say that Saint Hilda's upholds them one and all and will never allow even the least of them to pass into nothingness. Let us hope that the new Saint Hilda's will carry away at least old traditions, under which she may partially conceal her exceeding freshness and unmellowed youth.

St. Hilda's Literary Society

THE St. Hilda's Literary Society has ever been upheld as one of the most important of our College institutions. Its original aim was to instruct as likewise to amuse, and with this in view the programmes have been successfully planned. With the continually increasing number of students is aroused a keener interest and a more enthusiastic year spirit for the inter-year debates. One of the meetings to which all members eagerly look forward is the "Open Lit.," for upon this day the dramatic stars of St. Hilda's are afforded an excellent opportunity of displaying their theatrical talent.

The meetings of the past year met with unprecedented success and are continuing this year with the usual interest and good attendance. Aided by the graduates who so kindly render their services as judges, the debates prove an important feature of the society. The "Freshie" debate upon the "Preservation of Niagara Falls" proved to be most interesting as well as unusually amusing. Another attractive number this year was a charming little dialogue between "Socrates and his wife Xanthippe," which called forth great commendation from all members.

Looking back upon the progress made by the society during the past years, we trust and feel assured that the energy and enthusiasm of its members will continue to increase in future years.

Athletics

OUR Athletics! They are still our joy and pride. 1912 saw us again victorious in basket-ball. We have won the cup the two years that it has been played for, and there is none but the tiniest cloud on our horizon for this year.

The Tennis team did better than ever, winning seven points to the victorious team's nine. This was particularly gratifying, as we had four new players, and certainly argues well for next year.

The Hockey was carried forward with such enthusiasm that we lost never a game. This is the second time we have won this hotly contested and ardently coveted hockey-cup. Why shouldn't we do so this season, and have it as a permanent addition to our silver plate in the common room?

"St. Hilda's Chronicle"

"ST. HILDA'S CHRONICLE" is a magazine conducted by the undergraduates of St. Hilda's College, with the double purpose of discovering the embryo literary genius that may chance to have entered her precincts, and of voicing the opinion of her members in general on topics of either local or universal interest. How far it is successful in these aims it would be difficult to say. Budding genius is often over modest, and requires violent efforts on the part of editors to bring it before the public eye; it has to be told, frequently and firmly, that it was not "born to blush unseen." As for opinions, they do not seem to be as thick as blackberries, and usually can only be had upon compulsion. Nevertheless, by dint of unwearied efforts, the editors succeed in bringing out three numbers of the magazine during the year, and it can at least be said that its existence affords an excellent opportunity for the cultivation of these estimable virtues—patience, perseverance, and optimism—on the part of those who undertake its management.

Financially, this year it is in a flourishing condition, last year's treasurer having left a truly munificent balance for her fortunate successor. It is hoped that this will make possible further developments in the future, and will by no means dampen the ardour of the present business manager in obtaining subscriptions.

The Columbian Club

THE Columbian Club is an organization of all the Catholic male students registered in the University of Toronto. For several years those students attending the various affiliated colleges felt the need of some organization which would bring them together in friendly intercourse and promote intimacy and good-fellowship amongst them. To accomplish this end the Columbian Club was organized in 1911 by the splendid and hearty co-operation of all the Catholic men in the University.

Since its organization the club has each year followed a definite programme. The first regular meeting is held early in the Michaelmas term in the club rooms of St. Michael's College. At this meeting the new members are received into the club and made acquainted with its methods and yearly programme. Those new members coming to the city for the first time are urged to seek from the club any assistance which they may need in adapting themselves to their new surroundings.

At regular intervals during the year meetings are held at which prominent men address the club on various topics. At these meetings a musical programme is also given.

The Columbian Club belongs to the Toronto Catholic Debating Union and takes part each year in a series of debates, in which those members oratorically inclined are given an opportunity to improve their debating powers.

The Columbian Ball held early in the Easter term is one of the leading social events in University student circles. One or two private dances are also held during the year.

Many difficulties arose in the organization and growth of this club, but they were all overcome by the hearty co-operation of its members. The one pressing need still remaining is a club house. This want, too, is due soon to disappear, for many prominent men have become interested in the club and promised it financial assistance.

Considering the success of the club in the past, and observing the intense enthusiasm shown in it at present, one may reasonably predict for it a successful and prosperous future.

THE Chess Club has had another most successful year since the last issue of TORONTONENSIS. The two annual matches against the Toronto Chess Club gave cause for satisfaction, as our club, though it lost the first, won the return match, which with more players participating, was the more representative of the two.

The Classical Association of University College

THE past year has been marked for the Classical Association by the kindly interest and assistance of the members of the Faculty and by a gratifying enthusiasm on the part of the undergraduates. During the session five evening meetings and four afternoon meetings, besides the regular business meeting, have been held. The executive is deeply indebted particularly to Prof. Fletcher, Principal Hutton, Prof. Milner, and Prof. Carruthers, who have entertained the association during the year. The discussion has been wide in range, and the papers throughout of an unusually high standard. Subjects were treated as follows: "The Elder Cato," by Prof. Fletcher; "The Place of Ethics in Greek Life," by H. A. Harrison; "The Character of Alcibiades," by D. H. Stewart; "Aristotle as a Literary Critic," by H. H. Wallace; "Horace's Standards of Criticism," by Miss E. D. Martin; "Theocritus and Pastoral Poetry," by H. V. Wrong; "Something on Plato," by J. H. Pedley; "More's 'Utopia' and the 'Republic of Plato,'" by W. J. Gallagher; "Thucydides as a Literary Artist," by E. D. Hoskin; "Herodotus and His Materials," by R. B. Gibson; "Tiberius," by D. B. Breslove; "Ferrero's 'Women of the Cæsars,'" by Miss J. B. Reade; "Milton and Classical Dramatists," by Miss O. I. Ziegler; and "The Moral Influence of the Greek Drama," by Miss M. I. Taylor.

Architectural Club

IN the second year of its existence the Architectural Club has made such rapid strides that it is now in the van of energetic University bodies. The prime motives of the club are to encourage closer study of architectural art, and to bring the professional body into more intimate touch with the students of the Department of Architecture.

For the furtherance of the latter object Mr. John M. Lyle was elected Honorary President, and with his able advice and assistance the club has completed a very enthusiastic and successful year. At the fortnightly meetings, usually held in a down-town tea room, leading men both in the world of architecture and of fine art gave the students wider and more comprehensive views of both the aesthetic and practical sides of their chosen profession. Numerous lively and entertaining arguments were occasioned by the opinions presented, and the result is an enlarging of the ideas of the department and a broadening of its field of labour.

Besides the instruction from successful architects, the members of the club have been given the opportunity, through its influence, to visit the large buildings which are now in course of erection throughout the province. This in itself is a great advantage to the students, who are thus able to appreciate more fully the constructive possibilities of their problems.

Under the auspices of the Architectural Club an exhibition of student work was held in the Ateliers at the end of the academic year, practicing architects thus having an opportunity of appreciating the work done and being given a higher regard for the department than they had heretofore.

Summing up the year's work the club has unquestionably established itself firmly and has done much good for the students, the department and the profession.

The University of Toronto Electrical Club

THE membership of the Electrical Club is limited to students of the third and fourth years in Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, although the meetings are thrown open to students of all the years.

The object of the club is to give the members an idea of modern practice in the different branches of Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, and also, by discussion of the papers presented, to encourage and develop public speaking.

The speakers during the year have been men of wide experience in their chosen professions, and the papers given were of a high order of merit. The part taken by the members in the discussions showed that the club was accomplishing one of the main objects of its organization.

During the fall and spring terms excursions were arranged to various points of interest, both in the city and neighbouring towns. These trips enabled the students to get a glimpse of the actual working conditions of manufacturing and power companies. One of the most interesting trips was to Niagara Falls, where the different power plants were visited. The excursion was well attended and proved very instructive.

The club is just completing its eighth year, and the continued interest it has enlisted in trying to do its share to meet the needs of the students justifies its existence, and it is safe to say that it will continue to flourish in the future as in the past.

JOURNALISM

Acta Victoriana.

"Much have I seen and known; cities of men
And manners, climates, councils, governments,
Myself not least, but honoured of them all;
* * * *
I am a part of all that I have met."

"ACTA VICTORIANA" has now interpreted to more than a generation of students the ideals with which their alma mater would have them enter life. Acta has been and still is the articulate voice of the College. Through her columns every nationality and every class has spoken, for in Victoria all are represented and Acta recognizes in distinction neither race nor rank. If any man has something to say that is worth the saying she will help him to say it.

But that is not all. From the time when she welcomes the freshman to the day on which she bids the senior farewell she bestows upon all chastisement or encouragement as each seems merited. Be he Chancellor or janitor, theologian or mathematician, the culprit is shown wherein he has erred; and shown not in harsh manner such as arouses resentment, but with a kindliness that induces only contrition. The mirror has merely to be held up and therein his faults are reflected.

On general questions, too, Acta is the sage. Always the judge she is never the partisan, and her power of perception is unimpaired. She has witnessed "councils" and "governments" in transition; in diversity and in unity; and now she smiles benignantly at "Democrats" and "Independents" struggling with a party system when they have not its principles. The boys can do no harm in their own sphere, but Acta in politics would be Acta no longer. Her refusal to be drawn into the party pool has been one of the features of this year. But her wisdom is not to be wondered at, for she combines the experience of tradition with the vigour of youth renewed from year to year.

Nor is her function in one sphere but rather in all. Diverse as are the interests of the College—literary, social, athletic, religious, scientific, musical—she brings them all together, and backs them with a common support. She forms for her wards a bond, not within the academic circle merely, but in the world beyond. She follows them to the ends of the earth; sympathizes with their misfortunes and rejoices in their successes. Much as she may care for the young she can never forget the old. From present and past alike her wish is always to hear.

The outcome is that by all who know her she is honoured and revered. Even her jokes are respected and her editorials read. She may differ from year to year in detail but her fundamental and real function remains the same. This year has been no exception. She has counselled, encouraged, and chastised.

Thus will it continue to be. In the midst of change the essential character and aim of Acta Victoriana remains constant. The aim is to bind.

The "Trinity University Review"

IN 1880 a student paper, known as Rouge et Noir, was founded at Trinity, and immediately became an important factor in the University life. Among the contributors to its columns were such men as Archibald Sampman and Gilbert Parker, the former being editor-in-chief for 1881-82. As the journal increased in importance and circulation, a change of name, owing to rather rakish suggestions, was deemed advisable, and the occasion was utilized for enlarging the size and scope of the publication. From its foundation in 1888, accordingly, the Review has been a thoroughly representative journal of University literature, thought, and events, and, although the constant change in business and editorial control has naturally resulted in a periodical of varied worth and influence, the Review can fairly claim to have been thoroughly representative throughout its career of undergraduate opinion, and has not infrequently been the means of presenting to the authorities important questions from the students' standpoint, as a rule with most desirable result.

Although athletics and the various college organizations are not slighted in the Review, considerable prominence is given to more serious articles of general interest contributed almost entirely by students. The authorities are represented in the "Convocation Notes," and, through Professor Young, who relieves the editors of the exacting "Personal" column, the magazine keeps in exceptionally close touch with the graduates.

For 1912-13 the Review Board consists of Professor Young, its chairman; Mr. H. S. Hayes, who succeeded Mr. P. J. Dykes as business manager in January, and is keeping the financial side in a flourishing condition, and the editors, Messrs. Frank Gahan (editor-in-chief), A. H. Priest, B.A.; E. A. H. Martin, E. H. Religious Organizations

The University of Toronto Christian Association

THE University Christian Association is the religious organization of the University. In it is focused the religious life and activities of the undergraduates. Its purpose is the organizing of the religious life of the University in such a manner that religion may occupy its fitting place in University circles, and the creating of a healthy moral atmosphere. In the performance of its task it asserts its unwavering loyalty to the Master of men.

The Association has for years past laid its greatest stress upon Bible study. The objective is to personally interest men in the teachings and life of Jesus of Galilee. Along with this, in the mission study courses, is an attempt to understand the needs of the non-civilized world and the part Christianity can play in meeting that need. Realizing that one way into the mind of the Master is practical service, the Association has undertaken with some success the enlisting of men in social service in the foreign parts of the city. Besides the enlisting of men for foreign service as student volunteers, an attempt is made to urge men to undertake their vocation with a view to definite Christian service.

Along with the large part played by the Association in interesting students in contributing to the support of the University Settlement, a beginning was made this year towards the support of foreign missionary activity. This will be greatly enlarged in the future.

The largest delegation ever leaving the University for a Christian conference attended the Inter-collegiate Missionary Conference held at Peterborough. It was the unanimous opinion of these delegates that a conference should be organized in Toronto in the Easter term in order to put Christian activities more before the students. Preparations are now on foot for such a conference.

The Association plans to be of some service every year to the men coming up to the University. At the opening of term every assistance possible is given to incoming men by competent seniors. A list of good boarding houses is secured, students' hand-book distributed, and a book exchange conducted. In every faculty, receptions in the form of dinners are given to the freshmen. Here the men of the first year get their first insight into college life, meet socially with one another and men of the senior years, as well as prominent members of the faculty.

We are another year nearer the completion of the new Hart House. When the various societies become grouped in the new building the Association hopes, with the assistance of the strong men in every faculty who are becoming more deeply interested in its work, to make its true contribution to the life of the undergraduates.

ATHLETICS
VELUT ARBOR AEVO
H.J.BURDEN '15.

AFTER four successive years of unparalleled triumphs, defeat came rather as a shock to the followers of the Blue and White gridiron heroes. The year was one of surprises in every direction and was certainly an eventful one in the Inter-Collegiate Union. It saw the resignation of Ottawa College from the Union; it saw the visit of an American College Rugby team in an exhibition of the American game, which may make toward closer relations in the future with the sister universities to the South.

Although defeated, Varsity were by no means disgraced, and the traditions of good sportsmanship were ably upheld by the band of warriors who pressed McGill to the limit and forced a play-off in the Capital before the silverware was won. The Red and White undoubtedly had one of the strongest aggregations which ever played Canadian football, and the University of Toronto extend their congratulations to the sister institution.

The 1912 season opened early with the annual encounter with the Old Boys, September 28th. Once more the "fossils" were victorious in the traditional battle and defeated the team by a narrow margin, 30-29. This looked promising, and Varsity proved their metal when they doubled the score on McGill the following week, 26-13, in the opening game of the Inter-Collegiate schedule. Ottawa College proved easy victims, and Varsity rolled up a 30-11 score against Father Stanton's team, Oct. 12th. Then came the tragedy in Montreal when McGill turned the tables and on Oct. 19th defeated the Blue and White 28-7, on a heavy, soggy field. Queen's are always good in the mud, but the Presbyterians met defeat the next week, 17-11, October 26th. The following Monday (Thanksgiving) the Carlisle Indian team visited the Queen City and won a burlesque contest from a scrub Old Boys team, 49-11. The Varsity men knew nothing of the American game and were bewildered at the beginning—the giant Thorpe easily making touchdowns, protected by the interference they used so well. The second half, under a compromise of rules, too, was little better, because the Old Boys were lost without their scrimmage; but the contest was at least unique. November 2nd Varsity played and won an exhibition game with R.M.C., 35-21, in which the cadets showed themselves worthy to be classed in Senior Rugby—the place they are destined to fill in 1913. The game at Kingston, November 9th, was a crucial one for Varsity, but they pulled out ahead once more, 9-3, in a gruelling contest on a muddy field. The play-off took place at Ottawa, November 16th, in which the Blue and White met their Waterloo, being beaten in the contest 14-3. It was a great game and only an extraordinary team would have won from the team on that day. Before the close of the season Varsity played one more game against the Argos for the City Championship. This time the scullers had their revenge for the defeat of the previous year, and led and coached by ex-Varsity Rugbyists, won 22-15, bringing the season to a close for the University.

Varsity II. and III. teams also met with similar fates. The former won their section against McMaster, winning the first game 29-1, although they lost the second 5-4. In the play-off with R.M.C. they were badly trounced 46-1, and decided to default the second game, which came the same Saturday with the McGill-Varsity play-off. Varsity III's lost both games in their section to O.A.C., who succeeded in winning the Junior title. But, although defeated, they played strenuous games, and it was largely owing to their practice with the firsts that the premier team made such a wonderful showing.

The Mulock Cup series was, as usual, replete with interest. After many gruelling contests the two S.P.S. teams met in the finals, the laurels going to the Junior contestants.

INTER-COLLEGIATE BASKET-BALL CHAMPIONS, 1913

A. H Boddy (Captain), G M Brock, L S. Simpson, C. V Scott, H Thompson, W. J. Preston, C. E. Gage (absent)

HURRAH! Hurrah! we're champions again! After one year's "leave of absence" the cup emblematic of the Senior Inter-Collegiate Hockey Championship returns, will again take up its abode within the old gray Tower.

The new Mutual Street Arena, with its assurance of ice in any weather, its commodious dressing rooms and up-to-date equipment, brought out a host of recruits for the various "sevens." Honorary coach, Dr. Gallie, decided that a training trip would be the best possible means of getting the team into condition, so games were arranged with Boston and New York during the Christmas holidays. Leaving Toronto, Dec. 24, the team lost to Boston A. A., Dec. 25, by score of 6-2, apparently being overcome by Christmas cheer; however, they redeemed themselves three days later in New York by defeating the Crescents of that city 5-4. Returning, preparations were made for the Inter-Collegiate schedule. The first game with McGill in Toronto proved to be an exciting contest, the feature of which was the hard checking of both teams. When time was called each team had scored three goals and it required 20 minutes' overtime for McGill to break the tie. Toronto's chances of winning the League now looked very small, as Queen's had beaten McGill on the latter's ice. However, with that old spirit of "never say die," so characteristic of University teams, our men journeyed to Montreal a week later and turned the tables on old McGill. The Montreal students and a few Toronto supporters were given a most exciting contest. For 53 minutes the teams battled without a score, and when the Red and White netted the first goal pandemonium broke loose and the game seemed to be theirs. Three minutes later Aird sent the loyal few into a frenzy of delight by a splendid shot from the side, and their joy knew no bounds when with only 20 seconds to go Clarkson scored the winning goal.

The next game was with Queen's in Kingston and it also was won in the dying moments. After Queen's had led all through the game 'Varsity tied up the score and won out with 3 minutes to go. In this game Captain Frith received a severe gash on the knee, which necessitated his absence from the team on the next Saturday.

The return game with the tri-colour proved to be unexpectedly easy for Toronto, who were returned victorious, winning the Inter-Collegiate championship by score of 8-3.

"Stew" Bennett was appointed manager of the second team, which was entered in the Senior series of the O.H.A., and this team, under the able Captaincy of Boyd Caldwell, had a fairly successful season, finishing second in their group to the strong St. Michael's seven.

For the success of the Junior team great credit must be given Manager "Rusty" Bell. Picking a team from a host of material, he succeeded in coming from behind in his group and defeated last year's champions—Toronto Canoe Club—in the play-off. In the semi-finals our youngsters were drawn against the strong Oshawa seven and were defeated on the round by 4 goals. At the moment of writing they have defeated McMaster in the Junior Inter-Collegiate series and are in a fair way to land the championship.

Summing up, the season has been a very successful one, especially from a financial standpoint. In place of the usual deficit of $1,000 the management has been able to hand the Athletic Directorate of the University a surplus of some $1,500. Great credit is due Honorary Coach Dr. Gallie, President Roy Strome and Manager Joe Bullen for opening up the possibility of Hockey in University Athletics. Prospects for an artificial ice rink at the University are bright, and when it is built Hockey will come into its own—as the greatest of Canadian sports.

LACROSSE.

OFFICERS, 1912.

Captain	F. HINDS.
Manager	F. J. LIVINGSTON.
Secretary-Treasurer	W. W. BASTEDO.

LACROSSE prospects around Varsity at the beginning of last spring were not very bright. Many old players had graduated and new material had to be obtained. The long winter and wet months of April and May made practice very hard. Nevertheless a large squad turned out and worked faithfully, rain or shine. It was this sort of thing that put the spirit of do or die in the Toronto men when they got on foreign fields.

On Thursday afternoon, May 23rd, 1912, a very happy crowd of Varsity Lacrosse players embarked for a three weeks' tour through the Eastern States. The next morning at 1 a.m., much of the smile had worn off when they landed at Geneva, N.Y., and found walking with baggage was the shortest way to sleeping quarters, because of the early cutting off of the electricity in that quiet little town.

It was here, on the quiet banks of Lake Seneca, that Varsity encountered her first game of the series. Hobart lined up twenty stalwart-looking American College men, but the pick of them were defeated by the score of 10-1.

In the evening a nice banquet was tendered our boys, and at the same time an invitation extended to them to accompany Hobart to Ithaca to see a baseball game between Yale and Cornell the next afternoon. This was accepted and proved a great treat.

Sunday, 26th, found the happy throng winding along the banks of the Hudson River. This part of the trip was long to be remembered by all. Monday morning, rather weary of travelling, all were overjoyed to at last land in the noted Gotham and to find sleeping and eating quarters in the well-known "Boathouse" of the Crescent Athletic Club, Brooklyn. Two games were played here during a week's stay. The first, on Decoration Day, was a tie, 5-5; and the second went to the Crescents, 3-2. The grounds were crowded with automobiles and spectators; many cheers went up from Canadians of bygone days. In the evenings, on two different occasions, big dances were held and participated in by most of our men.

On June 3rd, the noted "Sea Gate" carried the players across New York Harbour to the Pennsylvania Station to catch the train for Baltimore. On landing here the temperature was 101° in the shade, and consequently everyone hunted for the coolest place in the town. There was no choice, and so practice was called off. The next afternoon the opponents were made up of a mixture of men from Mount Washington Club and Johns Hopkins Alumni. Despite climatic conditions Varsity was returned victorious by a score of 4-2. During the stay in Baltimore many took the chance to run down to Annapolis and Washington, and also a few to Back River.

Leaving this equatorial region as soon as possible, the next place stopped at was Philadelphia. On the outskirts of this old city lies a very quaint old Quaker town, Swarthmore, which is the proud possessor of a University by the same name. It was here, on June 8th, that the battle for the Inter-Collegiate Honours of America took place. Both sides fought hard, but the Canadians snatched the title emblematic of their national game to the tune of 7-1.

An extra day was spent in Philadelphia to allow most of the boys to take a run down to Atlantic City. Sunday afternoon, June 11th, found the boys all back in Toronto, tired out but greatly appreciating the three weeks spent on the Yankee soil.

In review of the trip it is quite necessary to say that the American Colleges are fast picking up our game and will not be content until some day they wrestle the championship from us.

THE Annual Inter-Collegiate Cross Country Race for 1912 was held at the Royal Military College, Kingston, on Saturday morning, November the second, under very favourable conditions. The course started in the neighbouring village of Barryfield, and after wending its way over road, field and forest, finished in front of the College buildings. This course was about five and a half miles long, and was made up for the most part of very fair running ground. However, to depart from mere remarks and to give vent to the more important events, let me say that our team was able to pull out a handy victory over the rival colleges. The team, composed of Captain E. H. Campbell, B. A. Hendy, H. S. Hays, P. J. Dykes and R. A. Cluff, under the management of Bill Brown, left Toronto, Friday morning, Nov. 1, for Kingston. Having deposited their suit cases in their rooms and their valuables with the hotel clerk, they essayed to wend their way, led by some strong-limbed cadets and accompanied by their rivals from McGill, over the course, over the most part of which a beautifully cooling icy wind was blowing, the pleasure of this being accentuated by a fine heating rain. Some openly avowed that this was being done to tire our lusty heroes, but after solemn conclave in the shade of a cherry tree this was unanimously voted down. Having reached the hotel safely, supper was indulged in to a moderate extent, as the nervous tension was very high, and even Mr. C. V. Perry, who accompanied the team in the capacity of spare man and whose genial smile and ready wit was the joy of the waiters, being somewhat subdued. Supper being over, all repaired to the upper storey where a general rub was inflicted by Mr. Hurley and the genial manager, much to the discomfort of some of the victims.

The next morning cabs were taken to the college, where the cadets kindly put their rooms at the disposal of the competitors. All were then driven to the start, where the twenty men were sent away to a good start. About thirty minutes after the starting gun had been fired, E. H. Campbell sprinted across the finishing line in front of the college, an easy winner by two hundred yards. In second place came R. A. Hendy, also a 'Varsity man. The Royal Military College obtained third place and McGill fourth, while 'Varsity again came forward by P. J. Dykes finishing in fifth place. This practically assured the victory for 'Varsity and great was the rejoicing of the few supporters present. R. A. Clough and H. S. Hayes finished well up in the order named. The cadets and officers were hosts at dinner, when the visiting teams all showed their capabilities in one direction at least. The afternoon was spent at the Queen's-McGill football game as guests of the cadets. In the evening, as guests of themselves, the theatre was indulged in as a celebration of the event, which celebration was prolonged after theatre hours; everything, however, being conducted with a sense of propriety and fitness which could only be obtained by the benign presence of a few of our friends from Trinity. The next afternoon all arrived home quite safe and sound after the above exciting events.

In summing up, the fine showing made by Trinity students should be mentioned, four out of five men on the team being Trinity men. Mr. Campbell's victory, a repetition of last year's, is also worthy of notice. Finally, the very friendly way the team was treated by the cadets and officers was one of the bright spots of the trip.

O. A. C. Rugby Team

FOR fifteen years Rugby at the O.A.C. has been more or less a dead issue. There has been no end of excellent material, but the snap, training and enthusiasm, three essentials of a winning team, seem to have been lacking. This year, however, the College has been recognized as a powerful factor in Junior Rugby circles. Under the able management of genial "Cap." Gandier and the effective generalship and determination of "Cap." Webster, together with the healthful physical training of our popular Physical Director, D. W. Gillies, a team has been whipped into shape that has made other Junior teams sit up and take notice. From the opening of College, it has been a case of steady, faithful work, and it has not been without its reward. A team was entered in the Junior Inter-Collegiate, and in preparation for this series several exhibition games were arranged. The first game with Upper Canada College resulted in a win for U.C.C. by a score of 16-6. Nothing daunted, the team defeated St. Jerome's College by a score of 39-0 in the next exhibition game. McMaster College was the next to fall by a score of 19 to 13.

In good shape and with every confidence the College team then started in to win the Junior Inter-Collegiate championship. Varsity 3rds were easily disposed of, the first game played in Guelph resulting in a win for O.A.C., score 21-10. The second game, played in Toronto, saw O.A.C. again carry off premier honours, score 28-10. This made O.A.C. winners of the Western division and brought them in contact with Kingston Collegiate, winners of the Eastern division. A sudden death game was played at Port Hope and once again O.A.C. was victorious, score 23-7. Thus, as Junior Collegiate champions, it was decided to go still further and try for Dominion honours. Consequently the next battle was with St. Lambert's, winners of the Quebec Union. They were disposed of with O.A.C. at the large end of a 50-2 score. This victory put the College into the finals for the Dominion Championship. But it was not to be. Upon a slippery field and in a hard-fought battle, with O.A.C. in the lead 9 minutes before time, the Hamilton Alerts managed to pull out a victory, score 13-7.

The success of the team this year has given such an impetus to Rugby that has never before been experienced. There has never been so many fellows trying for the first team, and having got a start in the right direction we are looking for still larger things another season. All honour to those football men who have made that start.

O. A. C. Track Team

NO branch of athletics has demanded more attention at the Ontario Agricultural College during the past few years than the Track. Each year sees the standard raised, with competition keener than the year previous, and it seems to make no difference how often records are broken, they are broken again. The Annual Field Day is usually held about the middle of October and usually before the Annual Inter-Faculty Meet, held at Toronto. From the showing made at this Field Meet the team is picked for the Toronto Meet. This year, however, owing to the Inter-Faculty Meet being earlier than usual, it was impossible to have our Field Day first, and hence it was a trifle harder to pick a track team.

Last year O.A.C. stood second at the Inter-Faculty sports and this year had the ambition of stepping still one higher. But one of the best track men, Miller, was taken seriously ill with typhoid fever a few weeks before College opened, and consequently had to drop out a year. In addition to this, Pope, another promising athlete, had the misfortune to sprain his ankle during practice. These two losses handicapped the team badly and put the "crimp" on their aspirations for first place.

Regardless of this, though, a team was picked, and after a hard fight at Toronto they were able to hold the standing of the previous year. A. H. White, a very promising freshman, did much to maintain this place by winning both the quarter and half-mile. F. Forsyth was successful in winning 1st in the discus, while S. G. Freeborn took 2nd in the three-mile. Additional points were added by D. B. Fraser, 3rd in one-mile and three-mile; G. J. Culham, 3rd in discus and hurdles; E. F. Palmer, 3rd in quarter-mile.

The exciting race of the day was inter-faculty relay. O.A.C. won this the previous year and it was their determination to repeat it this year. It did not look much like it, though, until the last quarter. O.A.C. was running second when W. L. Horobin, the last man to run for them, started into the final lap. He at once proceeded to pull out a victory and did so by several yards, running a most wonderful quarter. The men representing O.A.C. on the relay team were V. C. Puleston, R. W. Mollison, P. W. Smith and W. L. Horobin.

VALEDICTORY

WE have come to the jumping-off place. We must leave the cheery, mimic world where we have played for a few fleeting years, where we have made dear friends, and where our troubles have been more imaginary than real, to plunge into an unknown and somewhat fearsome world where real trials and temptations will temper the characters moulded here. To climb upwards we shall have to fight; but we shall not have to fight unfairly. Chivalry, unselfishness, honesty and sincerity are the weapons which win the big battles of life. Ability to discern anything small or mean in ourselves, and the strength to stamp it out, are the characteristics which make great men and women.

It is needless to exhort each other to preserve a grateful and loving remembrance of Alma Mater. We shall never forget the big, frank, all-embracing spirit of her—a spirit of love and hope and good-fellowship. We shall always be proud of our Alma Mater; but that is not enough—we should make her proud of us. We can do this only by being worthy of her. We should so rule our lives that when our day is over she may dwell on the memory of the Class of '13 with loving maternal pride, and be able to say, "Not one of these my children betrayed the trusts imposed in him. Each saw his duty and bravely and cheerfully did it."

We cannot all be famous but we can all be successful, for success is simply doing one's best, and it is within everyone's power to do that. We should all be ambitious; but grasping ambition should be curbed by generous unselfishness. We live in an age of materialism and strife, but there should be no one better fitted than we, the children of such an Alma Mater, to inculcate into the seething world about us something more worthy and more noble. And now Godspeed.

W. G. EGBERT.

CORRESPONDENCE CORDIALLY INVITED ON ALL MEDICO-PHARMACAL SUBJECTS

The Royal Military College of Canada

THERE are few national institutions of more value and interest to the country than the Royal Military College of Canada. Notwithstanding this, its object and the work it is accomplishing are not sufficiently understood by the general public.

The College is a Government institution, designed primarily for the purpose of giving instruction in all branches of military science to cadets and officers of the Canadian Militia. In fact it corresponds to Woolwich and Sandhurst.

The Commandant and military instructors are all officers on the active list of the Imperial army, lent for the purpose, and there is in addition a complete staff of professors for the civil subjects which form such an important part of the College course. Medical attendance is also provided.

Whilst the College is organized on a strictly military basis, the cadets receive a practical and scientific training in subjects essential to a sound modern education.

The course includes a thorough grounding in Mathematics, Civil Engineering, Surveying, Physics, Chemistry, French and English.

The strict discipline maintained at the College is one of the most valuable features of the course, and, in addition, the constant practice of gymnastics, drills and outdoor exercises of all kinds, ensures health and excellent physical condition.

Commissions in all branches of the Imperial service and Canadian Permanent Force are offered annually.

The diploma of graduation is considered by the authorities conducting the examination for Dominion Land Surveyor to be equivalent to a university degree, and by the Regulations of the Law Society of Ontario, it obtains the same exemptions as a B.A. degree.

The length of the course is three years, in three terms of 9½ months each.

The total cost of the course, including board, uniform, instructional material, and all extras, is about $800.

The annual competitive examination for admission to the College, takes place in May of each year, at the headquarters of the several military districts.

For full particulars regarding this examination and for any other information, application should be made to the Secretary of the Militia Council, Ottawa, Ont.; or to the Commandant, Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont.

Fit Reform

HAVE you tried the new way of Tailoring, as produced by Fit-Reform?

Fit-Reform is more than the name of the finest hand-tailored Suits and Overcoats in the Dominion.

Fit-Reform is the title given to the basic idea of producing these well-nigh faultless garments at moderate prices.

The Fit-Reform system allows of alterations being made without affecting the style or service of a garment; but alterations are seldom necessary.

Fit-Reform was the originator in Canada of this system of designing, measuring and tailoring, that has produced the most superior clothing sold in the Dominion or elsewhere. That is a big claim, but the clothing warrants it. Note our address:
